Erracis of rise War.—The drain of first rate mechanics by the war is no whereshown more plainly than in the slow progress made in the erection of nearly all the new buildings progressing in the city. Good carpenters, stone masons and brick layers are in demand, and the number systlable is so small that we believe mose of our buildings will be able to fulfill the stipulations of their contracts as to the time for the completion of the work. Many buildings completed to the first floor weeks since have advanced no further, although under ordinary circumstances they would have been prepared for roofing in the same period.
