What the Maryland Unionists think of Governor Curin.

[From the Hogerstown (Mid ) Herald and Turch ] The Union Converti n of Prints ivania assembled at Pittsburg in Wednesday last, and sembled at Pittsburg in Wednesday last, and by a vote of ninety eight to thirty six r.neminated Hon. Andrew G. Curtin for Governor—Judge Woodward is his Democratic in Copperhead opponent, and the contest between them bids fair to be a close one—close only, h. w. ver, because the firty or seventy thous not solve in from the State who are ingaged in fighting the battles of their country will not be permitted to vote. Could they have an opportunity of recording their ballots the e-would be little or no doubt about the result, for as Governor Curin a doubt about the result, for as Governor Cur-tin nobly stood by them at all times as d under all circumstances, is it but fair to presume that with an distinction of party they would theer-with at distinction of party they would cheerfully at digratefully sustain blui.

But we shall not believe that, even though he should be deprived of the s later's support, important and decidive of the election as it would be, he can be overcome by the numerous stake p-c et of disloyalists opposed to him. Party prijudices may be aroused against him, and political malice may and doubtless will do its worst to encompass his defeat, but we shall not believe that the hearts of the people of Pennsylvania can be alienated from so able and taithful a public servant until the ballot box s speak the damnable act of ingratitude in language which cannot be misunderstood. The adder stung the breast which warmed it into life, but blacker would be the ingratitude of the rons of the Keystone if they should strike down or turn their backs upon Governor Curtin, who has un-doubtedly rendered them inestimable services in these perilous times.

When the rebels innugurated this terrible civil war, they fixed their eyes and hearts upon the invarion and despoliation Pennsy vania—This was their settled purpose early in the war, and if Pennsy vania had been cursed with a weak or semi loyal Executive, they would have rushed their desolating bord-s across Maryland and into the Cumberland Valley long before they did, and would have remained until they had reduced it to a blank waste. But G. vernor Curtin watched them closely, sent troops by thousands and tens of thou-ands to the ceat of war to keep the rebels employed at home, and thus far two years, except last fail when they failed to get farther than the State line, prevented them from carrying out their policy of invading and robbing Penesylvania.

And when at last they did come, but through no dereliction of duty on his part, he pron pily and fearlessly flung the battle-flag to the bierse, and after a heronican effort succeeded in over-coming the panic which the suddenness and apcoming the panic which the suddenness and appalling magnitude of the lovasion had produced among the people of his Commonwealth. In resp use to his patriotic appeals they took courage and rallied to the defence of their homes and fire-ides. They rushed to Harrisburg twenty thousand strong and prevented the Capital from falling into the hands of the enemy, and when at last that enemy brat a hasty retreat across the Potomar, they were chese upon his heels, and guarded the Potomac, the true line of defence and protection, until the emer-

line of defence and protection, until the emergency was entirely over. •
F-w men would or could have done for Pennsylvania what Gov rnor Cortin has in these try-ing times; and feeling as Marylanders, and cuiz ns of the old county in Mary and wrich has materially suffered from the rebel invasi n that neighbors across the line, and our relief from those peri's the same, we should be wanting in gratitude were we to withhold this poor meed of praise from one who so richly deserves it.
