"We assert that our farmers cannot make it pay to buy special fertilisers or manures, until they have exhausted every available source of manure upon their farms. These sources, of course, vary on different farms and in different localities, but there is no farmer that we know of, but is in a condition and has the necessary means on hand to add to his manure pile from

resources at his command.

Except in cases where fields are already too rich, and these cases we think will be found few and far between in our State, the crops obtained, and consequently the prosperity of the farmer, will be found to inclease almost in direct ratio with the attention paid to enriching his soil. "Feed your soil and it will feed you," is one of the old proverbs which has not lost a whit of its truth through age.

The barnyard is of course the great source of manure. From it you bring back a large portion of your previous years hay and fodder, and it goes upon the fields to help bring forth another orop. In the summer season, when cattle are yarded at night their droppings are in too many cases allowed to dry up under the hot sun, and the liquid portion is entirely lost. It should be piled up in heaps every morning and composted with sods, straw or muck. If none of these are handy, common soil obtained from the washings by the roadside will answer the purpose. Open sheds should have a layer of muck over the bottom.

The weeds, brakes, &c., growing in waste places by the roadside, should be cut and composed with muck or turf and lime, or what is better still, put them into the pig pen and let the pigs earn a part of their keeping. One portion of every pig sty should always, during the summer season, be supplied with muck in abundance for mixing with their excrements.

There should always be a composit heap for the roots, slops, suds, &c., of the house, and it should be well supplied with dry muck or soil, which besides augmenting the amount of good manure will act as a deodoriser.

All these things will be looked to by the provident farmer, and many dther sources will be found from which much vegetable and animal matter may be drawn, and by mixing, exposing to the air, &c., form upplies of manure which many times repay their cost.

MRS. PARTINGTON ON COLESTICS .- "That's a new article for beautifying, the complexion," said Mr. Bibb, holding up a small bettle for Mrs. Partiagion to look at. She looked up from toeing out a woolen sock for Ike; and took the bottle in her hand. "Is it, indeed?" said she; "well, they may get ever so many rostrums for beautifying the complexion, but, depend upon it, the less people have to do with bottles the better. My neighbor, Mrs. Blotch, has been using a bottle a good many years, for her complexion, and her nose looks like a rup-ture of Mount Vociferous, with the burning lather running all over the contagious territo-Mr. Bibb informed her, with a smile, that this was a cosmetic for the outside, and not to be taken internally, whereupon she subsided into the toe of Ike's stocking, but mur-mured something about the dauger of its "leaking in, nevertheless." Ake, meanwhlle, was rigging a martingale for Lion's tail, securing that waggish member to his collar, and making him appear as if scudding before the wind.

WOOL CARDING

THE undersigned, thankful for past favors, would inform his friends and the public generally, that he is located permanently in Wellsboro, and refitted up the old Foundry Building with entire new machinery for the purpose of nachinery for the purpose of WOOL CARDING & CLOTH DRESSING.

As his works run by steam power, he can card Wook at any time for customers coming from a distance.

Being a practical Cloth Dresser, and having followed it for a number of years, he can therefore warrant all work to give full satisfaction, or the money returned.

Tan Wool Carded for four cents per pound, and Cloth Dressed at from eight to eighteen cents per yard, as per color and finish.

To Wool taken in pay for work.

Wellsboro, May 20, 1883. CHARLES LEE.
