A man in rather indifferent circumstances surrounded by a large family, bein a entirely out of meat, had recourse to the shaepfold of his neighbor, a wealthy farmer, for relief. The neighbor having a large flock of sheep did not perceive that he had lost any; until one of the finest of the flock, very large, and fat, was missing, and counting his sheet he found he had lost several. Unable to a court for this extraordinary loss, he resolvid a few nights after to watch. About milnight he observed a great disturbance among his sheep, caused by the appearance of a men in disguise. Curiosity, as well-as to find him out, induced him to lie still. In the flock there was a ram with whom it seems the man was in the habit of conversing, as if he .Ind been the actual owner of the sheep-"Well, Mr. Ram," says the noctural sheep stealer, "I am come to buy another sheep; have you any more to sell?" Upon which he replied, as in person of the ram, "Yes, I have sheep to sell."

By this time the owner had discovered him to be one of his neighbors. "What will you take for that fet wither?"

save the purchaser. "Four dollars," replied Mr. Ram.
"That is a very high price," and the man,
"but as you are so good as to wait or the pay, I think I will take him."

"Well Mr. Ram," continued the honest sheep buyer, "let me see how nany sheep I have bought of you."

"If I am not mistaken," pars the ram, "this is the fifth," and then went im to cast up the whole, and giving Mr. Ram a solite invitation to call on him for his pay, and bidding him a good night, he led the heep home, while the owner lay laughing at the novelty of the scene, highly gratified and at ply paid for the whole. A few nights afterweeds when he supposed his neighbor was nearly out of mutton, he caught the old ram and tie ! a little bag under his neck, and placed a piece of paper between his horns, on which he viote in large

"I have come for my money," Under this line he footed up the 'shole amount of the the sheep, exactly as his anighbor had done, as before related; he then wook the ram to his neighbor's house, where he tied him near the door, and then went home. When the neighbor arose in the morning, he was not a little surprised to find a sheep tied to his own door; but it is beyond words: to express astonishment when, to found it was the old ram with whom he had been dealing so much in mutton, with his brand on his forehead, and the amount of five sheep actually. made out, as he had done a few days previous, in the person of the ram. Suffice it to say, he obtained the money, and after tring it nicely in the bag, and tearing the paper from his horns, set the ram at liberty, who immediately ran home, jingling the money, as if, proud of having accomplished the object of his errand-to the no smill gratification of the owner.

An Irishman, who had lain sick a long time was met one day by the parish priest, when the following conversation touk place.

Well, Patrick, I am glad you have recoveredbut were you not afraid to meet your God?" "Och, no, your riverence, it was the other chap I was afraid of," replied Pat.

Rianey, and G. A. Mariner, Consulting Chemists, Chicago, all of whom have analyzed the Catawha Brandy, and commend it in the highest terms, for medical use.

Analysis of the Massachusette State Assayer, Janu. ary 25, 1858. When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spirituous liquor. The Oil which gives to this Brandy its flavor and aroma, is wholly unlike furil or grain oil. Its odor partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Core. ragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cugnac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of fictitions spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully, d. Respectfully, Assayer to State Mass., 16 Boyleston St. By the same, in 1864.

I have analyzed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in part years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same results with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former The indications of analysis show that this Brands is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy.

Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, State Assayer.
