GEN. GRANT AND THE ENGLISHMAN. - Au insident of Gen. Grant's visit to Danada has re cently been told us which has not before appeared in print, and which is we granted as true While in Montreal, and just after an interview with a number of Canadian offic als and others, he appeared much disturbed, and calling Mr. ["Bowie-knife" Potter, our consil, said : " Potter, sit down. I want to talk to you; I never was so angry in my life,"

It seems that some one had been introduced to the General, and remarked, gratuitously; "General Grant, I am an Emplishman, and I wish to assure you that my sympichy is and always has been with the South at I President Davis. I hope your government will not hang

"And I hope, sir," replied the General, "that be will have an impartial trial; and if he is convioted, he will be hung, as he correinly deserves to be. He has mardered hundreds of our men;

he has starved our prisoners." "That, sir," interrupted the other, "I don't

"I have unfortunately met a grant many men of your stemp who will never believe anything against the South, but who are ready to be lieve noything against the North and the United States government."

"Sir," said the Englishman, I have been in the habit of associating with pentlemen." "How little apt we are to improve our advantages," was the quiet reply of the insulted and indignant General, and the Englishman walked off-crest fallen.

Accordingly, Julius started with a hundle under his arm, and being shown in a bathroom, was left to his ablig ons.

Considerable time slapsed and Julius did not .come forth; and after waiting for about an hour the keeper of the baths went to the door and screamed out:

"Say, darkey, are you comine out?" "Yes, as soon as I get troo my washing."
"How long will that be?" "P'rhaps an hour to an houi an an' half."

coolly answered Julius. With that the man burst into the room and there, all around the room, wat the darkey's freshly washed clothing hung up to dry; but not noticing it just then remark d:

"Come, you just clear out at once; you've been in over two hours!" "Look-a-here," said Julius, in an enraged manner, pointing to his drying clothes, which rather took the bathing man down, "I'd like to see you wash and hang out to o dozen pieces in less time than I've been at it?" In another minute Julius was landed out in the street, surrounded by his wrehing. A NEW TRANSLATION .- A correspondent put into a communication to a Weitern Editor the words "nihil fit." Said editor wanted to know what they meant, who "Nihil" was, and whom he "fit." A brother editor come to his rescue and informed him that " Nihil fit" Sherman all the way from Atlanta to Savan-
