SOLE IMPORTERS. No. 338 BROADWAY, N. Y.

This DELICIOUS TONIC, especially designed for the use of the MEDICAL PROFESSION and the FAMILY, possesses those intrinsic medicinal properties (Tonic and Diuretic) which belong to an Old and PURE GIN. The business of manufacturing spurious gins, and offering them as beverages, under the titles, "Aromatic,"-"Cordial,"-"Medicated," etc., has become so common, that the public are justly suspicious of nearly everything that is offered under similar forms, and the trade has thus been brought into disrepute. It has remained for our house (established in 1778) to supply the pressing popular need, and to inaugurate a new era in the history of the Trade We trust that our established reputation -founded upon eighty years of experi-ence-abundantly vindicates our claim to public confidence.

N. B.

A comparison of "Bininger's Old London Dock Gin" with others bearing similar finnes, will establish its superiority, and make other CAUTION UDDECCESSARY.

respectable, orderly man." Further than that respectable, orderly man. Further than that she did not inquire, biaconstisfied that her own sagacity was sufficient and other discoveries. The next morning Clara was promenading, among other people, on a given diaxea, at-tended by a midshipman by the name of West-over, whose warrant was of very recent date, and who was much admired by the extremely and who was much admired by the extremely ately followed by that of a gentleman, also a mewcomer, who had emerged from an apart ment opening into the same lobby with their own, and who passed down the eating room simultaneously with themselves, though on the other side. As there was nothing in his appearance to denote either the dignitary, the dandy, or the nabob, he was allowed to make his way without a second look from any one. He was rather young than middle aged, was W88 boatswain ! It is easy to tell that he has never been on shipboard by the way he talks to eve of the medium size, and nothing about him looked beyond the common medium, though rybody; "and she stepped forward to put a check to his dangerous eloquence. "Dear me, Mr. Westover," said she, looked beyond the common medium, though a very little more attention to his person, air and dress might have rendered him rather handsome, instead of merely "well enough." His beat at the table was exactly opposite to that of Mrs. Cripps, and as he slid quietly into it, he cast a single glance at her, and another at her graceful charge, and then looked neither to the right nor left, but seemed to have bent att her grate upon his hread and butter "don't you feel very much smothered, this reasting weather, with having that thick blue cloth coat buttoned up to your chin? It seems hard that you officers can't be allowed to make yourselves comfortable like common people. Don't you envy that gen-tleman that they call Mr. Page, sitting there on a settee, looking so cool in his suit of white linen? Do you know him?" to the right nor left, but seemed to have bent all his thoughts upon his bread and butter. Clara has met his byes, and received an indis-tinct impression that they were dark and fine, though she was not sufficiently struck by them to question whether they were gray or brown, but Mrs. Cripps, after seating herself, examin-ed him as far as she could above an egg steamer and mentally resolved to look-again. While waiting for her second cup of coffee, the old "He had an introduction to me_this morning, ma'am-he seems a dry, poor creature.

"My dear aunt !" said Clara, drawing and mentally resolved to home again. While waiting for her second cup of coffee, the old lady raised her glasses and began her prede termined survey of the company. It was un-satisfactory until it returned to her neighbor opposite, and then the expected nudge was giv-
