HARRISBURG, PA.

Wednesday Evening, May 20, 1863.

TOWN AND COUNTRY.

We refer our readers to the list of new music, in our advertising columns, just received at Kloche's Music store, 93 Market street.

Acquitted.—It will be remembered that E L. Waterbury, a private in his father's company, Capt. I. S. Waterbury, now in the service at Beaufort, South Carolina, was charged with having been concerned in an act of incendiarism which occurred at Camp Curtin some time since. Private Waterbury was tried at Fort McHenry, on this charge, and fully acquitted. He was then promptly released, and is now in this city, on his way to join his company in South Carolina. We congratulate him on his vindication, and trust that he will now give additional evidence of his capacity as a soldier and devotion as a patriot.

The Condition of the Side Walks.—It is time that the police took some notice of the condition of the side-walks. The large crowd of soldiers and strangers now in the city, renders it almost impossible to "navigate" along Market or Second streets, and when this fact is added to the lumber obstructions in the shape of boxes and other material, which many of our merchants persist in keeping on the side-walks, the pedestrian has as much as he can do to pass over any of our thoroughfares, either with safety or dispatch, without danger to life and limb. The side-walks are intended for the accommodation of the great public. They should be kept entirely clear of all obstructions, whether of boxes or bales of goods on exhibition, or crowds of idlers. The condition of the side-walks referred to is decidedly intolerable.

Lancaster County.—Termination of a Breach of Promise.—We learn from the Mount Joy Herald, that a few years since a lady brought suit against Andrew Greider, of West Hempfield township, for a breach of promise, and recovered $1,000 damages. A few months ago the lady became a member of the German Baptist Church, and believing that the claim was unjust, or suffering some "compunctions of conscience," refunded the money to Mr. Greider.——Distressing Accident.—On Wednesday last, a young man, son of Michael Brady, of the borough of Marietta, while endeavoring to get on a car when in motion, fell and had his leg so badly injured that amputation was necessary.——Suicide.—On the 14th inst., a man by the name of David Doutrich of this county, was found dead hanging on a bedstead post, in the borough of Adamstown.

The Nine Months' Men are without doubt, the most gallant set of men in the Union. To see them in Camp Curtin, to notice them on our streets, is sufficient to impress us with their character as men and their bearing as soldiers. Talk of such a people not being able to suppress the rebellion of the slave drivers! Talk of such men submitting to anything but unconditional surrender on the part of those who are in rebellion! Talk of them being satisfied with anything but the full acknowledgment and establishment of the authority of the Government! The idea is absurd. But one sentiment pervades these battalions. They will fight to the bitter end for the suppression of this rebellion and the enforcement of the laws. No other [illegible] enters their minds. They discuss no other idea [illegible] are to the local press at home. And in the letters are emphatic in their explanations above all, they expect and demand of those at home, while they fight who have remained at [illegible] be disappointed in the field. Let them not [illegible] in the Union. Sustaining them will sustain us. Saving them will save us.

The Lancaster County Regiment.—The circumstances attending the reception of the Lancaster County Regiment, of which Emelin Franklin was Colonel, show the depth of the indignation entertained by the people against the copperheads. The Loyal League of Lancaster city had made every arrangement to receive their brave fellow citizens, the programme adopted by that body contemplating a participation in those proceedings of every loyal man in Lancaster. After these preparations had been made, the copperhead mayor of Lancaster and the copperheads in the city councils attempted to monopolize the ceremonies, by appointing a set of the most obnoxious men in that city to act in conjunction with the League. The whole affair was concocted by the copperheads to create confusion, and when the League resisted the attempt, the copperheads gained one point, because that resistance produced trouble. In the face of the insult by the councils of Lancaster, Colonel Franklin's regiment refused a reception at the hands of the corporation, and accepted that of the Patriot Daughters of that city. This was tantamount to a rebuke of copperheadism, and hence the attempts of the Lancaster Intelligencer, in which the Tory Organ joins, to create the impression that the loyal men of Lancaster made the reception of the regiment in question a political matter.

—The fact is, that the soldiers have repudiated the copperheads. There is no difference between a copperhead devoted to his party and a rebel armed for the success of treason. If any difference exists, it is in favor of the rebel who is the bravest and the best man of the two. The Lancaster county boys knew this, and therefore refused the reception of the copperhead authorities. But the reception which that regiment received at the hands of the loyal people of that city, was in all respects worthy of the men whom it was designed to honor, and the wretches whom it was intended, and from all accounts did, so overwhelmingly rebuke.

Saw Mill Burned.—The saw mill of Wilson Hoover, situate on Clearfield creek, [illegible] miles east of the town of Clearfield, was entirely consumed by fire, on the 12th inst. The fire was the work of an incendiary.

Arrival of Released Union Prisoners.—A large number of Union prisoners, taken at the last battle of Fredericksburg and conveyed to Richmond, where they suffered all the horrors of chivalric treatment peculiar to the natural allies of the copperheads, arrived in this city yesterday and last night. These men were paroled and exchanged within a few days, and belong, the greater portion of them, to the nine months' regiments now awaiting pay and to be mustered out at Camp Curtin.

