DODGING THE QUESTION.

The editor of the Patriot and Union from the document which refers to a recent address of the Democratic State Committee, advocating the passage, by Congress, of a slave code for the Territories. and accompanies the same with a flat denial, as follows :---

The address of the Democratic Committee clearly said, "we are opposed to the introduction of any provision particularly prefecting slave, or any other kind of property, into an act organizing a Territorial Government."

If our neighbor refers to the address, he will discover that "the Democratic vocating, in plain and unmistakeable lanprotection and perpetuation of slavery in the Territories. From the Democratic address, issued at Harrisburg on the 29th State Committee It reads as follows:

"Where, let us ask, resides the right of emi-nent domain over a Territory of the United States? Is it not admitted by all to be with the Federal Government? Where shall we look for the right and power to ascertain and fix all Territorial boundaries? Is it not to the Federal Territorial boundaries? Is it not to the Federal Government? Where shall we seek ithe right and power and duty to dispose of all lands embraced in the Territory? The answer is, in the Federal Government. Where in the government of a Territory is lodged the executive authority? It is lodged in the hands of a Federal Government? In the keeping of a Territorial Government? In the keeping of a Federal Judiciary. Where is the legislative power? Every one knows it did not exist, and that it could not legally exist, until called into being by the Federal Congress, in the organic act of Territorial Government. In all these demonstrations of power, and there can be none others outside of them in a Territorial Government, we behold the direct, positive and excluding the pretensions of squatter or Territorial Legislative sovereignty, or popular sov ereignty when used as a convertible term with these, as being alike untenable in fact, and preposterous in logic.

But it must be borne in mind that the Federal Government cannot act in a Territory as a despot, or arbitrary ruler; and here is the difference between our doctrine and that of the Wilmot proviscites. It must govern in a Territory in the sense of the Constitution, from which it derives its life and its every function, and it is bound to respect, with strict impartiality, the rights and interests of all parties concerned, these parties being the States and people of the States respectively. Now the Government of a Territory is not natural and indefeasible, but derivative from the Congress; otherwise, the few thousand inhabitants of a Territory, after its acquisition by purchase, or as indemnity for war purposes perhaps, would have the right to set themselves up as a foreign State, if they so liked, and to deny the jurisdiction of the United States. But Congress, when establishing a Government in a Territory, cannot impart to it authority to do, by feeble Territorial enactments, what Congress itself cannot undertake to perform under the Constitution, and can never venture to undertake, except in flagrant usurpation of powers not delegated, but re-served to the States.

"We are opposed, however, to the introduc-tion of any provision particularly protecting slave or any other kind of property, into an act organizing a Territorial Government. But if a Territory attempt nullification or rebellion, in the shape of resistance to acts of Congress, or to judicial decisions in their proper logical and legal consequences, or to any other legitimate acts done in and by virtue of the constitutional lam pastor." authority of the United States over the same then the Federal Government should at once interpose and put it down, not so much for the sake of slave, or any other kind of property, or even of the personal rights of citizens that may be thereby invaded, though constituting a sufficient reason for the movement, as looking to the incressity of its own preservation. But before the happening of any such act of nullification, or rebellion, and at the time of organizing a Territorial Government, the presumptions are all in favor of a legal and peaceful course of political conduct on the part of the inhabitants of a Territory; whereas, the doctrine of Congressional in-tervention would assume the reverse. In flue, we are disposed to maintain on this question and at all times, the fundamental principle of the equality

We ask our neighbor, most respectfully, to tell us whether the above extract does New England, reports that William Pitt not substantially assert the doctrine that Fessenden of Maine is the favorite in that the people of the Territories have no right region as the Republican candidate for the SCHODL BOOKS whatever to legislate on the subject of slavery, and whether the Democratic the duty of the Executive and of Congress to use every honorable exertion to secure his to interfere for the protection of slavery?

Presidency, and pregging themselves to ERMAN WINE.—Schloss Johannis to Ball to interfere for the protection of slavery?

Will DOCK, Jr. door.

Even the Committee appointed by the State Rights Democracy took occasion to allude to this very same matter, in an address issued by them on the 11th of July, 1859, and used the following emphatic language to express their dissent from the doctrines enunciated by ROBERT TYLER on the 29th of June. That Committee

"It is not difficult to discover in this maze o phrases and abstractions the design of the Administration to ignore the popular rule in the Territories, and to substitute Congressional intervention for the protection and perpetuation of slavery. The Democratic sentiment is, that the people of a Territory are sovereign; that a citizen of Penusylvania moving into any one f the Territories of this Union loses none of the rights he possessed in his own State, or becomes less a citizen by changing his residence. That sentiment indignantly denies that slavery is inviolable, as against the popular rule, and rejects, with contempt and scorn, the monstrous assumption that the people of a Territory may legislate upon all their domestic institutions, save and excepting slavery alone

'The direct tendency of the argument of the Administration Committee is to consolidate the Administration Committee is to consolidate the Federal power in the Territory; to plungs Congress and the country into irretrievable and constantly-renewing excitement; to keep open the whole Territorial question in the several States; and to render necessary the most has at last descended from his dignity stringent Congressional legislation, in order to sufficiently to notice the late address of protect the institution of slavery against the people. There is no middle ground on this sufficiently to notice the late address of the State Central Committee, issued by LEVI KLINE, Esq., which was published institutions in the Territories of this Union in the DAILY TELEGRAPH on Friday last.

