"Honorable Mention."

Daily Telearaph THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE FOR PRESIDENT, ABRAHAM LINCOLN. HARRISBURG, PA. TUESDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 9, 1864.

Candidate for Senator.

DR. ST. CLAIR, of the town of Indiana, was nominated on Monday last as a candidate for Senator in place of Major Harry White, resigned. We have no personal acquaintance with Dr. St. Clair, but he is represented to us as an able and popular gentleman-one who will receive the unanimous support of the Union party in the district, and who will on the floor of the Senate truly represent the people and sustain the Government to the utmost. The district consists of Armstrong and Indiana, and will no doubt elect the Boctor by a majority of twenty-five hundred.

A Just Vindication.

Gen. McCall has lately published a report, (unofficial,) in which he replies to certain misrepresentations of Major-General Hooker, made with reference to the conduct of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps, in the battle before Richmond during the latter part of June, 1862. We remember the letter which Gen. Hooker published in Wilkes' New York Spirit of the Times, and when it appeared we published several communications from officers of the Reserve, exposing the false statements into which Hooker had evidently been led by interested parties. Joe Hooker is too brave and too generous a man to do any set of men fighting by his side intentional injustice, and hence we had reason to believe, when his communication appeared in the Times, placing the valor of the Reserve Corps in a questionable position, that the impression in Hooker's mind was produced by the machinations of men who were envious of the fame and the fighting abilities of the gallant Reserves.

-However late in the day Gen. McCall has come forward to vindicate the reputation of his old companions-in-arms, his defence will - have its due share of influence in preserving untarnished the fame of as gallant an organization of men as ever stood shoulder to shoulder "in the cause of mankind." Every true Pennsylvanian must feel and every grateful Union man in the country knows and must acknowledge, that the force and influence of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps maintained the existence of the Republic at the hour of its most imminent peril. Its organization was effected alone upon the responsibility and the expense of the State Government. It was recruited and equipped independently of the other troops raised at the time for the service of the National Government; and most fortunate was it for the life of the nation, that this corps was ready, fully equipped and disciplined, to enter the field, when the Army of the Potomac was driven in dismay and consternation by the panic and the defeat of Bull Run, into the mud holes and ditches around Washington. At that hour, the hopes of the nation clustered around the Pennsylvania Reserves. It was immediately adopted as the nucleus around which to rally the remnants of the Army of the Potomac; and whatever glory that army acquired afterwards, it is nothing more than fair and just to attribute the credit to the discipline and moral influand wielded. Hence the vindication of the

The Bulletin of last evening contains a well written communication, referring to the battle of Gettysburg, in which the writer indulges in certain strictures on the subject of the 'honorable mention" of officers in the army, which are at once original and just. We have long been of the opinion that the practice of 'puffing" men for the mere discharge of a plain duty, is an evil which cannot be too speedily abated. While this evil was confined to the press, it did not carry with it the force which it has assumed since the practice has been introduced in Congress, where the "honorable mention" of certain officers in the army and navy; in nine cases out of ten, results in engendering jealousies and dissatisfaction among a class of public servants who should, of all others, he preserved from such feeling. Nor is this all. These "honorable mentions" often do great injustice to many worthy men, by depriving them of credit which they have fairly earned. The recognitions of legislative bodies, of the services of officers in the field, are the result, nine cases out of ten, of partizan machinations-of political combinations between men who are looking after their own personal interests, while they are supposed to be contributing to the fame and credit of their favorites. Hence the injustice of these "honorable mentions." But there is still another aspect in which this practice can be viewed so far as it relates to the officers of the army, and that is the view which should be taken of it as it may possibly affect the future. As an instance, Congress, in hot haste, a few weeks since, passed a resolution perpetuating the title of Lieutenant-General, and recommending that it be conferred on Major General Grant. So far as the valor which General Grant has already displayed, and the wonderful celerity with which he has won many brilliant victories, we are ready to accord him all the "honorable mention" which is his due. But when it is recollected that a veteran hero and once mighty soldier already wears the title of Lieutenant-General, its lustre is impaired, and its glory diminished, as we attempt to confer the title on others. That title should only be worn by one man in the country, whether he is on the active or the retired list of the army. And who knows that a greater soldier than even Grant may not arise before the rebellion has been crushed. Hence, we may have Lieutenant-Generals accumulating on the army list, until they become as common as sutlers' clerks.

