A Copperhead Plan of Reconstruction.

It is a favorite boast with such journals as have uniformly sustained the south in her acts of rebellion, that the reconstruction of the out entirely the New Eogland States. In certain portions of the north-west, this proposition is calmly discussed by leading copperheads. It is alleged that, unless the south is assured of the acceptance on the part of the other States, of such a plan, reconstruction will never be achieved, and the northwest consequently isolated from "all the world and the rest of mankind," as the free navigation of the Mississippi purpose left unimpaired, and those who opposed will be refused to all States outside of the confederacy. When we look at the proposition in all its proportions, we can only see how much the south would gain by reconstruction on such a basis. Jeff Davis and his myrmidons would dous daugers on all sides, the mob did not just secure all that they have yet failed to gain in battle, by such a reconstruction of the Union. The result could thus be stated: In the Senate the relative strength of each section would be thirty southern to twenty-two northern votes; in one hundred and thirteen northern votes. Thus one House would be hopelessly gone, while twelve votes changed would give a southern majority in the other. It would not be difficult to engage these twelve votes, in support of any extreme southern measure, as long as the independent men of the north elect such representatives as he who is to vote for this district in the coming Congress. And still the plan looks plausible. "You have a majority in one House, we a majority in the other," say its supporters; and then they cooly ask, "What could be fairer ?''

But mark the real working of the plan. This working is ably set forth in a pamphlet lately published by Robert Dale Owen, one of the of National thanksgiving, praise and prayer will ablest and most fearless Union, men in the Southwest. We quote Mr. Owen's own words as follows :

"A free State applies for admission. The bill must pass the Senate. Will it pass? Slaveholders have to decide that question. Will hold in their grasp ? While they retain their reasons? Never! A slave State for every free State admitted; that will be the rule. The controlling majority in the Senate, therefore, perpetual, "Think, next, of the nominations by the

Nothing his been gained by that the Free States, who will suffer most? Cannot saturnalia. If any wrong exists, it is the wrong which flows from such demonstrations, If any suffering is imposed upon any set of men. it is that which springs from the passions of men engaged in such riots. Half the energy which was displayed in opposing the law and creating such disturbances, if used in a logitimate and proper manner for the suppression of rebellion, would restore peace to the country, and abolish the necessity of a draft. Let those who which will, as it has ever done, destroy not only contemplate engaging in similar outrages, reabolish the necessity of a draft. Let those who member this fact.

A Few Plain Questions.

Written for the Telegraph.]

Is this a war for the rich? Is it a war for negroes? Who pay the taxes to conduct the war? Is it not those whose incomes exceed $600?

Does $300 relieve from the draft? If men must be paid to exempt from each subsequent draft.

Northern capitalists purchase negro slaves with the same capital as well as Southerners, and employ slaves in coal, railroad, iron and other companies. What will then become of laborers become and the same source I have it that the head aw employed as blacksmiths, stone masons, bridge and other heavy buildings? Will capi-talists pay from $1 to $2 per day for their labor when the interest on the price of a negro slave their cavalry, artillery, iofantry and baggage trains mixed up in utter confusion—no military order or discipline being apparent. A portion of our cavalry were close on their heels, and, is but from $40 to $60 per year? It is not then the free negroes, for they cannot compete with freemen of the North, that our work nen have to dread, but the establishment of slave labor whenever an opportunity offered, were harrass ing them in a manner exceedingly annoying. Other portions of our cavalry are in the from and fostered by it for the dissemination of mountains between Harper's Ferry and Gettys-burg, and are hourly bringing in hundreds of de-serters and willing prisoners. SOLDIEE STABBED AND ROBBED.—A soldier, named Frederick Helmbold, belonging to the one hundred and fifty-seventh Pennsylvania was ordered two days since, by Gen. Heintzelmillions of the North. Our stupendous victo-ries in the Southwest, our happy deliverance from the horrors of a rebel invasion of the North, and the evident decay of the robellion under the terrific blows so fast and heavily deart upon it, have given us good cause to be thack ful to Him who holds the world as in the hollow of His hand.