After paying a deserved compliment to the author of the address, styling him a gentleman of polished manners, and a good lawyer, friend Richard copies an extract from the document which refers to a re-

Constitution for the people.
"What has the Democratic party meant by its resolutions, and covenants, and committals on this Territorial question, during many long years, if the sequel is to leave us in the shame-less attitude of denying to the people all right to "form and regulate" all their domestic institutions, while in a Territorial condition, and to leave them at the mercy of the changing majorities of Congress, and the varying factions of the day, while undergoing the trials of Territorial existence? Is it possible that all our boasted professions of justice and fair-dealing to our fellow-countrymen in the Territories of this Union are to close in such a farce as this?
It is an insult to the chivalry, and integrity; he will discover that "the Democratic and sensitive spirit of the Democratic party to suppose that this usurpation will ever be tolerated. As an illustration of the manner in vocating, in plain and unmistakeable lan-which Federal power proposes to allow the guage, Congressional intervention for the people of a Territory, even when they come to form a State Constitution, to dispose of the question of slavery, it is only necessary to recall recent events in Kansas, when repeated majorities righteously expressed, were set at defiance by the mercenaries of the present of June last, and signed by Mr. Robert Administration, and a State organization denied to the people; only because they would not declare in favor of the institution of slavery.

Sustains the charge made by the People's the results of the people intervention against the boundary rule at the way stage when we are now than the people in the results of the people in the peopl popular rule at the very stage when we are now told that popular rule may operate! We must anticipate and arm ourselves for the future, with the instructive admonitions of the past."

favor of the enactment of a slave code for the Territories, and has committed the Democratic party of Pennsylvania in favor of it. Our neighbor of the Union, with all his artful dodging, must come to this conclusion at last.

The Democratic State Convention postponed the appointment of Delegates to Charleston to a State Convention to be held on the 22d of February. This is a decisive triumph of the Seymour and Administration interests, over the Douglas partisans. The postponement was carried by a close vote. The Douglas men feel very sore over the result.

THE BIVAL ROPE WALKERS. De Lave Lowers himself to the water and Blondin takes a Night Walk.

Wednesday was another great day at Genesee Falls, and Niagara. De Lave's performances are thus described by the Rochester Democrat: De Lave appeared at 4 o'clock precisely having strapped on his back a chair and a salver, upon which were a lot of small cakes which vere to serve as his lunch. He immediately took up his pole and started out. When about the middle of the chasm he stopped and sat down. Taking the chair from his back, he addown. Taking the chair from his take, the adjusted it on the rope, seated himself in it, and composedly ate up the cakes from the salver, which lay in his lap during the operation.—Having concluded his meal, he threw overboard his chair and salver, and proceeded to the west side of the river, stopping once or twice to lia down, stand on one foot, etc. After a delay of ten minutes, he started again, till he got over the brink of the falls, and then he carried out his promise to lower himself down to the sheet of water and dip a draught from the flood.

He tied his balance pole to the rope, slided down and took a drink, and then returned to the rope above with great case. The rest of the performances were of the usual character. Many did not stay to see the thing through Blondin, not to be excelled, astonished the natives by taking a night walk, which is thus described by the Buffalo Courier: Blondin dressed himself in a linen suit, with his frock he has so often worn, armed himself with his balancing pole, to which he had at tached some brilliant lights of various colors, and then sending forth a rocket, which pierced far up into the deep blue, he proceeded rapid ly down the rope, and was distinctly visible upon either side. Unfortunately the light upon one end of the pole became detached and fell into the river. The sight was not so pretty as we think, he did not see much. Standing on his head at night on a rope over the chasm of Niagara must be sport! Arising he passed on. Soon after the other light fell from his pole, and Blondin was left in impenetrable darkness.

Above, around, beneath, all was dark. Nothing more was heard or seen of him until a shout from the opposite shore announced that he had safely crossed the flood. At a little after, he started on his return, surrounded with fire-works, consisting of Roman candles, which gave a pleasing appearance. He was literally onveloped in a blaze. When about midway, he laid down his pole, and stood up erect-inverted. Then he suspended himselt below the rope by the heels, and there he remained drum-ming on his chest until his campures were all extinguished. There he was let as before, in in utter darkness. A live Yankee, who was standing by, said he wondered if he would "stay there allers." A shout on the bank announced his safe arrival home. Thus ended M. Blondin's night walking.
