Since last Monday the capacity of Brant's Hall has been well tested, for Hamblin's combination troupe brought crowds at once, and the hall has, so far, stood the test well. The entertainments have been so full of interest, and so varied each evening, that hundreds who flocked to the hall the first night, have gone the second and third, to witness the changes in the performances each night. To-night another change of programme is given, and our amusement loving friends will not regret it should they visit Brant's Hall.
