DIVORCES -No less than seventy-five appli cations for divorce are pending before the courts in Philadelphia, made by parties who wish to ent in twaia "the silken tie which binds two (un)willing hearts." What a volume of domestic history would these cases reveal, if it could be written by the impartial pen of truth !

A GOOD IDEA.-It is made a rule in the Western Virginia regiments to publish the names of all deserters, with a full description of each, in the Wheeling papers, and so well does the thing work that the moment the delinquents show themselves where they are known they are picked up. If a similar course were adopted with the deserters from our regiments there would not be so many of them now at large.

EXAMINATIONS BEFORE SUBGEON WILSON, for exemption from the draft, are only made when on special order from Adjutant General Thomas We publish on our fourth page to day, a full list of those exempted by Surgeon Wilson. This list embraces a large number of men who were drafted in various parts of the State, and must prove highly interesting as a record to protect those exempted from future proceedings of the draft.

SANFORD'S OPERA HOUSE .--- Mr. S. has kept pace with his card to the public in presenting novelty. Nightly changes are given and of a first class character. Nothing is more acceptable than Sanford's entertainments, and as long as his establishment is kept in the respectable manner it is at present, we can spend our eventhe city, as heretofore. THE STYLE TO TALK OF A SOLDIBE .- Yesterday-two officers of the army from the scuth-west, were in earnest conversation, discussing the merits of various men in command in that army, when the name of Col. Hambright, (now acting Brigadier General,) of the 79th regiment P. V., was mentioned. "I think he is an odd man," observed one of these officers; "he lacks courtesy, and don't appear to care for the association of men of his rank. We have invited him to our evening social reunions, but he nevers come, and when any of his brother officers called on him, he always appeared too busy or too rude to receive or entertain friends. Other officers spend their time agreeably together, visit the people among whom they are located, and manage to have a good time generally. But Hambright is constantly playing soldier, and thereby fails to make friend among officers his inferiors or his equals in rank. There is no harm in mentioning this much of a of another. RIOT IN CAMP CURTIN .- Attempt to Resist the Provost Guard-Distruction of Property, and an Effort made to Fire the Barracks .- The recruits brought to this city from Carlisle, and those which were gathered up "loose" in our streets when taken back to Camp Curtin on Monday, after their riotous conduct at the Railroad depot, exhibited every disposition to create a disturbance and resist the Provost Guard, while in the discharge of their duty. During Monday night, these recruits conducted themselves in a most shameful manner. Yesterday morning they roamed over Camp Curtin, threatening those they mot with violence, and declaring general revenge against that portion of the Provost Guard then on duty One of these recruits, more desperate than the others, made violent assault on one of the Guard, and when an attampt was made to arrest the desperado, his companions to the number of nearly three ing influence and healing power. For several years I was afflicted with dyspepsia, and during hundred rushed to his rescue. At this juncture the Provost Guard issued from their quarters, charged on the rioters, put them to flight, and and distressing disease, and at the same time took them prisoners. The recruits then entered also cured me of a running scrofula, which had the Barracks, destroyed the beds and bedding in that establishment, and made several efforts to fire the buildings. This was finally prevented by the Guard, and thereby much valuable property saved for the Government.

A more desperate set of blackguards neve disgraced the name of man or soldier, that these recruits, and the officers in the regular army who are expected to lead them into battle, will be more in danger of death at their hands than from the rebel foe.

Yesterday these desperadoes left for Washington. We expect to hear from them in some desperate act in that city, unless some officer of the law is compelled to shoot them on the road.
