The Allies of Woodward Preparing for Another Raid.

If the rebel cut-throats, who are now hovering on the borders of Maryland and Pennsylvania, preparing at a favorable moment to rush on the defenceless inhabitants of those localities to murder and steal and ruin whatever of life and property come within their reach—if these wretches are under obligations to any one man in the State of Pennsylvania for important services, that man is George W. Woodward. During the initial proceedings of the slaveholders' rebellion—during the last days of the Buchanan Administration, when traitors were despoiling the Government of its means of defence—and during the dark and portentous hours when rebellion was precipitated, Woodward was the fast friend, advocate and defender of those prominent in that great wrong. The leaders of the rebellion have not forgotten his services, and are now preparing to reciprocate. Woodward's election is of the utmost importance to J. F. Davis. Woodward made Governor of Pennsylvania would be equal to Pennsylvania admitted into the fraternal brotherhood of the Confederacy. It would be adding another star to the banner of treason, to give Pennsylvania up to copperheadism. Hence, the traitors are determined to render all the service in their power to contribute to the success of their allies. As they cannot participate in the election, they hope to control its result by attracting the attention of loyal men to the field, and engaging them in a work of repelling invasion. For these reasons the rebels are now preparing to invade Pennsylvania, and as the day of the election approaches, feints will be made in various directions, so as to divide the resisting forces of the Government, and infect as many localities as possible with alarm and panic. The rebels have no idea of successfully penetrating Pennsylvania. They are too wise and wary to confront the host of freedom on free soil once more. If they can successfully pacify the people, and draw loyal men into the field to resist invasion, while semi-traitors remain at home to control the result of the election in favor of Woodward, their object will be accomplished.

The threat of invasion is a part of the deep laid plot to carry Pennsylvania for Woodward. It is an act of reciprocity due from traitors to their allies. A little care will frustrate these arrangements, however, and thus defeat traitors at home and abroad.

The Union State Central Committee's Address.

We print, this afternoon, the address of the Union State Central Committee. By the frankness with which the chairman of the committee, Wayne McVeigh, discusses facts, and the perfect freedom with which he refers to the issues involved in the campaign in which we are engaged, it is very evident that he has a high appreciation of the intelligence of the people of Pennsylvania, and that he relies upon their judgment and not their prejudice, for a decision at the election which is fast approaching. In this respect, the address of the Union Committee is unlike that issued by the committee representing the elements of antagonism to the Union in the Keystone State.

The great idea set forth in this address is one which the Union men of every State should never lose sight of, at least so long as the struggle for the government continues. We are fighting traitors in arms! We are contending with those who first robbed, outraged and insulted the Government, and then attempted by the force of arms to destroy our Nationality. The Union State Central Committee's address rests all the issues of the contest on this fact—the great, appalling and bloody fact of rebellion, and until that rebellion has been crushed out, peace restored and the government recognized and respected in every State of the Union, there can be no other issues created, unless it is designed to embarrass the government. On these points, the argument of the address is simple, pure and indisputable.

In referring to Justice Woodward, the address is at once fair and candid. While it treats the opposing candidate for Governor with dignity and courtesy, it thoroughly convicts him of boldly spoken sympathy for treason. It convicts this candidate of falsehood, by the testimony of one distinguished rebel more honest than Woodward. At the outset of the rebellion Alexander H. Stephens, now Vice President of the confederacy, asked of the people of Georgia:

"What right has the North assumed? What interest of the South has been invaded? What justice has been denied? Or what claim founded on justice or right has been withheld? Can either of you deny some governmental act of wrong deliberately and purposely done by the Government at Washington of which the South has a right to complain. I challenge an answer!"

While Stephens, in the South, uttered the foregoing, Woodward, a Judge of the the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, spoke as follows in Philadelphia:

"Everywhere in the South the people are beginning to look out for the means of self defence. Could it be expected that they would be indifferent to such scenes as have occurred?—that they would stand idle and see such measures concerted and carried forward for the annihilation, sooner or later, of their property in slaves such expectations, if indulged, are not reasonable. The law of self defence includes rights of property as well as person, and it appears to me there must be a time in the progress of this conflict, if it is not already there, when slaveholders may lawfully fall back on their natural rights, and employ in defence of their property whatever means of protection they possess or can command. They who push on this conflict have convinced one or more Southern States that it is already come."

