

yan, member of the Church, and to all the well-dressed and respectable men who throng the lipes of travel and walk the streets of our cities. Protect that soldier. He has stood up for you ; be has protected you at very risk to himself. Now stand by him. He is on the threshold of a drinking saloon, or he has al-ready taken a glass too much. H talks londly, profanely it may be; so per laps would you if you had been three year i the rough school from which he has just gratuated ... He shows his money - a hundred dollars or so, but his all, the scanty return for his hardship and exposure, perhaps for his blood, endured and shed for you. Go to him. Do not approach or touch him as if he were a toad. Take off your kid glove and put your naked hand upon his shoulder. Kindly and patiently prove to

You observe that villanous and designing men are making his acquaintance. Their object is apparent. Never gathered sharks around an unconscious swimmer with a less friendly purpose. Faithfully waif him : save him from their hands if it does cost you some personal disconfort. A few vile words may be thrown at you, but can you not stand a little dirt for him, when he, for you, and bravely faced a storm of shot and shell long hours or many bloody fields? You say her ought to know better. That is no excuse. Most men have made fools of themselves- on_some occa sions of their lives, and seldom with es much reason as this poor soldier. He has just ob-tained freedom from an iron discipline. He has more money than he ever had before at one time. Absent for years, he is now going to that home which many a time' during the dangerous past he never expected to see again. The war is over and the Union Restored. It is enough to turn the head of apathy itself. Is it strange then that he is excited and indiscreet, and does things that he would not do a week hence when the fever is past? Stand by the soldier. He has more dangerous enemies going North than he had marching South. It is said that at least one-half are robbed ere reaching home. It is a shame that ? is can be in a Obristian land. Shall thieves get millions of our soldier's pay ? Protect Them on their homeward journey, and waitinf little children, and patient expectant wiges will bless you with hearts overflowing with oy and gratitude. E. P. R., Chaplian, in t. e. N. Y. Evan glist.

A Finnish woman expresses the greatest astonishment and horror at hearing from Mr. Wolley, that it was a common thing in England for a husband and wife to kiss each other. "If my husband were to attempt such a thing,' said she, " I would box him about the ears until he would feel it for a week."-Bayard Taylor.
