[Private and confidential.] WHEATLAND, NEAR LANGASTER, March 29, 1858.—My Dear Sir.: Although you know I do not deal much in professions, I heartily rejoice that you are in the Cabinet. Most cordially do I wish and anticipate that you may and vill gather fresh laurels in this new theatre. After my long experience, I should not com-plain of the fate of war; but, from the signs of the times, it is evident that my Pennsylvania friends, although they fought in the battle, are not destined to enjoy many of the spoils of victory.-I still entertain the hope that a single individ-ual whom I have recommended for office may, be successful. This is James C. Vandyke, E.q., of Philadelphia, who is an applicant for the Dis-trict Attorneyship of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. If you knew the man as I do, you could not fail to be warmly attached to him. He is a noble, generous, whole-souled gentle-man, possessing legal ability of a high order.— As a Democrat, he has been active, untiring and enthusiastic, and, I believe, has done as much for the cause as any individual in the city and county of Philadelphia, with the exception of Judge Campbell. You might, perhaps, be pleased to know that he even went shead of myself in his opinions on the subject of Southern rights. The estimation in which he is held by the bench, the bar, and the people, will appear from his recommendations. Mr. Jefferson Davis:

My Dear Sir—Can you tell me if General Larmon is likely to remain much longer in Nicaramon is likely to remain much longers. I could getstrong recommendations from the President's present iriends in Pennsylvania for the place were the mission vacant, and I think I would prove a live Minister.

I am tired of being a white slave at the North, and long for a home in the sunny South.

The harbor and Signe for the six hour's engagement.

The damage to Fort Sumter by the slege batteries of Gen. Gilmore is visible without the aid of a glass.

The refels had erected a false wall against the wall exposed to the army batteries. It extended to within ten feet of the top of the wall, was over 40 feet high and ten feet thick. This wall is now a mass of ruins, whilst the old wall is bored full of deep holes, the parapet crushed and gagged, and the north-west corner gashed and cracked down almost to the water's edge. The harbor and Stono river are filled with torpedoes, about a dozen of which have been picked up in Stono river, and one was exploded under the Patapsco, raising her a foot out of water, but doing her no harm. None of the vessels were injured in the least, and the Admiral and officers are confident in the ability of the Monitors to batter down Sumter. The Admiral is auxious, however, to save the vessels for the heavy work required of them after Sumter is taken, and let the army reduce Fort Sumter if possible. The fleet except the Weehauken and Nabant, all retired before 2 clock, but they remained to keep Wagner o'clock, but they remained to keep wagner silent during the afternoon, and to prevent the remointing of the guns. The shore latteries contined firing all the afternoon and night on the wall of Sumter, with good effect.

This morning the weather is cool and clear, and the batteries are steadily at work. The Weehawken and Passaic are keeping Forts when the Arkansas soiled, the remainder of the fleet are laying at their moorings. The bodies of Capt. Rodgers and Paymaster Woodbury have been embalmed, and will go north on the Arkansas. Gen. Gilmore announces that the work thus far has been entirely satisfactory, that the