By this plain contrast which the address of the Union State Central Committee places before the people, Justice Woodward's conviction is beyond dispute. We shall not stop to inquire who at the time was the best patriot, Alexander H. Stephens or George W. Woodward; or whether now the Vice President of the confederacy is less loyal than the Copperhead candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania. Mr. Woodward's speech, to prove the sacredness of human bondage and the righteousness of the rebellion, stands yet unrevoked. Mr. Stephens himself never claimed that slavery was divine or the rebellion right; but Woodward's disloyalty has shot beyond the mark. No fair argument than this remarkable contrast could have been presented to our citizens. It cannot be misunderstood, nor can it be explained away, for Justice Woodward himself has not attempted the task. Can we avoid the feeling that his nomination is an insult to the people?

The address of the Committee is in other respects able and valuable. The beginning and outset of the war is carefully and comprehensively reviewed, and the historic relation of Governor Curtin to its progress, is faithfully pointed out. No man has wrought more faithfully than he for the good of the State and the country, and it would be hard to speak more highly of what he has done, and is doing. He is the candidate of the loyal men of the State, and by them will receive that highest tribute to personal and private worth which an American citizen can obtain—their votes, their support, and their confidence.

The Germans for Curtin.

One of the oldest and most reliable of the organs of the German Democracy, the Hanover Gazette, printed in the heart of the richest and most populous portion of the German region of York county, has hailed the names of Curtin and Agnew, and is engaged zealously advocating their election as one of the most important means of restoring the peace of the country by thus maintaining and enforcing the authority of the Government. The Gazette is among the oldest and most influential papers in the Commonwealth. Heretofore it had been looked upon as a bitter exponent of copperheadism, but since it has so clearly defined its position in the crisis in which we are now involved, and since it frankly and fearlessly advocates the election of loyal men, we are bound to accept its services as those of a loyal and patriotic journal, striving to assist in rescuing the Union from rebellion.

Wherever, in Pennsylvania, the Germans are not completely blinded and deluded by the teachings of influential sympathizers with treason, a healthy Union sentiment prevails. The Germans are great respecters of law and order. They have a high regard for Government; because from its harmonious working they derive the means of prosperity which they know so well how to use. Hence, in this contest, where ever reason and a correct judgment prevail among the Germans of Pennsylvania, they are on the side of the Government.

The Pittsburgh Daily Commercial, is the title of a new daily paper just launched on the tide of journalism in the Smoky city. In typographical appearance, it will compare favorably with any of the popular newspaper publications of the day, while the tenor of its editorials, the extent of its news, financial and commercial, with the aspect of its advertising columns, show that the enterprise has brains, industry and patronage to encourage it to success. It is edited with an ability that at once indicates the force and purpose of those in charge of its columns, and from the boldness with which it has espoused a loyal cause, we may expect a right good service from the Commercial during this and future political campaigns for principle in the Keystone State. It has a wide field to operate in, and if it succeeds fairly in representing the true sentiments and preferences of the loyal men of Allegheny county, it will accomplish a work for which loyal men all over the Commonwealth will be grateful.

The Game of the Copperheads—Assassination Substituted for Argument.

From a private letter received in this city from Luzerne county, we learn that one of the plans adopted by the desperate copperheads in that county, to carry out the designs against the Government, is the assumption of the name "Union League," for certain traitorous associations which these bold bad men are organizing. By this means unsuspecting Union men are seduced into these convales, sworn, and then held by force of threats, pledged to vote against Andrew G. Curtin. A few days since a gentleman in the county referred to, was induced to enter one of these secret nests of treason, but when he discovered the wretches by whom he was surrounded, he at once detected the object of the combination and promptly declined to be associated with the conspirators. This bold defiance and repudiation of the clan, so incensed one of its members, that he sprang upon the loyal man, dealing him a blow with a spear shaped stone, which killed him instantly. We have only the bare fact of the murder to communicate at present. That fact is sufficient to appal and arouse the indignation of every loyal man in the Commonwealth.

