FOR PRESIDENT:

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

OF ILLINOIS.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT:

HANNIBAL HAMLIN, OF MAINE.

Legislative Benefits.

There is no feature in our present form of government wherein the voice of the people is more potent than the Legislative branch. Made necessarily such by being comprised entirely of representatives directly from the people, the legislators of a State represent the wants of the [people, and are specially delegated and empowered to provide for such wants, and enact laws for a general distribution of the benefits and burdens of government.-While such was the intention of those who conceived the great idea of a representative government, it has not always occurred that the wise designs of the founders of this government were faithfully adhered to by those who have come after mer place of residence in Virginia to Misthem as the originators of law and the ad- souri, with his slave Henson, twelve for Lincoln and Hamlin. The Auburn ministrators of public justice. The acts | years of age, when the steamer stopped at of a Legislature have become mere grants Cincinnati, Ohio, and the boy was brought Judges of the Supreme Court of that of special privilege, embracing the right on habeas corpus before a United States to do certain things, the recipients being Court. Counsul argued that the boy was exempted from the responsibility which is found within the jurisdiction of the State imposed on every private citizen in his of Ohio, and as slavery could not exist relation to the government from which he receives protection after yielding obedi- boy must be declared free. The Enquirer ence to its laws. These grants of special of the 11th inst. says: "The Court held privilege, however, have frequently resulted in good to the community, as in the case where a single individual cannot project or successfully carry on a great enterprise. In such cases it often becomes necessary for legislative interposition and aid, in order to attract private capital to public uses, as well as invite the application of individual energy and genius, to the development of the resources and the establishment of markets for the trade and commerce of communities. Such grants are the necessary attendants on our progress. As we expand and enlarge our business-as our wealth increases by production, great enterprises necessarily follow, and great achievements are aimed at still further to augment our riches and increase our power. But it has become an alarming feature in the acts of the Legislature of this State to grant the most extravagant privileges to corporations which already wield too much influence on the destiny and business of the Commonwealth, and which, if not curbed, threaten the usurpation of the powers alone vested in the government, as well as the corruption of those who come to Harrisburg delegated to le gislate for the welfare of the people of the entire State. Improvident legislation the grants of special privileges and indi vidual power, have heretofore had a most baleful influence on the business and pro gress of Pennsylvania. Out of such le gislation has grown a debt which now encumbers all our energies and enterprises. From the example then set, new ideas of monopoly were conceived and carried out. until the Keystone State tottered to the verge of bankruptcy, from which it was only rescued by the prompt interposition of a reform springing from other sources the Republican party. -The Republican party have succeeded in electing a large majority of members of the approaching session of the Pennsylvania Legislature. Already is public attention directed towards that majority, and commensurate with their interests and wants, the hopes and the fears of the people rise as the session of the Legislature approaches. The duty with which every Republican is bound to serve the principles on which he was elected is solemn. important and imperative. That Republican majority will be approached from all directions, by all sorts of men, for all sorts of purposes. Corporations, backed by their immense capital, will fill Harrisburg with their satellites, to corrupt with money where they cannot convince with sophistry, and pollute and prostitute the powers of legislation exclusively to their own benefit, privilege and profit. Against the Legislature as they would shield the State from the invasion of a foreign hostile army. One single act of the approach ing session of the Legislature may rob Pennsylvania of millions of dollars, and ture, but the plain open truth that comes to us on the resistance of a mere creature The Knights of the Golden Circle, who of the law, refusing to discharge its sol- have been so far benighted as to march to emn obligation to this Commonwealthand if the people are not wary and watchful, even if this stupendous scheme of plunder and repudiation is not successful Ranchero says:during the coming winter, its base intentions will only be held in reserve to be persevered in until it can be successfully accomplished. Pennsylvania cannot afford to diminish her revenues without resorting to direct taxation. If the Legislature of the State overreaches its powers by rescinding the obligations of some corporations, and increasing the privileges of others, a resort to direct taxation must necessarily follow, or the debt of the State must be still further increased to meet the expenses of government. This is the only solution of the question as to the justice of repealing any provision taxing any corporation in the State of Pennsylvania. This is the only view the people take of the whole subject. To this solution and view the action of the Legislature is bound to conform, or those who depart from them will never again rise to public position or legislative confidence.

SLAVE CASE IN OHIO .- Lewis Bruce was travelling on the Ohio, from his forunder the Constitution of that State, the that, although the jurisdiction of our Courts extended for many purposes to boats on the Ohio river, the citizens of Virginia and other States bordering on the South had a right to the free navigation of the river; that the stopping of boats and tying up at the landing was a necessary incident to the right of free navigation, and as such rested on a higher basis than the mere jurisdiction of the

THE CHOCTAW NATION seems to be model community. All lands, it is said, are held in common, and each Indian, or those connected with him by affinity or consanguinity, sottle down, and no one is allowed to come nearer than a quarter of a mile of this enclosure; and that is his claim, and he is protected in its possession by the laws of the nation, as though it were his in fee simple. Merchants, mechanics, professional men, machinists, &c., are allowed to live there by permit from the annual report of that insutation, cannot the annual report of that insutation, tannot the annual report of that insutation, tannot ing its condition as prosperous and promising. W. W. Latta presented a report on the minutes of the General Assembly, which use of the nation.

WHAT THEY SAY AT THE SOUTH .-The Memphis, Tenn., Daily Argus, in speaking of the results of the recent elections, talks coolly enough for a more northern latitude. We commend its philosophy to the disunion alarmists of this State. It says :-

The South feels it to be a misfortune that a Republican President should be elected, but than those then in power, and from which, each and every politician would rather this should be than that his own favorite candidate too, has arisen the present organization of should be than that his own rayorite candidate should be abandoned. The South love south-ern principles, institutions, rights and privi-leges, but it loves party and party politicians better; and it must abide the consequences.— A house divided against itself cannot reasonably be expected to stand. We have no fear of a disunion of these States. That is a result not to be effected or even mentioned; but we do apprehend all the evil consequences to the South and to southern interests which can flow from placing the government in the hands of a Northern sectional party, and we counsel union in the South against sectionalism in the North.

RAILROAD WAR .- The Chicago Democrat says that the competition between the several railroad and steamboat lines connecting that city with St. Paul, Minnesota, has again culminated in an open war. Rates of fare have been put down to the figure of five dollars and a half for first class passage from Chicago to St. Paul; to Chicago the passenger can make his own terms, being taken for three dollars, or for nothing, as he chooses. The steamers charge nothing from St. Paul to such an occurrence the people must guard Dunleith, or to the other railroad termini on the river.

AN EDITOR EXCOMMUNICATED .- A

LINCOLN'S ANSWER IN 1854 EXACTLY IT TUNE IN 1860 .- In October, 1854, Abraham Lincoln closed one of his ablest speeches on the then recent repeal of the Missouri Compromise and the man who perpetrated the deed by saying that if Douglas would not admit the facts of history, and would continually fly from his own premises, no argument would put from the Importers, an end to his sophistries. "In that case," said Mr. L., "I can only commend him to the seventy thousand answers from Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana."
