THE EPIPHANY. - This festive season of the Christian Church, which is more or less obthe hour of opening will be eight o'clock. Our served with varied forms and ceremonies by a large portion of the religious world, including for the endless worship of Heaven. Though many Protestant communions, as well as the country friends will also be benefitted by the Roman Catholic, commenced last Wednesday, the 6th instant, and will shortly terminate with the approach of the Lenten season. In Roman Catholic countries, the period from Epi-Montgomery will deliver an address in the phany or the twelfth day after Christmas, down all of the House of Representatives, on which to Ash Wednesday, is regarded as the Carnival basion he will give a graphic description of season, and is devoted, especially the latter he bombardment of Vicksburg. Do not fail partion of it, to merry making and pleasures, in anticipation of the abstemious period of Lent In the English Church and the American Episcopal Church the Epiphany season terminates with the third Sunday before Lent, called in the Calendar Septuagesima Sunday, when there takes place a marked change in the Church services, and they begin to partake of the sombre hue of the approaching season of humiliation. This year Easter Sunday falls on the 27th of March, nearly the earliest period that it can possibly occur, and hence the period between Epiphany and Lent necessarily becomes much shorter this year than it often is. Next Sunday week will be Septuagesima, and thus the Epiphany season this year is brief.

Epiphany, "Twelfth Day" as it is sometimes called, is observed in commemoration of the expressly in the persons of three Magi or Wise Men of the East, whom, the gospel record tells us, came to Jerusalem to worship the new-born ampbell's old veterans, we unintentionally King, being guided from their distant homes celebrated the feast of the Nativity or Christmas for twelve days, observing the first and Epiphany. The first the greater Epiphany, from the Saviour having on that day become ABANDONMENT OF CAMP CURTIN .-- We learn incarnate, or made his appearance in "the miracle of Our Lord in turning water into wine at the marriage in Cana, which great events are especially alluded to in the various religious services with which the day and season are observed. Strange and incongruous as many of the festive observances of the "Twelfth Day" and the period following appear to be, as we read of them in chronicles of the olden time, and is still observed in many quarters, there is evidently underlying all important religious teaching.

Miss Margaret Cunkle.

A modest and quiet Christian woman has Christian, and no sudden surprise of death could find her unprepared for her departure .-Nearly the last duty in which she was engaged on earth was worship with the people of God on Sunday evening last; a fitting preparation she has been long and widely known in this community and warmly appreciated for her Christian character and labors of love, yet but few have known her real usefulness, her worth at home and her quiet charities everywhere. To many her memory is greatly endeared by her tender sympathies in times of sorrow and bereavement. In how many of our families has she ministered to the beloved dead and consoled the stricken living! In how many of our homes, during the sad, dark hours between the dying and the sepulture, has her presence been a comfort and a blessing! She will be missed, greatly missed, in coming days, when those hours return again to our homes, and we look in vain for her coming. But while we grieve over our loss, we joy in her gain; and knowing that when on earth "she did what she could' to make others good and happy, and to serve Christ, we are assured of her safe arrival in "the Christian's Home of Glory," and are glad as though we had seen it with our own A FRIEND.
