HARRISBURG, PA. Saturday Afternoon, October 27, 1860.

FOR PRESIDENT: ABRAHAM LINCOLN OF ILLINOIS. FOR VICE PRESIDENT: HANNIBAL HAMLIN, OF MAINE.

- ELECTORS: JAMES POLLOCK, THOMAS M. HOWE, EDWARD C. KNIGHT, ROBERT P. KING, HENRY BUMM, ROBERT M. FOUST, NATHAN HILLES, JOHN M. BROOMALL, JAMES W. FULLER, DAVID E. STOUT, FRANCIS W. CHRIST, DAVID MUMMA, JR., DAVID TAGGART, THOMAS R. HULL, FRANCIS B. PENNIMAN, ULYSSES MERCUR, GEORGE BRESSLER, A. BRADY SHARPE, DANIEL O. GEEB, SAMUEL CALVIN, EDGAR COWAN, WILLIAM MCKENNAN, JOHN M. KIRKPATRICK, JAMES KERR, RICHARD P. ROBERTS, HENRY SOUTHER, JOHN GREER.

Pennsylvania and New York.

The people of the Union seem to regard the contest for President in these two great commonwealths, Pennsylvania and New York, with an interest that will lead many of them to forget the duty incumbent on them in their own locality. Alternately the battle is rewarded from one to the other of these States, and as the fears or hopes of our opponents may dictate, the result is estimated on the calculated vote that each of these States will give for or against one or the other of these Presidential candidates. To-day the market is stocked with the notion that if a fusion is consummated, New York can be carried for Douglas, and at once the cry goes forth that Lincoln will be defeated. At once New York becomes the battle ground, where money and men are directed with all the lavishness of dishonesty, and the desperation of a desperate cause. Again the scene of battle is changed and Pennsylvania becomes the warlike ground on which to decide not only the existence of parties, but the fate of the Union itself. Thus the factions in the opposition shift their strength, and deposit and disburse the money which they are forcing from their friends on the one side or levying on the poor office holders on the other. By these constant shiftings and false alarms, they hope to mislead public sentiment in one or both of these States, and if possible deprive Abraham Lincoln of the electoral vote of either New York or Pennsylvania. In either event the object to be achieved is not the election of a President by the people. What is aimed at, and what these factions now struggle for, is to defeat the election by the people, throw the subject into the House of Representatives where the preferences and principles of a large majority of the American people would be utterly overthrown and abrogated. This is all that is aimed at by fusion in Pennsylvania. More than defeating Lincoln before the people is not desired by the tricksters at work in New York, and hence their utter reckless disregard of principle, manly integrity or patriotic conviction of duty. If money is all that is necessary to carry either New York or Pennsylvania, the merchants in the metropolis of both States are appealed to and the funds are forth coming. If desperate men are required, the purloiners of the Quaker city and Gotham are ransacked to supply the demand. Thus from day to day, the people of the Union are assailed with threats and promises in regard to these two great States, until they have become weary of the constant change, weary of the men who thus mislead them, and anxious to demonstrate to the Union that they are not the supple tools which these political gamblers deem them.

—So far as Pennsylvania is concerned, we have no fear. In this contest every issue conspires in favor of the State going for Lincoln, because

1st. The vital interests and resources of Pennsylvania need protection before they can properly compete with the manufacturers and resources of the world.—This protection can only be derived from the Republican party. Experience has proven that the Democratic party is averse to the protection of labor, and whenever the opportunity arises that same Democratic party which, under the lead of Dallas, betrayed the interests of Pennsylvania, will again sacrifice them should a similar emergency occur.

2nd. The success of free labor depends on protection. If it is not encouraged and protected, it is bound to languish and decline. As soon as this decline becomes apparent, and as soon also as its helplessness is discovered, slavery asserts its superiority, and free institutions become the speedy prey of decay. No other party in existence can avert such a fate, but the Republican—and understanding this fact, it is not probable that a people, who have so much involved in protected industry, and who so honestly abhor slavery with all its attendant evils, will vote so as to aid the fusion movements of those who are pledged to the destruction of the interests of free labor by encouraging slavery, who are determined to depreciate our resources by prostituting our enterprise, and make us, to all intents and purposes, dependent on the will and caprice of the slave power.

