-The Monitor denounced these sentiments as anti-Democratic. Thus far it was right, because modern Democracy only means oppression

One of the instructive lessons of the war is that taught by the officers and men of the 122d Begiment, P. V., to the authorities of Lancaster city. The Mayor of Lancaster, with a majority of the "city fathers," are among those who do not hesitate to declare that this war is a crusade against the rights and the property of the people of the South. George Sanderson, the Mayor, through the columns of his paper, the Intelligencer, has made use of argument against the war for the Union and the Constitution, which any editor in the south would have blushed to print in favor of treason. He has used the columns of his paper to defend Vallandigham, and traduce such veteran statesmen as Thaddeus Stevens-he has made a mockery of freedom and deified slavery-and like him, the other members of the city government of Lancaster have made every occasion serve to assail the men who are perilling life and limb, as either "damaed abolitionists," or "traitors worse than Jeff Davis himself." Yet these men would come forth, with their hypocritical hearts in their hands, to welcome the boys who have stood on fields of blood in defence of the government. The spectacle would have indeed The Union Lesgue, Mayor and City Council of Reading, with the officers of Berks county. have been making preparations to receive the One Hundred and Twenty eighth Penhsylvania Regiment on their return from the war, and the President of Common Council appointed J. We want our friends, the loval soldiers now in Harrisburg, to think of these facts, and then their indignation against that miserable publication will be turned to scorn and contempt.