-When the war has been fought to a glorious close-when the authority of the Government has been fully established in all the revolted States-when peace and prosperity again bless us as a people, then it will be time to look around among those who have perilled their lives in defence of the National honor, for names worthy of "honorable menton." Congress and the people can then decide who are deserving, without the fear of doing injustice or of being outrivalled by some new hero to be created by the heat and fury of battle. In the meantime, as long as the Government keeps its covenants and its contracts with its servants in the field and the forum, inthe camp and the cabinet. "honorable mention" can be dispensed with without the fear of doing injustice to any man.

The Payment of the State Interest-A Question for our Fighting Men.

The men of this Commonwealth who are furnishing the muscle, the brain and the valuable lives in defence of the Government, take ence which the Reserve Corps at once imparted | and are satisfied to receive the currency issued by the National Government, to conduct its Pennsylvania Reserve Corps from aspersions business and secure its credit. If these men from any quarter, is a duty which belongs to were not willing to receive this currency, the operations now in progress to save the Government would at once case. If they asked that they should be paid in gold or its equivalent in the bills of credit of the National Government, bankruptcy and ruin would overtake the nation in a single calender month. But the soldier is willing to trust the Government. He cheerfully accepts the money which that Government has at its command to pay him for his services, satisfied while he is doing so, that he is largely contributing to the safety and the credit of the nation. What difference is there between the soldier, as a creditor of the State or nation, and the foreign mercenary? If a soldier who perils his life in defence of the Government, becomes its creditor, is willing to accept in payment of the debt due him, the money which the authorities have to offer, why should not the foreign creditor be compelled to receive the same funds in liquidation of his claims ? There is no reason in justice or equity why such should not be the equal treatment of all the creditors of the State, and such would have been their treatment had it not been for the course of a Democratic State Treasurer, backed by the factious proceedings of a Democratic minority in the State Senate. The English creditor, who furnishes the arms, the ammunition, the clothing and much of the subsistence of those who are engaged in this rebellion, gets $1.50 as an equivalent of the dollar which we owe him-while our soldiers simply get a dollar. This is Democratic justice, and the last spasmodic effort of the treason sympathizers in the free States to aid the rebellion. No longer able to give the traitors the direct aid they so much require, the Democracy are extending their allies comfort through the British speculators who hold our State bonds of indebtedness. The game is a bold one, to fill the pockets of certain politicians at home, and comfort John Bull in his losses by trusting the Southern traitors. And by this means Pennsylvania is to be taxed to support the Southern rebellion. -This subject cannot be too fully ventilated. It is the key to unlock the mystery of Democratic sympathy for treason and hatred of the old flag and the old Union. When the fighting men of the Commonwealth come properly to understand the matter, they will be better able fully to appreciate the Democratic leaders of Pennsylvania.

MINERAL LANDS. -- An important measure is before Congress looking to legislation in regard to these immense interests. As the General Land Office has taken the initiativein collecting minerals and obtaining information in regard to the same; and as the existng machinery of the Land Department would enable it, with but little additional expense, to manage those interests, it has been suggested that the whole jurisdiction of the mater be conferred by law on the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Gov. ANDREW JOHNSON is giving every facility to the residents of Tennessee to vote at the coming election. He has provided means o that all desiring to do so can subscribe to the President's amnesty oath, and receive the proper certificate of protection, which will entitle them to the full benefits of the act.

all true Republicans.

A Rare Instance of Courage, The Boston Herald has proved itself to be a very brave sheet. It suggests the name of Horatio Seymour for nomination by the Democratic National Convention, for the Presidency. In view of the fact that Seymour advocated the doctrine that New England should be "left out in the cold," it must require great nerve for a New England journal to insult all New Englanders by such a proposition. Brave as the Herald has shown itself to be in this act, it will not find a competitor in the National Convention. That body will not dare to place Seymour in nomination and brave public opinion, however desirable such a course may be with the friends of this government. The Union men of the country prefer Seymour to any other candidate that can be presented, unless it is McClellan, who has become a sort of political petrifaction.