As soon as we can procure the full facts of this most fiendish outrage, we shall bring them before our readers.

TERRIBLE MARINE DISASTER

Foundering of the Steamer Sunbeam on Lake Superior.

ALL ON BOARD EXCEPTING ONE LOST.

SARNA, C. W., Monday, Sept. 7.

The steamer City of Cleveland reports the loss of the steamer Sunbeam on Lake Superior last week, during a gale, with all the passengers and crew, except one wheelman.

Chicago, Monday, Sept. 7.—The steamer Planet arrived here this forenoon, bringing the news that the steamer Sunbeam foundered on Lake Superior on the 24th of August, and that all on board, except the wheelman, were lost. The wheelman lashed himself to a piece of wreck, and after floating for thirty hours was washed ashore at Portage, twenty miles from the scene of the disaster.

He reports that the Sunbeam left Superior City on Thursday. Early the next morning, during a terrible gale, the steamer was struck by a heavy sea, which rolled her over on her side. The small boats were immediately got out, and the passengers and crew were put into them, when the steamer was struck by another heavy sea and commenced breaking up.

The wheelman soon afterward saw the boats filled with the passengers and crew leaving the wreck, but it was impossible for the boats to live in such a gale and they were swamped, and he is certain that all on board were lost.

The Planet picked up portions of the wreck, which was floating about for two miles around where the vessel went down.

The passengers and crew numbered 35. The names of those lost, as far as ascertained, are as follows:

Passengers—A. Sherman and son; A. Cohen, of Oatton-gon.

Crew—Captain Douglas; Mr. Gardner, clerk; Thomas J. Hally, First Engineer; Patrick and J. O'Donnell, first and second mates, of Detroit; W. H. Collins, saloon keeper; Meechal, cabin boy, of Chicago; James Butlers, fireman.

The scene of the disaster is located a little north-east of Eagle river, ten miles out.

From the Army of the Potomac.

CAVALRY SKIRMISHING ON THE FRONT.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Monday, September 7.

Cavalry skirmishes across the Rappahannock on our extreme flank, are becoming quite frequent. On Friday a scouting party of the 6th Ohio, while returning to our lines, were ambuscaded and some thirty killed, wounded and captured. Major Pryor, commanding the detachment, was severely wounded, but escaped capture.

Yesterday, owing to the carelessness of a vidette, who left his position, the enemy made rush on our line, and wounded and captured a man, twenty horses and three mules.—Lieut. Lyon, of the First Pennsylvania cavalry, was killed.

On Friday a deserter from Battery I, Fourth New York artillery, audaciously disguised in the uniform of a private, stole two horses, mounted a companion villain on one and his own on the other, and on Saturday pluckily, dexterly, and rode to our lines, where he turned guerrilla, and robbed on a large scale. He was captured. Gen. Warren gives his hope that he will hang.

"Major Jones," a female of passable attractions, fluent speech and bold demeanor, who has been frequently within our lines, was arrested yesterday with memoranda of the strength and position of our forces upon her person.

Dissatisfaction Among the New Jersey Troops.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 8.

The 38th New Jersey regiment received marching orders today. As many of the men were deserting, the Colonel of the regiment was compelled to call on Gen. Dix for a guard of regular soldiers to maintain discipline. The guard did not give entire satisfaction, so the 3rd Vermont took their place on Sunday. The Vermonters have seen service, and do not know anything about blank cartridges or firing in the air, so that when a crowd of new recruits attempted to run the guard last night, they were fired upon. Three were killed and four wounded.

Another Excitement in Kansas—Arrest of the Mayor of Leavenworth.

LEAVENWORTH, Sept. 7.

Mayor Anthony was arrested this afternoon by a squad of soldiers headed by one of Gen. Ewing's detectives, and, being placed in a carriage, was hurried off in the direction of Kansas City, Missouri. The excitement among the citizens here, in consequence of the arrest, is very great.
