

FROM THE SOLDIER BOYS.

Lieut. A. B. Cross, A. C. C. 2d Brigade, 9th Army Corps, writes us from headquarters before Petersburg, as follows: "I am sure there are hundreds of brave and true hearts who will eagerly pursue your column to see if there is not one little word from some loved one who is standing in the ranks of this grand old army watching the closing scenes of a crumbling Confederacy. Four years of war have wrought many changes; but to-day every soldier in the army is more determined to wipe out treason and rebellion than ever before."

"Tioga county is well represented here. The 207th regiment has won the respect of the veterans by its conduct in passing through dangers and hardships. The late movement of Gen. Warren was rather heroic for new soldiers. I must give you a brief history of the work: "Friday night, 9th December, we left our comfortable quarters and marched about one mile on the Jerusalem plank road, halted in line of battle, and remained there all night. About 9 o'clock in the evening it began storming. I have had some experience as a soldier, but I never stood twelve hours in a storm like that: Three or four soldiers were frozen to death in the brigade during the night. At daylight we certainly expected to be sent to our quarters, but the order did not come. At noon we were marched to the scene of the execution of two deserters, who had gone over to the enemy some time before and were taken in the Shenandoah valley in arms against the country. I hope the time will soon come when every leader of the rebellion will share the like fate."

"At 4 o'clock we were ordered to our quarters, where we remained an hour, and then received marching orders on the road. Taking the plank road we marched twenty-five miles without halting, and found ourselves at Stony Creek Station at 4 o'clock. This looked like work; but we were disappointed. Disappointment. Gen. Warren did not need my assistance. So, at 4 P. M., we started back to camp, arriving at midnight, completely worn out. We did not care much for that, for the movement was a complete success. The Rebels will have to work sometime to repair the damage done to railroads, bridges, mills, &c."

"The boys were several days getting over their lameness; but they are now all right and ready for any work Gen. Grant may have for them to do."

"J. V. L." from the camp of the 207th, writes us briefly: "The Potomac army is resting awhile after the arduous summer and fall campaigns, reuniting its energies and preparing to strike a deathblow at the rotten Confederacy. While our brave comrades under Sherman and Thomas are achieving brilliant victories and carrying consternation to the hearts of the chivalry, we are compelled to remain here, and watch the expiring life of Seceisia."

"The Johnsons felt confident of ultimate success on these lines until the late grand expedition of Warren on the left. Since that they are quiet, and appear to have lost their vindictive malice towards us. At least, the friendly intercourse is common between the pickets of the hostile armies. One week ago a constant firing was kept up. And now the unlucky wight who showed his head above the works. Johnny or Yanp, he soon lost the number of his mess. There is no firing now save at night. All night a dreadful fire is kept up, but as soon as day dawns some non-combatant shouts "breakfast!" which is immediately caught up and repeated by a score of voices. This may seem a strange juxtaposition, yet it is so, and is repeated by both parties."

"Soon after breakfast the pickets mount the works and pass the day in cracking jokes, telling stories and singing songs, till sunset, when firing commences."

"Tattoo has just sounded, and I will retire to dream of the glorious place now evidently fast approaching; of the much desired time when devastating war shall be no more."

"G. M. B." writes us of the forced march of the 207th also, and in addition says: "There are many places along the line where we can see the rebel pickets and very frequently converse with them, and trade sugar, coffee, &c., for tobacco, the only thing the rebels have plenty of. At one place there is a spring where the rebels send our men get water. At another place there is a log, one of our sentinels standing at one end and a rebel sentinel at the other. Deserters come over to us every day. All tell the same story of being tired of the war, and that half of the rebels would desert were they not strictly guarded."

"Our Colonel has had his hands fully since we came out; but the boys of the 207th (Col. Cox) will take us through it right." They have all confidence in him."

M. W. Teall, Co. I, 189th N. Y. V., writes us at length about the raid on the Weldon railroad. He says: "We reached the road about eight o'clock, evening, and commenced the work of destruction. I think it would be done the loyal northern people good to see the boys muster that railroad out of the rebel service. We continued at the good work till one o'clock in the morning, and then built fires and hovered over them till daylight. It was so cold to sleep. In the morning some of us went at it to work out our road tax, while others confiscated eatables, in the shape of cattle and poultry. We destroyed thirty-two miles of road in all, and encamped that night within twenty miles of Weldon. Such a night I never experienced in all my three years and four months of soldiering. Rain, snow, and hail fell alternately, and froze as it fell. Sleep was out of the question."

