

Daily Telegraph

HARRISBURG, PA.

Monday Evening, December 22, 1862.

HON. J. K. MOOREHEAD.

There is no pleasure of all the present duties which a journalist has to perform, equal to that, in our opinion, of paying a just tribute of respect to a faithful public servant or a patriotic citizen.

At this time, while referring to General Moorehead, we desire more particularly to call attention to the fact of his great services to the sick and wounded soldiers, citizens of Pennsylvania, who are inmates of the hospitals in the vicinity of Washington.

—Pennsylvania is proud of the services which Gen. Moorehead while in Congress has rendered the entire State. While those services were great and invaluable, the duty which he is discharging to the sick and wounded soldiers will win him equal credit and gratitude among the masses of the old Keystone State.

CHANGES IN THE CABINET.

With the whole country, wherever the telegraph could transmit the tidings, Harrisburg has been intensively with the information that important changes were to be made in the Cabinet—that individual members had resigned—that in fact, the President had determined to reconstruct his body of legal advisers, and call in others on whom he could rely with more faith than it has been possible for him to do on those by whom he is now surrounded.

And yet, while we thus point to the resignation of Cabinet officers, and seek to treat such changes as of no particular importance in comparison to the merits of our cause, one thing must be remembered. The people of the loyal States will have to unite—they must form a solid Union, based on a purpose to put down the rebellion, or the leaders of that rebellion will conquer and hold as dependents every free commonwealth in the Union.

His opinion in the loyal States, to the bickering, the distrust, the jealousies, and the opposition of professed loyal men to the government.

Whatever may be the changes in the Cabinet, it must not alter our devotion to the country. It is the cause of the Government and not the individuals representing that government, to which we owe allegiance.

A LESSON ON INDEPENDENCE.

One of the best lessons on the subject of independence which has yet been taught the Republic, is that which is inculcated by the present action of Hon. Joseph Bailey, a member of Congress from this State.

This is a lesson to honest men. A lesson alike to ourselves and to our Republican brethren in Bailey's district. In good faith, the loyal men of that district voted for Bailey in opposition to Glosbrenner.

THE UNION MOVEMENT IN TENNESSEE.

The growth of Union sentiment in Tennessee is receiving a decided impetus in consequence of the order by Governor Johnson, for an election of Representatives in Congress, from the Nashville and Memphis Congressional Districts.

UNION MASS CONVENTION!! Pursuant to a resolution adopted by a meeting of the citizens of Hardeman county, a Mass Convention of the citizens of the 10th Congressional District is hereby called, to be held at Bolivar, December 16th, to nominate a candidate to represent the 10th District in the present Congress of the United States.

THE Advanced Value of Gold. Taxes for the Creation of a Sinking Fund, are more injurious to a People, than Taxation for any other object.

The taxes a man pays toward the interest on government loans, he ordinarily is compensated for, by the increase of the national capital which the loans produce, as we have already shown; but the taxes which he pays towards a sinking fund, are injurious, not only in themselves, but in diminishing the national capital.

THE GRIFFIN From the Army of the Potomac. THE BATTLE OF FREDERICKSBURG.

Despatch from Gen. Burnside to Gen. Halleck. PARTICULARS OF THE ENGAGEMENT. 1,152 Killed, 9,000 Wounded and 900 Taken Prisoners.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, December 19. To Major General H. W. Halleck, General-in-Chief U. S. A., Washington.

General—I have the honor to offer the following reasons for moving the Army of the Potomac across the Rappahannock sooner than was anticipated by the President, Secretary of War or yourself, and for crossing at a point different from the one indicated to you at our last meeting at the President's:

During my preparations for crossing at the place I had first selected, I discovered that the enemy had thrown a large portion of his force down the river and elsewhere, thus weakening his defences in front; and I also thought I discovered that he did not anticipate the crossing of our whole force at Fredericksburg, and hoped by rapidly throwing the whole command over that place to separate, by a vigorous attack, the forces of the enemy on the river below from the forces behind and on the crest, and in the rear of the town, in which case we could fight him with great advantage in our favor.

How near we came to accomplishing our object future reports will show. But for the fog and unexpected and unavoidable delay of building the bridges, which gave the enemy twenty-four hours more to concentrate his forces in his strong positions, we would almost certainly have succeeded, in which case the battle would have been, in my opinion, far more decisive than if we had crossed at the places first selected; as it was, we came very near success.

Falling in accomplishing the main object, we remained in order of battle two days, long enough to decide that the enemy would not come out of his strongholds to fight us with his infantry, after which we recrossed to this side of the river unmolested, without the loss of men and property.

As the day broke our long lines of troops were seen marching to their different positions as if going on parade. Not the least demoralization or disorganization existed.

To the brave officers and soldiers who accomplished the feat of thus recrossing in the face of the enemy, I owe everything. For the failure in the attack I am responsible, as the extreme gallantry, courage and endurance shown by them was never excelled, and would have carried the points had it been possible.

To the families and friends of the dead I can only offer my heartfelt sympathy, but for the wounded I can offer my earnest prayers for their comfort and final recovery.

FROM HAVANA. NEW YORK, Dec. 22. The steamship Union arrived this morning from Havana. On the 15th she left the U. S. steamer Wachusett and Sonora, of admiral Wilkes' squadron, at Havana—all were well.

