An APPEAL FOR BREAD .- The following appeal addressed to the Irish of America, must find its way to other hearts besides these throbbing with Irish blood. It is an appeal to the humane—a holy, tender and pitiful cry which cannot fail to touch all who read it with sympathy, love and charity. We commend it to all our readers. The letter was addressed to the editor of the Boston Pitot, from which paper Brass, manufacture of, not otherwise we transfer it to our own columns for the per Bridges on, gross receipts for tolls... cusal and action of our own readers :

This teaching is in open scandalous contradiction to that of Christ, who fed the people before instructing 12 auctioneers at them saying: "I have pity on the people, be-cause they have nothing to eat." To this I mainly attribute the cowardice that has degraded our broken-hearted count ymen. Had it not been for this mean teaching, and mean submission, the spite ul finatical bigot, Peel, and the anile representative of Saxoudom, Carlisle, would never dare to tiot in scoundrelism and inhumanity over prostrate, famine stricken Ireland. Had not this teaching emasculated Ireland, I need not, in this darkest hour of her. distrees, be tearing off the rags, and exposing ier sores to the gaze of America.

I would, within the last twelve months, have made a very simple remedial application to the deceased condition of Ireland, by having a statement of her grievauces, and of the heartless inlifference of her robber tyrants, laid before Bona parte and the other Catholic rulers and people of Europe; but in this (owing to this servite teaching) I was disappointed, not being able to procure a few fearless, bold men to go with me on the deputation. I am satisfied this course of action would raise a cry of indignation throughout Europe against our murderous rulers that would bring matters to some definite issue, and save Ireland from inevitable destruction. Why would England uphold Draconian land ode, discourage commerce, trade and agricul-ture, but in order to carry out this d-struction and to extirpate (like vermin) the old Celtic race from off the island?—"Penfide Athion" is, at the present hour, engaged in this nefarious under-taking, and I would emphatically ask, will our blood and kindred breathing the odor of free Democratic America, submit to this? I solemnly declare I would somer get a cheering response to this question than all the gold of California. to this question than all the gold of California.
