

EXTENSION OF TIME FOR HOLDING THE UNION STATE CONVENTION.

To the Editors of the Telegraph: PHILADELPHIA, June 24, 1863.

At a meeting of the Union State Central Committee, held in this city to day, it was resolved to extend the time for holding the Union State Convention at Pittsburg, from July 1st to August 5th.

The following is the resolution adopted, providing for this extension:

Resolved, That in the present emergency, while many delegates to the Union State Convention are engaged in the military service, and cannot be present at the meeting appointed to be held at Pittsburg on the 1st of July next, it is deemed expedient to postpone the Convention until Wednesday, the 5th day of August next, at 11 o'clock, A. M., and it is hereby postponed until that time.

Editors of the different Union newspapers throughout the Commonwealth, will please give this notice an insertion in their columns. P. FRAMER SMITH, Chairman pro tem. Geo. W. HAMMESBERT, Secretary.

THE SITUATION.

Long before the sun rose in splendor this morning, a scene of bustle, excitement and confusion commenced, such as has never before been witnessed in the capital of Pennsylvania. During the night, troops were hurried over the river. Regiment followed regiment, until this morning, when our streets were comparatively cleared of soldiers, except those which reached the city by the regular morning and noon trains. But the excitement, apart from the movement of troops, was that which attended the ingress and egress of people who came from the Cumberland side of the river, and who passed through the city, hurrying to a place of safety with all that was dear and valuable to them. Every machine on wheels capable of hauling a load was brought into requisition. These came wheeling and trundling along, each laden to the top—some with grain, household effects and household gods—others with store goods, machinery, tools, and, in fact, all that was valuable and movable. Following these came other vehicles, filled with women and children—then came men and boys mounted on horses driving before them cows and sheep. The scene was at once exciting and pitiful. It came to us as the first hot breath of war. It admonished us that the foe was indeed approaching, and as the carnival moved through our streets its magnitude and numbers were increased by accessions of goods and individuals from Harrisburg, who moved off with the train, intent also on flight and safety. From all accounts that we can gather, we learn that the farmers in the Cumberland valley have resolved to leave nothing valuable for the invader to seize. As the enemy extends his raid into this State he will find that his march is only to meet danger; and when he turns to retrace his steps over a territory he has desolated, he may also find that his path has been covered by an obstacle he did not calculate to meet.

The mystery and doubt which have enveloped the movements of Gen. Lee's army of Northern Virginia, seem to have been partially dispelled at last, by the pretty well authenticated report which we have to-day, to the effect that the enemy has concentrated his forces in the valley of the Shenandoah, at the foot of the Blue Ridge mountains. This movement manifestly declares that the entire force under Lee is to follow in the wake of Gen. Ewell's corps, and a mammoth invasion of the Northern States projected. Lynchburg will no doubt become General Lee's fortified base for the present, and may yet become the rebel capital. All this gains probability and force, from the fact that General Hooker's army is now operating in the vicinity of Maryland Heights.

In view of these movements it has become the duty of the Government to put its armies on the defensive in Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, and leave the communications of Gen. Lee to be disturbed by some independent corps operating from the coast. It is certainly to be regretted that Gen. Hooker should have been withdrawn from the South bank of the Potomac, from which region he might have struck the rebel army in the flank and rear, forced it to come out and fight a pitched battle, and rendered its total discomfiture probable with the aid of the large militia force now defending our State and endeavoring to drive back a body of invaders probably not half their number. Gen. Halleck has preferred a cautious campaign to a brilliant one, and probably has chosen a course which will be most satisfactory to the people for the present at least.

Gen. Ewell is at Hagerstown waiting the arrival of re-enforcements from Gen. Lee's main army, when he hopes to place the State of Pennsylvania south of the Susquehanna under the rebel standard and military rule. He is endeavoring assiduously to deceive us as to his strength and real position by continuing to send out flying columns in every direction. Beyond inordinate plunder he is doing us no serious harm.

It seems that Gen. Lee is about to make an extensive invasion of our free States, destroy our communications as far as possible and lay siege to Washington and Baltimore successively, with what success we cannot, of course, conjecture. The design is a brilliant one, but fraught with more risk and danger than any other General has ever met without serious disaster and humiliating failure.

2 o'clock, P. M.—The operator at Grayson's arrived at Carlisle about 11 o'clock this morning, and reported the rebels slowly advancing towards the latter place. Grayson's is almost six miles west of Carlisle.

It is reported by some of the refugees who reached this city at noon to day, that the rebels declare one of their main purposes to be the destruction of the grain fields in the Cumberland Valley. The rebels are engaged in this work already, laying waste the broad acres which were rich with grain crops awaiting the hand of the reaper.

