... MY WIFE'S COUSIN.

Some time ago, I called on a cousin of my wife's, who had resided in the city of Philadelphia. I had not seen him for a long time, but having understood he was in affluent circumstances, I was but little prepared for the condition in which I found him. Through information from the Philadelphia Directory, I having the society of my two boys, who were city, abounds, and found his name on a sign board, associated with that of another man, over a dark, dingy shop. The sign purported Wine producer, and therefore enables them to farnish that they were blacksmiths and bellhangers, the best of American production, at moderate prices. also that locks were repaired and keys fitted. Without ceremony, I walked into the gloomy recess, where there was a blacksmith's forge, and where among several muscular looking men, up to their armpits in work, was my wife's cousin. He received me most cordially, and for a moment intermitted filing a huge brass key on which he was engaged; and the shake of my own dexter by one of his own broad, brawny hands, I can liken to nothing nearer than the shock of a young earthquake. "Toke a seat, take a seat," he observed,

Political. ANDREW JOHNSON'S LETTER.

HE ACCEPTS THE NOMINATION.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 2, 1864. Hon. William Dennison, Chairman, and Gentlemen: Your communication of the 9th Vice Presidency of the United States by the National Convention held at Baltimore, and enclosing a copy of the resolutions adopted by that body, was not received until the 25th ult. A reply on my part had been previously made to the action of the convention in presenting my name, in a speech delivered in this city on the evening succeeding the day of the adjournment of the Convention, in which I indiented my acceptance of the distinguished honor conferred by that body, and defined the grounds upon which that acceptance was based, substantially saying what I now have to say, From the comments made upon that speech by the various presses of the country to which my attention has been directed. I considered it to be regarded as full acceptance.

In view, however, of the desire expressed in your communication, I will more fully allude to a few points that have been heretofore presented.

My opinions on the leading questions at present agitating and distracting the public mind, and canccially in reference to the rebellion now being waged against the Government and authority of the United States, I presume are generally understood.

Before the Southern people assumed a beligerent attitude (and repeatedly since,) I took were in good condition when I bought them, I ing my leave, I realized that I had been taught | Time and subsequent events have rather confirmed than diminished my confidence in their correctness.

At the beginning of this great struggle I entertained the same opinion of it that I do now, and in my place in the Senate I denounced it as treason, worthy the punishment of death, and warned the Government and the people of the impending danger. But my voice was not heard or counsel heeded until it was too late to avert the storm. It still continued to gather over us without molestation from the authorities at Washington, until at length it to our previous economy, we had the money to hardy black fellows, who wanted to emigrate broke with all its fary upon the country. And O'R Wednesday night, May 25, 1884, the following spend; but, Aleck, it was really very amusing to the Yankee land of promise. which they could at all times control. The separation of the Government has for years past been the cherished purpose of the Southern lenders. Baffled, in 1832, by the stern, patriotic heroism of Andrew Jackson, twenty-five it puts down as extra hazardous.

all kinds of Jobbing done in country establishments, executed neatly and promptly. Justices', Constable's and other BLANKS, constantly on hand.

they sullenly acquiesced, only to mature their diabolical schemes, and await the recurrence of a more favorable opportunity to execute them. Then the pretext was the tariff, and Jackson, after folling their schemes of nullification, and disunion, with prophetic perspicacity warned the country against the renewal of their efforts to dismember the Government.

In a letter dated May 1, 1833, to the Rev. A. J. Crawford, after demonstrating the heartless insincerity of the Southern nullifiers, he

"Therefore the tariff was only a pretext, and a disunion and a Southern Confederacy was the real object. The next pretext will be the negro, or slavery question."

Time has fully verified this prediction, and we have now not only the negro or slavery question as the pretext, but the real cause of the rebellion, and both must go down together, It is vain to attempt to reconstruct the Union with the distracting element of slavery in it. Experience has demonstrated its incompatibility with free and republican governments, and it would be unwise and unjust longer to continue it as one of the institutions of the country. While it remained subordinate to the Constitution, and laws of the United States, I yielded to it my support; but when it became rebellious. and attempted to rise above the Government and control its action, I threw my hamble influence against it.

The authority of the Government is supreme, and will admit of no rivalry. No institution can rise above it.

The mode by which this great change—the emancipation of the slave-can be effected, is properly found in the power to amend the Constitution of the United States. This plan is effectual, and of no doubtful authority; and while it does not contravene the timely exercise. of the war power by the President in his Emancipation Proclamation, it comes stamped with the authority of the people themselves, acting in accordance with the written rule of the supreme law of the land, and must therefore give more general satisfaction and quie-tude to the distracted public mind. By recurring to the principles contained in the resolutions so unanimously adopted by the Convention, I find that they substantially accord with my public acts and opinions heretofore made known and expressed, and are therefore most cordially endorsed and approved; and the nomination, having been conferred without any solicitation on my part, is with the greater pleasure accepted.

In accepting the nomination, I might here close, but I cannot forego the opportunity of saying to my old friends of the Democratic party proper, with whom I have so long and pleasantly been associated, that the hour has now come when that great party can justly vindicate its devotion to true democratic policy and measures of expediency. The war is a war of great principles. It involves the supremacy and life of the Government itself. If Committee of the National Union Convention. | the rebellion triumphs, free government-North and South-fails If on the other hand the ultimo, informing me of my nomination for the Government is successful—as I do not doubt its destiny is fixed, its basis permanent and enduring, and its career of honor and glory just begun. In a great contest like this for the existence of free government, the path of duty is patriotism and principle. Minor considerations and questions of administrative policy should give way to the higher duty of first preserving the Government, and then there will be time enough to wrangle over men and measures pertaining to its administration.

This is not the hour for strife and division among ourselves. Such differences of opinion only encourage the enemy, prolong the war, and wasto the country. Unity of action and concentration of power should be our watchword and rallying cry. This accomplished, the time will rapidly approach when their armies in the field, the great power of the rebellion, will be broken and crushed by our gallant officers and brave soldiers, and ere long they will return to their homes and firesides to resume again the avocations of peace, with the proud consciousness that they have aided in the noble work of re-establishing, upon a surer and more permanent basis, the great temple of American Freedom. I am, gentlemen, with sentiments of high

Yours, truly, regard. ANDREW JOHNSON.

SHARP PRACTICE.—A negro came into town from the country on Saturday, says a Trenton paper, to sell some blackberries, and provision himself with a quart of whiskey for Sabbath purposes. While standing on the corner of the street a man approached him and inquired his name. The negro gave it. "You are the very man I'm looking for," esponded his interrogator, "you're drafted." "Goll jiggers, boss, is dat so!"

" Sartin as you live." "Well, den, what will dis chile do?"

"Come and go with me. You havn't been notified yet, and I think I can get you 'listed, and then you can git $400. If you go as a drafted man you wo'n't git nothin'. Come and keep your mouth shut, and let me do the talk-

The negro went with his white friend, and was soon mustered into the service of the United States' service, and cent out to camp. This put $25 into the sharper's pocket.

BE ON GOOD TERMS WITH YOUR PILLOW .--The instant the head is laid on the pillow is that in which conscience delivers its decrees. If it has conceived any evil design, it is surrounded by thorns. The softest down is hard under the restless head of the wicked .- in order to be happy, one must be on good terms with one's pillow, for the nightly reproaches it can make must be heard; yet it is never so delicious, so tranquil, as after a day on which one has performed some good act, or when one is conscious of having spent it in some useful or substantial employment.

A paper very innocently asks if there is any harm of young ladies to sit on the lapse of ages. Another replies that it depends on the kinds of ages selected. Those from eighteen to
