The Effects of Copperhead Sympathy with Treason.

Every man in the land knows that if the rebellion had been left alone to confront the Government, it would not have lasted one year; but these abroad, who have a deep regard for the success of free government, cannot understand why the loyal States have not already succeeded in putting down the rebellion. It is not the superior valor of the South that has protracted the war, although the ragamuffine who have imbrued their hands in the blood of freemen, impiously imagine that they, ALONE, have been conducting the par against the Government, when the fact is, that the Government has received its worst strokes from the secret allies of treason in the loyal States. Thus, the Democratic leaders, such men as Justice Woodward, Frank Hughes, Justice Lowrie, William B. Reed, Buchanan, Bigler and the lesser leaders of the cliques which compose the copperhead organization, have succeeded in embarrassing and damaging the people and the Government, to an extent which will never be fully estimated, because this injury assumes so many different phases, and impairs so many interests, that time alone must develope its full effects. At present, we will allude to only one of these effects of Democratic opposition to the law, which is costing the people of the country millions of dollars.

In the mining and manufacturing districts one of the main influences wielded to arouse the anger of the masses against the vigor of the their rewards sooner than those who indulge in tained in fifty-two counties, is as follows: Government, relates to the conscription law. In the mining districts, particularly, the hard ships of the draft are so magnified as to induce the people to resist the law. To make this resistance more effective (as the misguided miner imagines) combinations among the workmen are formed, and these in turn are used by the hot headed of the miners to carry on strikes, to destroy property, to stop operations at the mines, and thus create confusion in business, the inflation of prices, and a cessation of labor. We have had exhibitions of these proceedings time after time. Frank Hughes, in Schuylkill county, is even now engaged in carrying out this same game, of arousing the prejudices and the passions of the ignorant, and thus suffering such as these to run off into riot, arson and the patriotism and the loyalty of the people. directly to this influence. THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYL-VANIA ARE PAYING MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN EXOR-BITANT PRIORS OF GOAL TO-DAY, AS THE RESULT OF COPPERHEAD OPPOSITION TO THE WAR. And this is only on one item. Think of this, taxpayers and consumers.

Who is Right—The Soldier who Supports or the Copperhead who Opposes the Re-Election of Andrew G. Curtin ?

known that every General in the Army of the Potomac ardently desires the re-election of Andrew G. Curtin Governor of Pennsylvania. In this desire the officers of the army are joined by the men under their command, so that the fighting men of the Republic are unanimously in favor of Curtin's re-election. We do not make this statement on our own individual authority. Major General Meade, in a speech delivered in the presence of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps, emphatically declared that the re-election of Andrew G. Curtin was one of the essentials of the success of the armies of the Republic.-While such is the preference of the soldierwhile the men who are willing to peril their lives in the defence of the Government all desire the re-election of Andrew G. Curtin, those who have opposed this war, who sympathize with rebellion, and who, like Justice Woodward, are willing to "LET THE SOUTH GO IN PRACE," ATC the men who malign, oppose and traduce Andrew G. Curtin, with a view to defeat his election for Governor. Which is right, of these two parties? Is the soldier right, in preferring Gov. Curtin's re-election, or is the copperhead right, in seeking his defeat? This is an important question. We leave it with the people for de-

We notice that many of our codesoporate are rejoicing over the well established fact that the next Congressional House of Representatives will be in the control of the loyal element of that body. Of course such a fact is sufficient of itself to excite and elicit our mutual rejoicings and congratulations, as well as to prompt THE CONSTITUTION—THE EXECUTION

His parliamentary experience is perhaps the largest of any of those who will occupy seats in the House: and for his loyalty, the record of a life spent in and not at the dictation of any person. Below deeds of devotion to his country bears, ample is the letter of the President entire: and glorious testimony. We allude to Thaddeus Stevens. Unfortunately for the whole country, we fear that Mr. Stevens would reject the offer of this position were it even made to now as a grateful acknowledgment for the albim by the manimous voice of this collegence. him by the unanimous voice of this colleagues, simply becase he is so strongly attached to his constituents, and because he represents a disconstant care and attention on the floor of the House. I ablect, the most experienced and influential man elected to that House, and therefore the best which a loyal majority could do in the premises would be to elect Thaddeus Stevens Speaker. His election would assure patriots that no wrong would be allowed to mar the proceedings of the popular branch of Congress It would create confidence in loyal men that traitors would receive justice so far as legislation could influence the dispensation of that much abused quality of a free government, and in more ways than we can now enumerate, i would be of vast benefit to the Government.

The Democracy and the Disfranchised Soldier.

The Tory Organ flusters under the conviction that its efforts to disfranchise all who wear the uniform of a soldier, may bring their fruits and overwhelming majority. The result, as ascerthem desire. Hence this morning it endeavors to crawl out of the odium it has earned in re ference to the Act of Assembly of July 2d, 1833, which restrains the appearance of soldiers at election polls. The object of the Tory Organ in 1861, has continued a faithful, consistent and in quoting that act, was to create the impression that by a statute of Pennsylvania, the brave defenders of the Government had been the cause of the rebellion. In fact he was re-disfranchised. The high price of coal may be traced That the soldiers will be distranchised, if the leaders of the Copperhead Democracy can accomplish their end, is now a foregone conclusion. Justice Woodward decreed their distranchisement while absent fighting the battles of knowledge that we were mistaken in our high the Union and the Constitution, and now the Tory Organ (indiscreetly) divulges the game was constrained to resign a position in the diswhich is to be attempted to disfranchise every charge of whose duties he failed. The Ebb of Secession.

In August, 1861, Thomas H. Watts and Jue. Gill Shorter were the candidates for the office of Governor of Alabama. There never was any doubt about Shorter's secession ideas, and hence he was elected in the midst of the revolutionary excitement of the time, which swept everything before it. In Thomas H. Watts there was not the same confidence. He was originally a Union Whig, and led the Bell and Everett ticket in Alabama. He was consequently defeated. Now mark the change. The same men are candidate again. The contest has just taken place.-Shorter is defeated, and Watts is elected by an