We understand, from one of these men, that the treatment of the Union prisoners was horrible. Many of these were driven along the road like beasts; those with wounds, and unable to travel as fast as a rebel cavalry man, were beaten over the head, and other poor fellows actually sabred on the highway. From the same men, we also hear, that the slaughter of the rebels by Hooker, exceeded anything that has ever yet occurred. This is what exasperated the rebels toward the Union prisoners. The fact of their losses—the destruction of commissary stores by Gen. Stoneman, and the general demoralization of the whole rebel army was such as to make the rebels act more like madmen than like soldiers.

Sword Presentation.—The non commissioned officers and privates of the Dauphin County Regiment, (127th Penna. Vol.,) signified their esteem for Lieut. Colonel H. C. Alleman, by presenting him with one of the most magnificent swords ever manufactured in this country. The presentation took place at Camp Curtin, yesterday afternoon, in the presence of the Regiment, and a large assemblage of the personal friends of those engaged as the doners and donee on the occasion.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SWORD.

Hilt, surmounted with the figure of an Eagle, pluming its wings for flight, carved in gold, with eyes of rubies—handle of solid silver, on one side a fac simile of the figure of Freedom made to adorn the dome of the National Capital—the opposite elaborately carved with shield, on which rests a neatly raised sword. The Guard is carved and embossed, with an Eagle grasping in its talons a rattlesnake writhing in the agonies of death—the whole surrounded with a graceful scroll, in which appear the letters U. S.

The Scabbard is a work of art itself. The rings with which the scabbard is to be attached to the belt are of solid gold—the work surrounding the portion of scabbard which holds these rings, represents military emblems and accoutrements of ancient and modern use. On one side of the scabbard, which is of steel, heavily gold plated, is a circle in imitation of gold lace, in which appear the words:

PRESENTED TO LIEUT. COL. H. C. ALLEMAN
By the non-commissioned Officers and Privates of the 127th Reg. P. V.,
AS A TOKEN OF ESTEEM.

On the reverse of the scabbard, in scroll, appears the letter A, formed of clusters of brilliants.

The Blade is of the finest and purest spring steel, with the name Lieut. Col. H. C. Alleman, on one side, and on the reverse Liberty, E Pluribus Unum!

THE PRESENTATION.

After the men had been drawn in line, Lieut. Col. Alleman was then only apprised of what was to follow, by being summoned to the centre, where Joshua M. Wiestling, Esq., in the name of the non-commissioned officers and privates of the 127th, thus addressed him:

Lieut. Col. Alleman:—The mission of the 127th Regiment has been fulfilled. Its acts must now pass into history, adding new lustre to pages already bright with the record of the daring deeds of the American soldiery. That all connected with the regiment have passed through their period of enlistment with a fidelity to duty and a patriotic devotion to the cause of our country, let the graves of its departed heroes bear lasting witness. By patient endurance of all the the hardships and exposures of the camp as well as by the unflinching bravery upon the field of battle, the regiment richly deserved and gratefully received the commendation of your commanders and the enthusiastic approval of your friends Thus, too, has been won for officers and men an enviable place upon the scroll of fame. That your fellow citizens are conscious of your courage and efficiency, I can do no better than recall to your mind the warm reception with which the regiment was welcomed to this Capital city. After striving faithfully to elevate the bespangled flag already too long trailing shamefully in the dust, you have returned to the peaceful valley of your own Susquehanna. Far from the field of carnage the members of this regiment are about to separate. Before doing so they desire to [illegible] to you, sir, some expression of their esteem, given [illegible]ence has shown that the full discharge Exper[illegible]on the part of soldiers depends very of duty u[illegible] the earnest and faithful efforts of much upon [illegible]ommand; there must be a confidence of the officers in co[illegible]s of action as officers and centr[illegible]tion and unity of action as officers and men, and whilst every member of the regiment deserves lasting praise, yet the regiment itself are convinced that to you in no small measure are convinced that to you in no small measure do they owe their efficiency and success. In connection with the gall[illegible]nt Col. Jennings, you have watched over these m[illegible] dispute, whilst and attention which none da[illegible]ve been true in the terrors of the battle you h[illegible] you once to yourself and State. And whethe[illegible]rilled more go forth to do battle for our imp[illegible]nd Union or fill some other place of trust a[illegible] honor, believe me I but speak the sentiment of your men when I bid you a heartfelt God-speed. Appreciating your services, your friends, non-commissioned officers and men of this regiment are desirous of giving you some token of their esteem. My duty this day is a pleasant one. I have been requested to present to you in behalf of the regiment, this beautiful Sword. Preserve it with a pride which the devotion of the donors has a right to expect. They present it to you as an evidence of their high regard for you as a gentleman and a soldier. May it ever in the future serve to call up pleasant memories and the thought of the givers make the current of your life run tranquilly along. This is indeed a green spot in your career. Whether upon the field of strife you unsheath this beautiful sword to pluck new laurels in martial combat, or in the more quiet walks of civil life you hold it the precious token and reward of your past achievements, you will never fail to remember that the friendly regard which prompted its presentation is indeed precious. Let this assurance give you courage and hope in the great conflict of life. These brave men earnestly desire your welfare, and will rejoice at your prosperity. In conclusion, permit me to present you this implement of war. I need not fear that you will ever dishonor it or prove yourself unworthy of the high regard this day shown you.

