HABRISBURG, PA

Monday Evening January 4, 1864. READING MATTER WILL BE FOUND ON EVERY PAGE OF THE DAILY TRL-EGRAPH.

The Meeting of the Legislature. To-morrow the Legislature of Pennsylvaina will be convened in its annual session. As the day of meeting draws nigh, the fear of the embarrassment which it was supposed at first both Houses, is being dispelled by the opinion of Commonwealth, that the condition of parties in the Senate need not delay the business of Senate is regarded in its organization as a perpetual body, ready always for business, with a quorum of Senators constantly upon its rolls, and copperheads, with their large appetite for mischief, and anxious on all occasions to damage the Government to the full extent of their Senate as a pretext for embarrassing the Government by the delay and the confusion of legislation. Our friends will of course resist these efforts, not in a factious or spiteful spirit. but with the determination of men who understand their rights and appreciate the vast importance of the charge confided to their care.

-The legality of the organization of the Senate is as clear as any other well defined Constitutional question of right. As we have already written, this is the position assumed by some of the ablest legal men in the Commonwealth, and we have no doubt, if the question is referred to the present able and patriotic Attorney General of the State, that he would affirm the opinion already expressed and sustain the position taken by the majority as to the organization of the Senate. So far as our friends are concerned, it requires only firnmess on their part to maintain what is a clear and indisputable right in reference to the Senate being organized for business. By doing this, legislation need not be delayed a single day.

On this point, therefore, the people must be wary and watchful. If they are not, the politicians may defeat the re-nomination of Abraham Lincoln, a defeat t which would produce schism among loyal men that might lead to the most disastrous results. Let the popularity, then, of the President among the masses, be made the force of his re-nomination. Let all who truly love their country, in despite the machinations of cliques and the combinations of ambitious aspirants asist upon the re-nomination of Abraham Lincoln as one of the great essential means of effectually vindicating the authority of the Gov ernment and bringing traitors to justice.
