HARRISBURG, PA

Thursday Evening, May 28, 1963. Let the Christian Preacher Preach Loy-

The Marshals appointed to conduct the proceedings of the draft, in conjunction with the Commissioners and Surgeons to act for the same purpose, are fast organizing the districts in which they are to operate. While these officers are thus engaged, the secret enemies of the Republic, the politicians and demagogues who have been embarrassing the Government ever since the rebellion was precipitated, are also at since the rebellion was precipitated, are also at Mr. Lincoln; [applause;] that the Provost Marwork. The object of these latter parties is to shals may find their offices less convenient than lucrarender the Administration, which is compelled tive, &c to enforce stern laws, odious. In many portions of the country this can easily be done, simply because there are localities where the people have not felt the burdens of the war or seen the importance of the stake involved in this conflict. Such as these love their country, because they have become prosperous, fat, wealthy and influential under its protection. They have no idea that anything can occur to disturb such a condition in their affairs; and will regard the first operation of the law which interferes with these relations as an innovation, as an infringement of their rights, as a high handed outrage, committed by a tyrannical, partisan Government. It is for such as these that the miserable politicians who now form the opposing faction to the Government in the North, are lying in walt. The first murmur of North, are lying in wait. The first murmur of seize the great champion of constitutional rights, C dissatisfaction will be augmented and encour. L Vallandigham—[cheers for Vallaudigham] aged; the first angry word against the Government will be applauded; the first blow struck at the officers delegated to enforce the draft, will be supported by a thousand coward arms, until the freesy of the people has been aroused, and an opposition created which only bloodshed can counteract. If one man be taken from a family by the draft, these miserable politicians will not rest satisfied until they have infused enmity against the Government into the bosoms of those who remain. If one son fall on the battle field, thus taken, his death will be charged to those in power. If the father is slain, the children will be reared to hate the Government as the author of their orphanage. If material aid is forced from the unwilling, the proceeding will be published as a vile addition to the other tyrannies of the Administration. And thus the miserable demagogues to whom we refer, will make capital for their party, while they are kindling flames by which to light themselves and their country

The opposing journals to the partisans who are thus about to engage, have not the power to arrest the evil. Opposition from leading loyal men would only be distorted to increase the fury of the ignorant. The mob once enraged, it is past all control, and will be swayed by no influence which appeals to its judgment. The power to direct the masses from the evil of those in whom they have been taught for long years to repose a blind confidence, must issue from other than political sources, must be created by a devotion to a higher cause even than that of the country. That power is vested in the pure, patriotic, noble and generous men who now occupy the pulpit of the loyal States. To these the Gov erment must now look for a support which it cannot receive from any other quarter, and on the action of the loyal clergymen of the land, we must depend for the influence and the argument necessary to counteract the evil which is now strengthening to damage the cause of conliberty. duty, now, to preach implicit obedience to the law. To urge men not merely to respect the law by standing aloof from its violation, but to THE REASON WHY AND HOW THE SOLDIERS DE insist that it is the duty of all to give the law practical force and effect. Such admonition coming from the pulpit, would have more influence than if it came from the press. Such warning, falling from the lips of a patriotic preacher, would be of more potential force than kindly and warmly received by their friends if it issued from the mouth of the mere politician. The spirit and temper of the recent Vallandigham meeting in New York can be understood as no more than those which are daily promulgated through the columns of the Tory Organ: Mr. J. A. McMasters, recently of Fort Lafayette, said:

North; that those liberties must be preserved by organization; that those organizations ought to be of a military character, with commissions from Gov. Seymour."

A Mr. Tharin, southern rebel from Alabama, probably visiting the North as a spy, and receiving much attention from the Vallandigham Democracy of New York, proclaimed-

"That the liberties of the North are lost, and that we should redrem them as our fathers did; that he impeached Mr. Lincoln [cries of "hang him"] before that American citizenship which he had outraged, and in the name of Washington, whose seat he polluted; that in the name of C. contest for State, legislative and judicial officers next fall. THREE GOVERNORS and three distinct sets of State officers will be elected on the 28th inst., in what was, three years ago, known and recognized as the Commonwealth of Virginia. The new State, which has been clipped from the proportions of the Old Dominion, as a punishment for her rebellious practices, comes into the Union on an equal footing with the elder sisters, on the 19th of June next; and as a preparatory act she will choose her State officers to day, Thursday. She has already an unconditiona Union ticket in the field for State officers.

The loyal citizens of the eastern shore have also brought forward a ticket for the government of the old State, which will be voted for in the counties of Alexandria, Norfolk, Nansemond Accomac, Northampton and Princess Ann. The centre and southern portions of the State, which are under the dominion of J.fl. Davis, will likewise hold their canvass at the sam time, and elect their own Governor, to succeed
