Ferhaps it is requiring too much of the Oberseers of the Poor to expect them to visit these families to a hemlock; thence by land aforeaid in possession to the neighbors, and report made to the Overseers. In this way none need be cold or hungry. There is plenty, and to spare, and none should suffer. It is not the intention of the people of this village that ty man, woman or child in their midst should suffer for the necessaries of life. If this intention is carried out properly, no one will suffer. While we are upon this subject let us recommend a reform in the matter of electing Overseers of the Foor. Most of the hospitals in this city were bounteously supplied with luxuries by the cititers, but this was treated to a thanksgiving dinner by the surgeon in charge, Dr. Joseph Hopkinson, and the Doctoris truly worthy of much praise for the press and expense clicited on this occasion.