FROM WASHINGTON. NO CHANGES IN THE CABINET. NEW YORK, Dec. 22. A special despatch from Washington states that there will be no change in the Cabinet, that all who sent in their resignations will withdraw them.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKETS. NEW YORK, Dec. 22. Stocks better, except government securities. Chicago and Rock Island $14; Illinois Central bonds $110; Michigan Southern $41; New York Central $1.02 1/2; Pennsylvania Railroad $110; Reading 75; Milwaukee and Mississippi 75; gold 3 3/4; Treasury notes $1 00 1/2; coupon 1861 $1 02 1/2; demand notes $1 27.

Interesting from the Southwest. The Guerrillas Again at Their Work of Railroad Destruction. Movements of the Rebels in Tennessee. Another Rebel Railroad Raid—An Attack on Trenton, Tenn.

CAIRO, Dec. 20. A body of rebel cavalry, variously estimated at from two thousand to eight thousand, made a raid on the railroad, three miles this side of Jackson, Tenn., yesterday morning. After firing into a train they tore up the track for a considerable distance, and burned a long trestle work.

The operator at Trenton this evening reports an attack on that place. There has even been considerable excitement at Columbus in anticipation of a rebel visit to that place. CAIRO, Dec. 21, 1862—We are still in doubt regarding the extent of injuries done to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. The rebels first made a break this side of Jackson, and then moved this way, so there is no chance to hear from the territory passed over. They have taken Carroll Station, Humboldt, Trenton, Kenton, and at last accounts were moving on Union City.

At Trenton large quantities of cotton at the station house and other property was burned, and at Kenton two locomotives and some cars. A passenger train from Columbus, on Friday, was fired into, but got through to Jackson, and was the last train that passed over the road. The strength of the rebels is not yet known, nor do we yet know the commander. Cheat-ham, Morgan and Forrest are conjectured.

There is a great panic at Hickman for fear the rebels will make a dash at that place. It is reported here to-night that the rebels have retaken Holly Springs, but nothing reliable has been received. The steamer Millboy, while taking cotton at Commerce, Miss., on Wednesday last, was surprised by Blythe's rebel cavalry and fired upon. Three persons were killed. The Millboy returned to Helena and reported the facts.

The gunboat Juliet and transport City Bell, with detachments of the Eleventh and Forty-seventh Indiana were dispatched to Commerce, where they arrived on Thursday night, and burnt the town and plantations for five miles around. Ten prisoners were taken.

MATTERS IN THE VICINITY OF NASHVILLE—THE RECENT DISASTROUS AFFAIR AT HARTSVILLE, Dec. 21. NASHVILLE, Dec. 21. General Van Cleave's division had a brisk skirmish with the enemy to-day. The rebel cavalry force, supported by four pieces of artillery, reconnoitered General Van Cleave's position, but were driven off after the exchange of a few shots.

We have nothing late in reference to rebel movements. Confirmation is received of the reports of the reinforcements of the rebels by Van Dorn. Charges have been preferred against General Schoepflin by General Gilbert and Colonel Canby.

The official report of the Hartsville affair says we lost forty-five killed and one hundred wounded, and buried fifteen rebels, three of them officers. Of three hundred arms captured, three-fourths had never been fired.

The average number of cartridges missing from the cartridge boxes was six. General Rosecrans says this accounts for the disaster. Twenty rebels in Union uniforms attacked General Negley's body guard to-day, but were whipped and dispersed.

A Nashville lady, going on a day of truce to Murfreesboro, was discovered with a large amount of contraband goods on her person. Captured letters—some of the fact that the Nashville Union newspaper is owned partly by rebels in the southern army, and that the profits of the government printing done in that office go to the benefit of the rebels.

Bragg's General Order No. 10 states that the country for miles around the military stations is full of officers and soldiers, visiting, loitering, and marauding. The railroad bridge over the Tennessee is completed, and the trains run through on all the branches of the Nashville and Chattanooga road.

Colonel Quarrier, commanding the Tennessee brigade at Fort Hudson, Louisiana, makes an appeal for clothing, which is published in the Banner. He says the troops are much in need of blankets, shirts, socks, shoes and overcoats, and an appeal is made to the people of Tennessee to do all they can by individual efforts to supply the deficiencies. It says:—"One word, Tennesseeans, for the gallant Seventh Texas. There are few left; the rest are buried at Fort Donelson. They died defending our soil and homes."

An editorial in the Banner urges the Congressional committee to take charge of the publication of all letters of Yankee soldiers captured, to show the divided world that they who have proved themselves the most brutal, lying and tyrannical, are sometimes the most sensual, basest, obscene, illiterate people of modern times.

The Richmond Dispatch of the 16th says the rebel loss at Fredericksburg was from six hundred to one thousand killed and wounded. The Examiner says, summing up the recent fight: "Our right wing drove the enemy back, killing three to one, and at night we held the ground occupied by the enemy's batteries in the morning." It says Longstreet's victory was more complete; he drove the enemy into the streets of Fredericksburg, killing five to one.

The Richmond Dispatch says Sigel has not more than fifteen thousand raw levies. MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH. PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22.
