

The Evening Telegraph

GEORGE BERGNER.

HARRISBURG, PA., SATURDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 12 1863.

PRICE ONE CENT.

Medical

DR. JOHNSON'S BALTIMORE LOCK HOSPITAL.

HAS discovered the most certain, speedy and effective remedies in the world for

DISEASES OF IMPURITUDE.
NO MERCURY OR NOXIOUS DRUGS.
A Cure Warranted, or No Charge, in from One to Two Days.

Weakness of the Back, Affections of the Kidneys and Bladder, Involuntary discharges, Impotency, General Debility, Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Langor, Low Spirits, Constipation of the Bowels, Pains of the Head, Dizziness, Headaches, Dropsy of the Sight or Giddiness, Disease of the Throat, Nausea or Stomach, Affections of the Liver, Lungs, Stomach or Bowels—those terrible disorders arising from the Solitary Habits of Youth—those secret and solitary practices more fatal to the victims than the song of Sirens to the Mariner of Ulysses, blighting their most brilliant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage &c., impossible.

YOUNG MEN
Especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit, which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of Young Men of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have adorned listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence or walked to ecstasy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

MARRIAGE.
Married Persons, or Young Men contemplating marriage, being aware of physical weakness, organic debility, deformities, &c., speedily cured.

Who who places himself under the care of Dr. Johnson, religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a Physician.

ORGANIC WEAKNESS.
Immediately Cured, and full vigor restored.

This distressing affection, which renders life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of impure indulgence. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner, by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived the pleasures of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms to both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged, the mental functions weakened, loss of procreative power, nervous irritability, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart, indigestion, constitutional debility, a wasting of the frame, cough, consumption, decay and death.

Office, No. 7 South Frederick Street,
Left hand side going from Baltimore street, a few doors from the corner. Fall not to observe name and number.

Letters must be paid and contain a stamp. The Doctor's Diplomas hang in his office.

DR. JOHNSON,
Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, graduate from one of the most eminent colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubled with ringing in the head and ears when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, bashfulness, with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with derangement of mind were cured immediately.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.
These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: "Wasting of the back and limbs, pains in the head, weakness of sight, loss of muscular power, palpitation" of the heart, dyspepsia, nervous irritability, &c., symptoms of consumption, &c.

MENTAL.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded. Loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression, self-distrust, love of solitude, timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced.

YOUNG MEN
Who have indulged themselves in a practice indulged in when alone, a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, shortly after matrimony.

Who pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the darling of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyments of life, by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons suffer, before contemplating

MARRIAGE.
Reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote conjugal happiness. Indeed, without these, the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness by another become blighted by their own.

DISEASES OF IMPURITUDE.
When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an illudens sense of shame or the dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability, can alone afford him relief. He falls into the hands of ignorant and designing pretenders, who, incapable of curing, sicken his pecuniary substance, as keep him within a month after death, or as long as the smallest fee can be obtained, and in despair leaves him with ruined health to sigh over his deadly disappointment, or by the use of the deadly poison, Mercury, hasten to a constitutional symptoms of this terrible disease such as affections of the Head, Throat, Nose, Ears, &c., progressing with frightful rapidity, till death puts a period to his miserable existence by sending him to that undiscovered country from whence no traveler returns.

INDISCRETION OF THE PRESS.
The many thousands cured at this Institution year after year, and the numerous important surgical operations performed by Dr. Johnson, witnessed by the reporters of the Sun, Clipper, and many other papers, not one of which have appeared again and again before the public, besides his standing as a gentleman of character and respectability, is a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted.

SKIN DISEASES SEEN SOON CURED.
Office No. 7 South Frederick St.

Daily Telegraph

EXTRACT from the minutes of the vestry of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Harrisburg, Pa., at a meeting held September 5th, 1863.

Died on Sunday, Aug. 23d, 1863, at Philadelphia, James Peacock, in the 76th year of his age.

Thus, upon the Sabbath, the hand of God removed to his eternal rest, our aged and venerable friend, and inasmuch as from the formation of this parish, he was for so many years, one of our wardens and treasurers, and his services were ever so cheerfully given to promote her welfare, it is meet that this vestry, of which he was an original member, should make some record of the loss we have sustained, therefore,

Resolved, That by the decease of our former associate, it has pleased Him who doeth all things well, to take from our church a member whose long and valuable life formed a part of her history and whose conduct, means and labors were always freely rendered to advance her interests and to promote her prosperity.

Second, That to the end of his more than three score years and ten, his zeal for the welfare of this parish, remained unabated, and his love for her and the cause of the great Head of the Church, knew no diminution.

Third, That we do hereby deplore the loss we have sustained and know that we shall miss him no more in the courts of our earthly sanctuary, to unite in the humble confession, the familiar prayers, and praises, and the solemn avowal of our faith, we rejoice in the belief that this aged Christian has departed to be with Christ and to join in the To Dignum eternally ascending from the ransomed of the Lord.

Attest WILLIAM BUELLER, Secretary.

Judge Lowrie on the Necessities of the Poor Man and the Rich Man.