An Upright Judge on an Open Question.

The copperhead Democracy played their best and their concealed card, when they nominated Woodward for Governor. He is undoubtedly the purest man in the copperhead net—and he is notoriously of that cold and slimy nature, which congeals all with which it comes in contact and cures everything with which it attempts to mingle. He is all brains and no heart. Full of calculation and subtlety, a schemer and a sophist, Judge Woodward is never practical, never plain, and never in sympathy with the people. No man will question his honesty, yet few who know him, have confidence in his integrity, simply because his nature is such that he cannot resist the influence of self interest, though that interest lead to dishonor and shame. As an evidence of his fondness for "self" his connection with the Episcopal Convention, which lately assembled in Philadelphia, affords the most singular proof. Judge Woodward was elected a delegate to that Convention, but having felt the pulse of many of those who held credentials of membership in the same body, he began to calculate that it would be wise for him to absent himself from its deliberations. This fact convinces us, that at that early day Judge Woodward was already scheming for the gubernatorial nomination. If he attended the Episcopal Convention, he would be forced to take position on one of the vital questions of the age. He would be called upon to vote aye or no on a question between his God and himself. This was too much for the wily judge. He was not willing to jeopardize his relations with his party or peril his chances for nomination, even if the cause of God or the interests of his church were at stake. The inevitable nigger question intimidated this imbecile judge, and there 'fore his seat in the Convention was vacant during all its sessions. This little incident presents a fair index of the character of Judge Woodward. His opinions, his actions, his words and his deeds are all controlled by self. Even at this hour of dreadful peril to the nation, the country has involved no interest equal in importance, to the interests of Judge Woodward's self. The soldier in the field, bloody, gasping and dying, that the Union may be preserved and the Government maintained, is unworthy of consideration, when Judge Woodward's self is concerned, or when his road to distinction, profit and pay is to be cleared. At least, so Judge Woodward thinks; a fact which any observing man may infer from his public action. Added to this is his bitter, bigoted and unscrupulous in his party allegiance. To secure his own advancement, he is not above an impeachment as a judicial officer, by assisting to the disfranchisement of the soldiers. To serve that same party, he would go further to impair the rights and destroy the power of these same gallant men. From disfranchising the soldier, there is but a single step to his defeat by his betrayal. Is the man who is guilty of the one capable of the other act? This question the people and the soldiers themselves must answer, in a few months, at the ballot box.

The Late Conventions.

The Democratic State Convention at Harrisburg and that held at Springfield, Illinois, have adopted a series of resolutions, ironically asserting fidelity to the Constitution, but denouncing in gross terms the Government, as false to the country and the cause. When we reflect that the Government is doing all it can to repel the armies who have invaded the loyal States, we are amazed at this anxiety to abuse its measures; to save the country, while so little concern is given to the measures of those who are seeking to destroy it.

In contrast with this spirit how encouraging is that of the Union Conventions of Ohio and New Hampshire. At the former, which met at Columbus this week, and was the largest ever held in the State, the anti-copperhead feeling ran very high. John Brough was nominated for Governor and Charles Anderson for Lieutenant Governor.

The Germans throughout the State are holding the Vallandigham ticket and coming out in strong array for Brough. The enthusiasm for the Union nominations appears to be deep and rapidly increasing, and as the division of the Democrats seems to be complete, Ohio will, doubtless, be carried by the Union men by an overwhelming majority.

The Convention at Concord was most enthusiastic, not less than 20,000 people being present. Resolutions were adopted pledging support to the Government in quelling the rebellion, and denouncing as traitorous all those men of the loyal States who discourage enlistments, or in any other way lend aid to schemes embarrassing the Government in this crisis of our national life. Eloquent addresses were made by General Butler, Montgomery Blair, General Hamilton, Ira Ferley, President of the Convention, and unmistakable proof was given that New Hampshire is earnest in upholding the authority of the Government.

The Situation in Bedford County.

THE HEADQUARTERS OF GENERAL MILROY—THE GATHERING OF STRAGGLERS FROM THE ARMY—MILITARY DIVISIONS OF BEDFORD COUNTY—TROOPS MARCHING FROM GAMBRIA, BEALE, AND CLEARFIELD COUNTIES!

Correspondence of the Telegraph.

BELEAGUERED, Four miles north of Bloody Run, Bedford Co., Pa., June 24, 1863.

Perhaps in the whirl of excitement attendant upon the ingress of "the militia" into your city of the tramp of armed men in your very hearing, has not the rescue of our beloved Commonwealth, you have lost sight of the fact that, away down in this sequestered nook, where news and newspapers are never inquired after, for the simple reason that they can, under no consideration, be had either for love or money, "militia" also are to be found. It is to rectify this unintentional omission that I now write.