To MAKE GOOD CIDER VINEGAR.—A skillful housekeeper, who has tried various modes, says that the best vinegar is made by exposing the barrels, not quite full, and with the bung out, to the air for one year. This makes the best vinegar she has ever made. The common addition of molasses lessens its fine, clear character. She makes no addition of water. The barrels during the summer should be placed on the south side of the house where they may receive the heat of the sun. The long time thus required to manufacture the vinegar will be an objection to some, but all that is necessary is to keep a supply one year beforehand."

TRACKERS indulged in raw oysters when he was in this country—"Siddle Rakes" of the most formidable description. That is to say, he indulged in one. After that had disappeared he said: "Swallow 'em, 'em as soon think of swallowing a raw baby!"

L. LYONS' PURE OHIO CATAWBA BRANDY, AND SPARKLING CATAWBA WINES, Equal in Quality and Cheaper in Price than the Brandy and Wines of the Old World.

In support of the above statements, are presented the Certificates of Dr. Jas. R. Chilton, Chemist, New York; Dr. Hiram Cox, Chemical Inspector, Ohio; Dr. James R. Nichols, Chemist, Boston; Dr. N. E. Jones, Chemical Inspector, Cleveland, Ohio; Prof. G. T. Jackson, Chemist, Boston; Dr. Chas. Upham Shepard, Charleston, S. C.; and J. V. Z. Blaney, and G. A. Mariner, Consulting Chemists, Chicago, all of whom have analyzed the Catawba Brandy, and commended it in the highest terms, for medicinal use.

Analysis of the Massachusetts State Assayer, January 25, 1858. When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spirituous liquor. The Oil which is to this Brandy its flavor and aroma, is wholly unlike fustic or grain oil. Its odor partakes of both the fruit and oil of grape. It is a true and pure essence of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of fictitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad.

A. A. HAYES, M. D., Assayer to State of New York, Boyleston St. By the same, in 1864. I have analyzed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same results with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends it was determined by comparison with former samples.

The indications of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. A. A. HAYES, State Assayer, Boston, July 20, 1864. Manufactured only by H. E. JACOB & Co., (To whom all orders should be addressed.) Depot, 91 Liberty Street, New York. November 16, 1864—3mo.

CONCENTRATED LYE, for sale at ROY'S DRUG STORE.

U. S. 7-30 Loan.

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from August 15, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of 7-30ths per cent. per annum,—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent. gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect. They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000, and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

The notes will be transmitted to the owners free of transportation charges as soon after the receipt of the original Certificates of Deposit as they can be prepared. As the notes draw interest from August 15, persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit. Parties depositing $25,000 or upward for these notes at any one time will be allowed a commission of one-quarter of one per cent, which will be paid by the Treasury Department upon receipt of bill for the amount, certified to by the officer with whom the deposit was made. No deductions for commissions must be made from deposits.

Special Advantages of this Loan. It is a National Savings Bank, offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any Savings Bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, considers that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

It is equally convenient as a permanent or temporary investment. The notes can always be sold for within a fraction of their face and accumulated interest, and are the best security with banks as collateral for discounts. Convertible into a 6 per cent 5-20 Gold Bond. In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is worth more than three per cent. per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium, and before the war the premium on United States stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Exempt from State or Municipal Taxation. But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all Treasury notes and bonds from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country. It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment, while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

While the government offers the most liberal terms for its loans, it believes that the very strongest appeal will be to the loyalty and patriotism of the people. Duplicate certificates will be issued for all deposits. The party depositing must endorse upon the original certificate the denomination of notes required, and whether they are to be issued in blank or payable to order. When so endorsed it must be left with the officer receiving the deposit, to be forwarded to the Treasury Department.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositories, and by the FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF TOWANDA, and by all National Banks which are depositories of public money, and ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS and BANKERS throughout the country will give further information and afford every facility to subscribers. Aug. 19, 1864—3m.