MESSRS. EDITORS.—Judge Lowrie, in delivering the opinion of the Supreme Court in the "Sunday Law" case, wherein it was claimed by the prosecutor that if the poor could not ride to church on Sunday, in the cars, the rich should not ride to church in their carriages. In other words, "what is sauce for the goose ought to be sauce for the gander." Judge Lowrie had before decided that it was a violation of the law for the cars or omnibuses to run on Sunday, because it was a desecration of the Lord's day, and as many believed the cars and the omnibuses were the poor man's carriage, they should be allowed to ride in them on Sunday, but Judge Lowrie said "Then the people turned about and said Judge Lowrie rides to church on Sunday in his carriage, we will arrest his driver for doing his worldly business of driving for the rich man on Sunday, and by the way, Judge Lowrie was arrested with other drivers, and Mr. Lowrie's driver took his case to the common pleas court, and Judge Lowrie had the modesty to write out and deliver the opinion, and as the case turned upon the necessity of riding to church on Sunday, and it was claimed that as the poor man's carriage had been stopped, the rich man's should be stopped also. He defined the term, necessity, in the precise words following, to wit: "What may be a luxury or a pleasure to a poor man may be a necessity when he has grown RICH!" The plain English of which is, that when a man is poor it is not necessary for him to ride to church, he should walk, but when he is rich it is necessary for him to ride to church. Ergo, the drivers of the carriages of Lowrie and Logan drove for rich men, therefore, it was a case of necessity, and under the law it was no offence; but the drivers of the omnibuses were convicted. MURKIN.

THE WILMINGTON ELECTION.—The Journal and Statesman, published at Wilmington, Delaware, thus discourses over the late election in that city:

WE HAVE ELECTED
The Union Alderman,
The Union City Treasurer,
The Union Assessor,
The First Ward Council Ticket,
The Second Ward Council Ticket,
The Third Ward Council Ticket,
The Fourth Ward Council Ticket,
The Fifth Ward Council Ticket,
The Sixth Ward Council Ticket,
And would have elected still more, but there was nothing else to vote for!

THE CONFEDERATES ARE IN THEIR HOMES!
A Union of Pennsylvania, the Unconditional Union Party of Delaware Challenges you to Equal This Victory on Your State, next October.

When that whole-hearted, noble Patriot and Statesman, Gen. VERNOR CURTIS, shall be called on to battle!

The municipal election, took place in this city on Tuesday afternoon last. Everything passed off in the most quiet and orderly manner. The result is, that the Unconditional Union men carried every ward, electing a very candidate that they nominated. The City Council now that they are unanimously Unconditional Union, not a confederate head being left in that body; a circumstance unprecedented in the history of party contests in Wilmington. There were 1449 votes polled, being 164 more than in 1862.

Dispatch from Our Minister Prun.
WASHINGTON, September 11.
The following telegram has been received from San Francisco, Sept. 9th:

To the Hon. W. H. Seward, Secy of State: The Hon. W. H. Seward, Secy of State, Washington, July 29, 1863.

Sir: On the 20th of June, the American steamer Penbrooke was attacked at Semonaki, fifty miles from here, by vessels of the Prince Mogoko.

On the 16th of July the Wyoming blew up, his steamer, sunk a tea gun brig, and engaged six batteries, with the loss of four killed and seven wounded.

A French gun boat was fired into on the 8th of July, and a Dutch sloop of war on the 11th of July.

At the same place, on the 20th of July, the French Admiral destroyed one of those batteries.

(Signed) ROBERT H. PRUN, U. S. Minister, resident.

A RARE DISH.—In the bill of fare at one end of the Hartford hotels, last week, "Port Sancerre Defunct" was printed among the choice dishes. Those who tried it, say the Press, said it was cooked with Greek fire, served with Parrots and garnished with grape sauce.

IMPORTANT FROM THE SOUTH.

The Temper of the Southern Rebels.

Indications of an Advance Upon Meade.

LEE URGED TO ADVANCE TO HELPLESS COPPERHEADS.

We have received files of Richmond papers to the 5th. The news from the seat of war has been anticipated, but we give our readers an idea of the temper of the Richmond press, in the following extracts:

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Enquirer, Sept. 11.]
The approaching session of the United States Congress will be one of ordinary interest. During its deliberation, the Presidential campaign of 1864 will be marked out. Political parties will, in the next session of Congress, advocate before the people, as well as mark the gross corruptions that the war has produced. The contest for the Speakership of the House of Representatives will be one of great excitement; if the Democrats are successful, their speaker will have the arrangement and appointment of the various committees of which prepare business for the House, as well as of all the investigating committees, and will conduct the war, the corruption of contracts, the suppression of newspapers, and the arrest and imprisonment of individuals.

The reports of these committees will form the ground-work of the next Presidential campaign. Should Meade be driven into Washington, and the capital of the United States be beleaguered by Confederate armies, the conduct of the war will be a question of life and death. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE VOICE OF THE ARMY.

PENNSYLVANIA SOLDIERS ASK THE ELECTION OF THE SOLDIER'S FRIEND.

IN CAMP, IN VIRGINIA, Sept. 4, 1863.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

From the Officers of the Pennsylvania Brigade of Birney's Division.

FELLOW CITIZENS: We cannot close our eyes to the fact that the interest of the gallant men under our command, now fighting to perpetuate the Republic and the Union, may be jeopardized in the approaching political contest in our State and much as we dislike associating ourselves in any way with politics, we feel necessarily compelled to do so.

So long as the law and practice of the regular army of the Confederate States is little more secure than that of the old field militia organization in time of peace, recruits cannot fill its ranks without a bottom can fill that tub. It may, however, in the country, which might otherwise feed and pay the army which we have sent to fight for us.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.

THE ROAD TO PEACE.
[From the Richmond Examiner.]
The accounts of Quantrell's retreat are as little worthy of belief as those of his conduct at Lawrence. According to these accounts, his command is scattered, and eighty of his men have been killed and sent to death in cold blood. That the Administration should be driven to the point of a confession of failure, and his unfitness for the position of Commander-in-Chief, will become a question of life and death.