One day Princess Anang came into my house with a pipe in her mou . I snatched it from her furiously. She ce led Mafuk, who usually acted as our interpreter, and said gently that she would not smoke if I disliked it; but how was it offensive to me? She had seen her father smoke in my presence without my appearing to be annoyed.

She glanced superciliously at my clothes, and asked whether that was another fashion of my country. I replied that it time. She asked why it was not considered proper for women to smoke in my country.
I said there were very good reasons.

"Ab," she cried, elappin ; her hands, "I know why. Tobacco is very dear in your country, so you will not give any to your

I assured her with some indignation, that she was mistaken. In our country, I said, the women have the same rights as men.

"Then why do they not snicke tobacco?" "Because they do not like it," said I desperately.

"Then, if they like tobace is they can smoke it," continued the inexorable Ananga.
"No," said I; "the mer in our country know that tobacco is not goo for the women, and that they would not like it, so they make a law that no women shall s loke it."

Ananga shook her little head: "If women try it they like it," she said. "You do not let them t y it, because you fear they like it. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against miladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water, and other external causes. HOSTETTER'S BIT.

TERS may be relied on as a safeguard.

In districts infested with Fare and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive, and irresistible as a remedy, and thousands who resort to it under apprehension of an attack, escape the scourge; and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its productive qualities in advance, are gured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine.—Fover and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain, until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaleid, are not unfrequently restored to health within a few days by the use of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS.

The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable tonic; and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspresia end in less confirmed forms of Inviscions. Acting as a gentle and painless apperient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constitutions, apperinded by irregular action of the digestive and secretivo organs.

Persons of foeble habit, liable to Nervous Attacks, Lonness of Spirits and Fits of Languar find prompt and per manent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes.

The agony of BILIOIS' COILC is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally resorting to it, the return of the compiaint may be prevented.

As a general tonic, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated: In cases of Constitutional Wakness, Premature Decay, and Pebility and Decreptude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases. It operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-enforce and re-establish them.

Last, but not least, it is The Only Safe Stimulant, being manufactured from sound and inocuous materials, and entitled free from the acid elements present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachies of the dey
