Who does not remember, with a sort of half regret, the wonder and delight chis first ocvisible echo?. A perfect harleg in of the air, the merriest and the saddest bocker in the world, he hughed back your jugh, shouted back your shout, and cried brel your cry.

There are a few commonphici, schoes, just as there are (a few) commonplace people in the world; and there are eccentic enhors, curious, remarkable, grand and beaucif d echoes. In enly repeats the same words the e times in ra-pid succession, but has the tric of changing the letter S to V, which gives use to a very pleasant joke. Call out Satan E. The echo instantly replies, "Va t'en!" (Get thee hence!) The reply undoubtedly proceeds from the ghost of some old sinner, who, compelled to do eternal penance in that spot, is mored to the abjuration every time he hears the rame of his tormentor.

A saucy echo haunts the Bhine cliffs at Oberwesel. Ask him who is the burgomaster of Oberwesel, and you get for answer, Esel!-Esel is the German for ass, and the burgomaster is highly sensible of the implied insult.-More than once he has ordered the echo to hold its tongue; but the saucy mocket is not liable to imprisonment, and laught the threatened application of the gag law.

Mountain echoes are often day grand.— The voices of subterranea a dinons, calling from the bottom of the world, it is what the Arabs call them. One of the very grandest exists on the Koningsee, a pirturesque lake in the Bavarian Highlands, at to pot where the naked cliff rises on one side of the height of five thousand feet; the other side is clothed with forest. The report of a pocket pistol, fired here, is first returned faint and low, from the wooded side, and dies away. In a second more it is heard gathering along the stiffs on the other side, like a gradual roll of the ider, increasing in volume until it breaks over your head in a deafening crash, louder than the broadside of the line. Echoes love to haunt caverna and grottoes. There is a large cavern in Finia id in which the cries of an animal thrown into it increase in volume and multiply to such A fearful extent, that men of the strongest newes have turned pale to hear them. The pease try believe the pare to hear them. The penale dry believe the cavern to be one of the prince of gateways to a place not mentionable to "as polite." Other grottoes are the residences of good and happy echoes, that live in harmony with the great Spirit of Nature. One of these of the celebrated Cave of Finland. The vast proportions and beautiful details of the cavera pharm the eye, while the ear is enraptured by strains of enchanting music which contituilly fill the air. Crystal sounds of numberless; waterfalls, the breathing of the winds, mingling with the cadence of the multitudinous waves, striking against the sonorous columns of basalt, make strange and ravishing harmon r.

A little nonsense is now and then relished by cchoes as well as by the vi sat men. A few years ago the following in kent occurred at Baltimore, during the sess of of a religious convention. An English c a zyman—a little, red-haired, waspish man of Rod—got on his legs for the purpose of delivering a great speech. Echo came to the rescue of his American friends -and the following amusing folloquy ensued:

Clergyman .- Mr. Chairma, Echo.-Mr. Chairman. Clergyman.-I have the liger, sir. Echo.-I have the floor, Fir-Clergyman.—Do you main io ins

Echo.—Do you mean to as At me!
By this time the whole addience was in a your, and the enraged little Englishman flopped down into his seat, muttering anathemas against the ill-manners of American conventions.

The interest of the foll wing story of an indiscreat echo verges on the tragic. It is said to have occurred in the Cutendral of Girgenti, in Sicily.

There was one point in this cathedral where the slightest whisper utter idia a certain confessional, two hundred in fifty feet distant, could be heard as distinctly in if spoken aloud close to the listener's ent. One morning, t handsome young lady, elapantly attired, entered the fatal confessional. At the same instant a gentleman entered the cathedral, and, by accident, took his station on the very spot aional.

He was the lady's bushar, ! She began with the comma places of the confession. She was .too fond of balls, theatres, dress; was uncharitable topped the failings of her female friends, &c.

Come and sec. And then appeared, with a violent blow.

The incident caused a great deal of scandal in Girgenti, and the unimpky confessional was removed to a place where there was less danger of creating domestic discord.

THIS important improvement in machines for man THIS important improvement in machines for manufacturing shingles and heading, the inventor has the pleasure of introducing to the public; a machine which has proved itself, beyond a doubt, decidedly the most perfect, the best and cheapest machine, that has ever yet been introduced. As shingles and heading are articles of great demand and of much importance, the aim and object of the inventor has been to get up a machine that would make them as near perfect to the best shaved, and with the greatest dispatch, possible. With much labor and expense he has perfect to the loss since, and win the greatest at patch, possible. With much labor and expense he has succeeded in accomplishing his object; which fact is testified to by those who have the machine in use.—The superiority and many important advantages this machine has over others, are: It has no complicated and if you come once, you will be sure to come twice parts liable to derangement; simple in its construction, yet strong and durable; perfectly safe and easy in operating; does the work in a very perfect manner, equally as well on heading of different kindscutting obliquely or otherwise, as desired. The saw running horizontal, cutting lengthwise of the bolt; the carriage traveling only in proportion to the width of the shingle or heading, and are made to cut from 10 to 24 inches in length, works up the timber very close; will cut from 1000 to 1600 per hour of shingles, works up but little room, occupying, only about four takes un but little room; occupying only about four feet square, not weighing over 285 lbs.; can be driven feet square, not weighing over 285 ibs.; can be driven by any kind of ordinary power; a very compact machine to ship. The cost of the machine is small compared with its value.
