BASE MISREPRESENTATION.

We find in the Philadelphia Inquirer of this morning the following :-Special Despatch to the Inquirer.

HARRISBURG, August 22, 1860. A meeting of the State Executive Committee of the Constitutional Union Party of Pennsyl vania was held to-day.

The Committee met at two o'clock at Coverly's Hotel, Hon. HENRY M. FULLER in the chair Every district in the State was represented, and the utmost harmony and good feeling was evinced by the delegates.

It is true that a meeting of the Committee was held in a back room of Coverly's Hotel, and that our amiable friend Mr. Fuller presided; but it is false that every district in the State was represented. Not over six persons were present at any time, three of them hailing from utmost harmony prevailed in that large

The meeting held in the evening was a An old Democrat presided at the meeting, and that same party did all the stamping and cheering. Not a solitary man who has heretofore acted with us in our party organization took part in the meeting. The whole thing was so apparent a Locofoco move that no respectable Opposition man would be found in their company.

HENRY FRYSINGER, one of the editors cate his desk in one of the departments at Washington. He is an office-holder under Buchanan, whose profession is to allow men to act in politics as they please, but whose practice is to force them, when he Providence as any that ever marked the has the power, to do as he desires. Frysinger, the scribe at Washington, has been one of the most fulsome adulators of the power that thus suppresses his opinion and preference (if he ever possessed either) ever since it was inaugurated-and about the 10th of next March will again print a salutatory in the Democrat as one of its editors.

MR. HALSTEAD, the editor of the Cincinnati Commercial goes for Lincoln, because he will turn out fall the ins, which he thinks has become an absolute necessity, if the Republic is to be saved. Whoever gets in, ought to do this, if he would do justice.

THE New York papers have it that Mr. Charles G. McChesney, the Bell elector on the Breckinridge ticket of New Jersey, has declined to serve, having determined to vote for Lincoln. We do not wonder Tariff bill in the Senate, by making its acquaintances in good old Centre county. at his refusal to sell his principles for success a secondary object of his adminis-Breckinridge porridge.

OLD-LINE WHIGS. Sixteen years ago the Whig party of America was, intellectually, the most powerful political organization that ever discussed a principle or agitated a policy of government. Eighteen years ago, the voice of Henry Clay rang from the Senate Chamber, and was echoed along every river, among the mountains, and over every plain of the country, stirring the ranks of the Whig party with that animation that men so seldom feel now, and that devotion to principle which characterizes so few of the political leaders of the present. Sixteen years ago, Webster was contending for precisely those principles which now press home a solemn duty on every American citizen-the protection of labor and the spread of liberty. Clay, Webster, Evans, Clayton, Corwin, and their compeers, the leaders of the old Whig party, were opposed then, for their efforts to restrict the spread of slavery and enhance the interests of free white labor, as steadily as are the leaders of the Republican party combatted for struggling to maintain identically the same principles. When Henry Clay first broached his plan of ameliorating American slavery, by the gradual colonization of the African slave, by aiding them in the erection of a free government, eventually to become our friend and ally, he was as bitterly opposed by the Southern people, and as malignantly denounced by Southern politicians, as are the misinterpreted "irrepressible conflicts' of Seward execrated, or the protective policy of Cameron and the Republican party thwarted and defeated in the American Senate, by the representatives of the principles that armed and imparted strength and venom to the enemies of Clay and Webster. The suggestion to colonize the free black, was the admission of an impending conflict between races-it was the dawning proposition for the conflict between free white and black slave labor, which no scheme of legislation or cunning diplomat can suppress. Clay, comprehending the future as he grasped the present, saw the approaching and the irresistible as well as irrepressible conflict, and he was willing to prepare for its improvements. He was willing to clear a path for the progress of the white man, and to remove any obstacle in the way of the improvement and development of the country and its resources. The old Whig party, from the day of its organization, battled against wrong, and struggled to establish and maintain right. When it was disbanded, it lost nothing but its name. Its name went down into the grave of Clay and Webster. Its principles survived its organic dissolution, and are now as liberally recognized by the American people as ever they were sustained by their great defenders. They are as bitterly opposed now as they were Philadelphia. We have no doubt the eighteen years ago. The same men who The meeting held in the evening was a once pleaded to establish. And in the miserable failure; but very few persons transposition of parties, with their changes possible. The Association promise to in Montgomery county, opposite Manayunk, sustained much damage. The dam was carried away, and the stables are not on the stables and the stables and the stables are not on the stables are not one of the stables are not on the stables are not only the stables are not Whigs, or bitter slavery propagandists to the spread of slavery, and of an economical administration of the government in all departments. > In the face of this condition of parties and principles, we occasionally hear of an "old line whig" who is opposed to the Republican party. In 1856, this roving element of strength, so fondly caressed by office hunters, was attracted to the support of James Buchanan. In return for such support, what principle of the old line whig policy was put in practical operation by James Buchanan? Did he of the Centre county Democrat, was in wield the immense power of his official Harrisburg yesterday. Buchanan attempted either to establish or vindicate a principle once advocated and proclaimed by the leaders of the old fied to notice that the above gentleman whig party. On the contrary, he has been nominated for the Senate in the sought to nullify the influence of those principles, as illustrated by the action of Huntingdon, Bedford and Somerset. Mr. the popular legislative branch of the S. has been an active partizan for many triumph to the public square where a meeting the popular legislative branch of the S. has been an active partizant lot many was organized and and speeches were made by government. He defeated the Tariff and years and is well versed in legislative Col. Wharton, Maj. Campbell and J. D. Camphausted the revenue by extravagance, county in the lower House. He will make expenses. And yet, with these facts staring them in the face, such old-line whigs as Reverdy Johnson, of Maryland, Josiah Randall, of Pennsylvania, and others of a similar ilk, like the miscellaneous articles of "kitchen furniture, too numerous to mention," support James Buchanan in the name and by authority of their "old line whig" proclivities. The justification is as impious as the deed is sacriligious. The men who supported the principles of Clay and Webster because they believed in their patriotism, were never attracted to the administration of James Buchanan by its principles or its integrity. "The old line whigs" who now cling to the fallen fortunes and divided ranks of Democracy, do so not because they hope to promote a principle, but bocause they expect, in the general wreck of the corruptions of Democracy, to secure self aggrandisement and gratify selfish feelings of pride. "The old line whig" who really regards the interests of his country, who hallows the names of Clay and Webster, who honors the patriotism of their purposes, can only find a party and principle in the Republican organization. In its creed he will find the Constitutional doctrine which Webster proclaimed, when South Carolina was plotting nullification. In its platform he will discover the great principles of protection to labor which Clay struggled to establish.