LIEUT. COL. ALLEMAN'S REPLY.

Lieut. Col. Alleman, evidently embarrassed by the surprise of the whole affair, thus replied:

I thank you, sir, for the handsome compliment which you so kindly paid me, and I am exceedingly [illegible]d with the highly commendatory manner in which you have so justly spoken of the regiment. I humbly [illegible] myself unworthy [illegible] performance. When I entered the service of my country, it was with a firm determination to do a soldier's duty, regardless of consequences. The errors which I have committed, I can assure you, sir, were of the head and not of the heart.

Soldiers of the 127th regiment! I am free to confess my inability to give expression to my feelings at this magnanimous act of your partiality and generosity. The manner, the object and the time of the presentation of this beautiful memento, make the present the proudest moment of my life—furnishing me with an additional proof of your confidence, your support and your esteem. There is nothing so gratifying to the feelings of an officer as a knowledge of the fact that he has satisfied the expectations and earned the respect and good will of his command—and of this you have given me repeated assurances. The pleasantest recollections of my life will be of my associations with you. Together we have endured the privations and the hardships of the bivouac, and together we have braved the dangers of the battle field. My experience with you makes me proud of the 127th regiment. You have proved yourselves good soldiers, unfaltering patriots and gallant heroes, and have made a martial record which has called forth the unqualified approval of your fellow citizens, the gratitude of your country, and which will insure you a bright spot, emblazoned with deeds of fortitude, valor and heroism, upon the broad pages of the history of this unholy rebellion. You have performed your duty nobly, you have performed it faithfully, and you performed it gallantly.

Accept my sincere thanks for this magnificent testimonial of your friendship, and rest assured it shall never be dishonored or disgraced while I have a hand to use in its protection. It will always recall to my memory the pleasant reminiscences of by-gone days, and the happy satisfaction of your favorable opinion.

—We must add our own testimony to that so nobly recorded by the men of the gallant 127th, in favor of Lieut. Col. Alleman. He has proved a faithful and gallant soldier, and we trust that the day is not far distant when other honors will be added to those which he so fairly won, while facing danger and death in defence of his country.

The Bravery of Pennsylvania Surgeons.—A letter in the Smyrna Times, one of the most influential journals in the State of Delaware, written by the Surgeon in Chief and Medical Director Third Division, Eleventh Army Corps, E. D. Dailey, contains among other important matter, the following highly complimentary notice of several of our Pennsylvania Surgeons:

While we were engaged in dressing wounds, the rebels shelled our position, forcing us to change ground. All the surgeons left me except Surg. F. Pillihcody, 74th Penna., Assistant Surg. Schultz, 75th Penna., and Surg. VanAernam, of a New York regiment.

During the day we were again shelled out; and although Dr. Pillihcody was engaged in amputating an arm, assisted by Dr. Schultz, and the shells falling and exploding thickly around us, they coolly performed their duty and finished their work as well as though at home. Such coolness under fire, and a terrific fire, as was displayed by these gentlemen I have never seen surpassed, if equalled.

Asst. Surg. Schultz referred to above, was for six months in charge of the Cotton Factory Hospital, where he laid the foundation of the reputation which he is described as having thus gloriously crowned. He is an honor to the profession and the State he represents.

Highly Important Announcement.—Letter from District Attorney Herr.—The following note from the able and indefatigable District Attorney of Dauphin county, will be read with pleasure by all who have at heart the reputation of the city and county, as well as the interests of the people at large:

DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S OFFICE,
Harrisburg, May 20, 1863.

Editor of Telegraph:—I have reason to believe that a number of persons have obtained license to keep Lager Beer establishments, who are not citizens of the United States. The law is imperative on this point and forbids the granting of license to such individuals. If they are unwilling to renounce all allegiance to foreign governments, they ought not to be placed on the same footing with those who have abjured fealty to other powers. I, therefore, ask our citizens to give me information of any such case of which they may have a knowledge, and the license shall be revoked.

The great increase of these houses in our midst is an evil which should be checked if possible. If respectable citizens, knowing that a party intends to apply for such a license, will file a protest in my office against the granting of the license, the proper officer will in that event feel himself justified in refusing it and will take the responsibility of doing so.

And in all cases where parties who now have license should neglect to keep an orderly house, if that fact is made known to me I will see that on a renewal of their applications they will be rejected. A. J. HERR, District Attorney.
