AGICULTURAL RHYMES.

When books and papers were scarce, people read to remember, and rhyme was a great assistance to the memory. Thus many of the sayings of Franklin's Poor Richard have been banded down from futher to sop, and are still household words among us. The following collection was made by Dr. J. C V. Smith, formerly of Boston, and published in the New York Tribune:

If butter churned in morning air Is kept in a cool place with care, The taste is nice . But that which shows the buttermilk Don't sell to those who dress in silk-

For any price.

To be in debt Brings out the sweat. No half-cooked meat Is fit to eat,

A woman who sneezes Ought not to make cheeses. Put her hands in a muff, Or ever take snuff

When the wind is east and turkeys gobble, It is no time a horse to hobble; But let him range to catch the breeze-Should he be troubled with the heaves. An ox with broad horns and short glossy hair,

Is good for a team, the market, or fair

One white foot is bad, and two are too many, That horse is best that does not have any.

> A farmer without hogs, But an army of dogs, Will have more puppies than pork ; For the swill will be lost, To the husbandman's cost,-Dogs good for nothing to work.

The slackest farmer, strange to say, Is known for being out of hay.

It does not pay in any way, To milk a cow three times a day.

When chickens roost above the mow

It spoils the hay for horse or cow. The well-bred daughter for a farmer,

A prudent helpmeet and a charmer It is no place to set poles,

Where moles or mice have dug their holes.

Cobs make so food for kine to eat. But they are good for snoking meat

Pork and beans make muscles strong-Something farmers seek : It is a dish to make life long,

When cooked but once a week

A slovenly dress, a shabby pate, The fences down, a broken gate, Pigs in the garden, weeds very high, Children unwashed-no bacon to fry-Lots of great dogs and yawling tom cats, Windows repaired with a dozen old hats, An empty barn-not a spear of hay, Cows in the clover, horse run away, Things sold by guess without being weighed, Bills coming in and taxes unpaid-Pipes and tobacco-shiskey-neglect, Drag in their train, as all might expect, All sorts of trouble to fret away life-But worst of the whole, an unhappy wife

Many estates are lest in the getting, Since men have forsaken hewing and splitting, And women their sewing and knitting.

> A makerel sky-The wind will be high. Then bring in the grain, Close by there is sain.

A smoky chiney may be oured A farmer's wife, like cream or curd-Is to be seen but seldom heard.

If you would thrive Be up by five ; For there is health And certain wealth, when at the plow, Or milking cow.

A farmer at home should be found, And often looking at his ground-Inspecting fields, repairing fence-For dollars come by saving pence.

Clear the soil from moles and slugs, Prune the trees-keep of the bugs, Then fruits and melons, rich and fair, Will recompense for all your care.

Rutabaga, carrots, and beets, Improve the character of meats : They make good beef, and quicker too, Than any other feed will do.

At the farmer's cost

Is an early frost. Harvest in saason

Of all the crops a farmer raises, Or capital employs, None bring such comforts and such praises, As a crop of girls and boys.

VARIOUS ITEMS - A Virginia farmer says that, with sheep and clover, he can make any land productive, unless it has the barrenness of the sands of LARGE STOCK FROM WHICH TO SECLECT. Sahara. Some farmers commence business in the morning in such a burry that night overtakes them before they have determined what to do first.

The impression, somewhat prevalent, that soft corn is better for fattening stock than the matured portion has nothing in nature to support it.

Working horses when in the stable, are better without a blanket than with it. When driven hard and standing out, the blanket should be used Swinging a hat or screaming at a runaway horse is about as sensible as would be the application of burning straw to a burning building Somebody has denominated Indian corn the great farm lever. It is certainly a useful product, but not quite so good for bread as wheat, to a Northern It is commended by some that following corn with oats or barley, and then with wheat, is not in any sense a rotation, as all these belong to the same It is said the best strawberry plants come from the third and fourth sets of runners, and that the BREAKFAST SHAWLS, first sets of runners, and that the first and second sets should be cut off. When the labors of the day are past, let
