Are you Assessed?

Is your neighbor assessed? Is your, or your neighbor's son, who may be a few days past 22 years of age, and who is now to cast his first vote, assessed? Attend to these things today.

THE RECORD.

"O that mine enemy had written a book?" cried a Scripture worthy in his anguish.

Every public man writes a book nowadays; and that book is his RECORD. A record, to a good man, is an everlasting honor; to a dishonest man and a demagogue, it is an everlasting disgrace.

WOODWARD THE KNOW-NOTHING!

The sayings of Woodward the Know-nothing may be found in Vol. 5, pages 446-7, of the official Report of the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention, which met in 1837 and framed the present Constitution.

WOODWARD THE ADVOCATE OF REBELLION.

For, on page 4 of that speech, revised by himself, we find him saying: "It seems to me that there must be a time when slaveholders may fall back upon their natural rights, and employ in defense of their slave property whatever means of protection they possess, or can command."

WOODWARD THE DISUNIONIST!

For there we find Geo. W. Woodward giving utterance to the following sentiment: "We hear it said, let the south go peaceably. I say, LET HER GO PEACEABLY!"

WAR NEWS.

The Capture of Fort Wagner—The Release of East Tennessee—Capture of Fort Smith.

DEPARTMENT OF THE SOUTH, Sept. 7, 1863. Maj.-Gen. H. W. HALLOCK, General-in-Chief. GENERAL: I have the honor to report that Fort Wagner and Battery Gregg are ours. Last night our sappers crowned the crest of the countercase of Fort Wagner on its sea front, making all its guns; and an order was issued to carry the place by assault at 9 o'clock this morning, that being the hour of low tide.

About 10 o'clock last night the enemy commenced evacuating the island, and all but 75 of them made their escape from Cumming's Point in small boats.

Captured dispatches show that Fort Wagner was commanded by Col. Keitt of South Carolina, and garrisoned by 1,400 effective men; and Battery Gregg by between 100 and 200.

Fort Wagner is a work of the most formidable kind. Its bomb-proof shelter, capable of holding 1,800 men, remains intact, after the most terrible bombardment to which any work was ever subjected.

I have the honor to be, General, very respectfully, your obedient servant, Q. A. GILMORE, Brig.-Gen. Com'ding.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 10, 1863.—A dispatch to the Gazette, dated Knoxville, 6th, says: The great campaign of the war is over. We are in full possession of East Tennessee—a great, bloodless victory.

Such was the rapidity of our movements that the Rebels, taken unawares, fled before us without destroying property. At Loudon they attempted to hold the bridge, but the impetuosity of the 2d Tennessee Regiment broke them to fragments.

Three steamboats, three locomotives, and a large number of cars were captured there. The whole march of our army was a perfect ovation, and our entry into Knoxville an event long to be remembered.

Thousands of people of every age, size, color, and condition lined the way. Their shouts and fears intermingled with martial music, and joy reigned supreme.

Gen. Burnside's address to the soldiers and people assured them of protection, and that, while justice should be dealt, revenge was no part of the policy of the Government.

LEAVENWORTH, Sept. 10, 1863.—Official intelligence of the capture of Fort Smith, Arkansas, reached there this evening.

On the 31st ult., Gen. Blunt encamped within two miles of Cooper and Cabell, who had a force of 4,000 Rebels west of the fort.

Next morning he marched to attack them, but they had fled. Col. Cloud chased Cabell twenty miles south, and had a brief engagement; but after a few rounds Cabell's men fled in all directions.

The Rebels have evacuated Little Rock, and removed forty miles to Fort Washington, which they are fortifying.

The siege of Charleston progresses. One of the magazines in Fort Moultrie was exploded by a shell from a Monitor, and Moultrieville was half destroyed by a shell from the Ironsides.

An assault upon Sumter by the naval forces, resulted in a repulse, with a loss to our side of 113, wounded and prisoners.

In my last article I had occasion to remark the utter worthlessness of summer schools especially during the months of July and August.

I promised, also, if I did not change my mind within the next month, to attempt to suggest some changes whereby our school terms might be made more profitable to both pupils and teachers.

The time when the schools of a district should commence, and also the time when they should close, will depend somewhat upon the number of months during which the schools are to be kept open.

When schools are kept open eight months in the year, as is the case in Wellsboro, and some other districts of the county, I would recommend a four months term commencing with the first of November, with a short vacation to include the Christmas and New Year's holidays; and then on commencing the next week after New Year's day, so as to end by the last of February.

For the summer term, I would recommend that the schools should open by the first of May, with a vacation early enough to include the Fourth of July and continuing through the greater part of July and August, the remainder of the term to be completed in September and October.

From Rev. J. Newton Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge: Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, I have great respect for the ingredients and effects, I yet know of no sufficient reason why a man may not testify to the benefits he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them. I have, since then, from great and long continued debility, the use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them. PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 20, 1861. J. NEWTON BROWN.