Bloody Run, as you are no doubt aware, is at present the headquarters of Gen. Milroy. The General is actively engaged in reorganizing his command, preparatory to acting his part, which will be no mean one, in the coming struggle. Stragglers who have been roving the country since the ill-fated battle of Winchester, when our forces fought over four times their number, our reported terrible loss is thus being daily increased, as they are being reorganized, and reduced. Yesterday, some two hundred, and fifty or three hundred of their number, stragglers, passed this point en route to the general rendezvous.

The exact number of militia stationed here it may be improper to make public, but you may rest satisfied that it is considerable. They are composed principally of Cambria, Blair and Clearfield men—men who are able to "travel on the muscule" at home, and who will not shrink from peril here. They are not classified into regiments, but have all been mustered in for the emergency, and the former operation will no doubt be performed within a few days. Till then we lay dormant.

The company in whose quarters your correspondent writes, the old militia company, known as company E, 4th Pennsylvania militia, is right side up with care, and warranted to stand the test of any weather. It hails from Ebensburg, Cambria county, and is commanded by Capt. R. Litzinger; First Lieutenant, D. O. Evans; Second Lieutenant, E. D. Evans; number ninety muskets. Another Cambria company, from Wilmore, is also in this vicinity. Four companies from Johnstown are on the road, according to report, hastening to join us. We await them expectantly, confident that in the present crisis the "militia" will cast no discredit on the bright escutcheon of Cambria by any display of lethargy or tardiness.

Yours, J. A. Y.

FROM GEN. BURNSIDE'S ARMY.

Success of an Expedition into Tennessee.

CINCINNATI, June 24. The following dispatch has been received by General Burnside, from the expedition sent into East Tennessee: Boonville, June 23.—I arrived here with my command at 11 o'clock this morning. I struck the railroad at Lenoir and destroyed the road up to Knoxville. I made a demonstration against Knoxville to draw the troops down from above; destroyed the track and started for Strawberry Plains; burnt the State creek bridge, three hundred and twelve feet long, and the Strawberry Plains bridge, sixteen hundred feet long; also, the Mossey creek bridge, three hundred and twenty-five feet long.

DESTRUCTION OF BRIDGES, &C.

We captured three pieces of artillery, some 300 boxes of artillery ammunition, over 500 prisoners, and 1000 stands of arms, destroyed a large amount of salt-petre, and other stores. My command is much fatigued, and we have had but two nights sleep since leaving Williamsburg.

The force in East Tennessee is larger than I supposed, and I did not attack London bridge for reasons that I will explain. At Mossey creek I determined to return to the mountains. I had very great difficulties that were unexpected. I found the gap through which I intended to return, strongly guarded with artillery and infantry, and blockaded with fallen timber. A force was also following in my rear. I determined to cross at Smith's Gap, which I did. I will report more fully as soon as possible. Your obedient servant, S. H. SAUNDERS, Col. Commanding.

Special Session of the Illinois Legislature.

Gov. Yates Offers 10,000 Six Months' Men.

St. Louis, June 25. The Democrat's Springfield dispatch says that a session of the Illinois Legislature was held yesterday, with the view of legalizing the Wabash horse railway swindler of Chicago and testing the loyalty of the Governor's prerogative of the Legislature. Democrats contend that the Assembly is still in session. Four members of the House were present and two of the Senate. A committee of two was sent to the Governor to ascertain if he had any communication to make. The Governor replied he had nothing to say and did not recognize the meeting. Gov. Yates offered the Secretary of War ten thousand six months men to repel invasion.

Arrest of Deserters—A Bloody Conflict.

BRIDGE, MAINE, June 25. Grant and Knowles, the deserters! who shot McHenry, the chief of police, on Sunday, while attempting to arrest them for horse-stealing, were discovered in the woods yesterday. The desperadoes resisted and a desperate and bloody affray took place.

Mr. Jenkins, of Detroit, one of the police, was instantly killed by a shot from a revolver in the hands of Grant, which also succeeded in wounding another man. Grant was finally killed by blows with a knife, and Knowles wounded beyond recovery. McHenry remains in a critical condition.

HYANNIS, CAPE COD, June 25.

A schooner belonging to the Well fleet arrived last night, bringing the crews of the fishing schooner Marengo, Elizabeth Ann, Rufus Choate and Bitter, all burned by the Tacony. They report that on Sunday last the Tacony burned the ship Byramtown, Capt. Robinson, from London May 15th, of and for New York, and the bark Good Speed, Capt. Duncan, from Londonderry May 20th, for New York. The crews were all sent to New York in the schooner Florence. The Tacony has burned seventeen vessels since the 12th inst.