These two considerations, both affecting the interests that go to make up the wealth and prosperity not only of one State but of the whole Union, constitute the issues with the people in Pennsylvania, however the politician may attempt to shirk them, and however false issues may be raised to attract the people from the real merits of the questions involved in the contest. In Pennsylvania, every man has a vital interest in the result of the Presidential election. His labor is in the scale, and with it his domestic comfort, his social position and individual influence. Refuse to protect his labor, and he loses domestic comfort, social position and individual influence. The same consideration that influences the masses in this commonwealth, will have its effect on the masses in New York. In both States the people are moving forward without the aid or advice of the politicians. In Pennsylvania particularly, the determination, to repudiate the popular leading of a few interested demagogues is becoming stronger every day. Of this fact we want our friends—at home and abroad to be fully apprised. Let no man deceive himself in regard to the boasted influence of any set of leaders. Let no leader, either, depend on his money and his lies for success. Because the people of Pennsylvania will increase the vote of Abraham Lincoln over that given to A. G. Curtin at least thirty thousand. Pennsylvania is good for sixty thousand majority for Lincoln and Hamlin!

THE YEAR has been exceedingly prosperous, is the cry of the leading commercial organs of New York city, and the trade with the South is unabated, is their other boast. Of course no sane or reasonable man expected it would be otherwise, for the money cormorants of the commercial emporiums of the North, under the present revenue laws, that open our ports to the free importation of the manufactured fabrics of Europe. And yet these same journals are constantly prating about disunion. They are constantly holding up the ghastly form of secession to intimidate and influence Northern mechanics and laboring men. As the trade now runs, only one class of men are benefitted. The importers of the North and the retailers at the South are the great consuming portion of the community are not only compelled to pay exorbitant prices for what they use, in order to make up interests on long credits, but they are often forced to do entirely without the necessities of life, because these excessive importations drain the country of its capital, the capitalist of his enterprise, and the laboring man of his remuneration. Neither the great mass of the North or the South are benefitted by such a system, and it is time that they understand the real merits of the imposition practiced on them by the merchants of New York. It is time that the producer learns the difference between paying for an article that is manufactured abroad and purchasing one that is produced at home. If they wish to retain their capital, increase their energies, and consolidate their strength, they will stop pouring their wealth into the laps of speculating merchants, who yearly drain the country of its wealth that they may keep up a ruinous foreign trade. The election of Abraham Lincoln will make some difference on this subject, and will have a tendency to distribute more of the benefits of prosperity beyond the mere circles of commercial trade and speculation. The laboring men and mechanics would come in for their just share, classes of whom the merchant princes never dream.

The Oregon Legislature.

The late election for Senators in Oregon is eliciting various commentaries from our cotemporaries, all of whom argue that beyond the North-west of the great Mississippi valley there is another great North-west, which has just made itself heard in tones rather disagreeable to the Secessionists. General Lane has, after being so long loyal to slavery, been repudiated in his own State. A Republican and an anti-Lecompton Democrat will reflect more truly public sentiment in Oregon than the man whose principal efforts for some years have tended to foster disunionism. His nerves, we fancy, must have been slightly shocked on receipt of the disagreeable news, more particularly after his partisans had displayed the cloven-foot so conspicuously by deserting the Senate chamber and taking to the bush.

The change of public opinion is easily explained. The pioneer settlers usually consist of men who are bold, enterprising and laborious, but who necessarily have not the facilities for making themselves thoroughly acquainted with the true nature of political and other questions before the country. They are, accordingly, liable to be duped by demagogues. But the filling up of the country brings books, newspapers and such superior means of intelligence. The people have more time to inquire and reflect; the consequence is that a revolution takes place. The noisy demagogue is dismissed and soon finds his level in other pursuits, while his place is taken by men of higher abilities, and very often of the opposite party in politics.

Oregon has only followed the example of the Northwestern States in their early history; she has now undergone the second and more agreeable transformation. Democracy wilted and died under the first touch of frost in the North-west. Since the result has been made known, General Joseph Lano has declared his intention of repudiating the people of Oregon and of once more seeking the pine-tree shades and tar of his native State, North Carolina. In this determination he is to be followed by every Southern man who can possibly leave the State of Oregon, which a calculation will prove very small.

The Herald Concedes New York to Lincoln by a Large Majority.

The New York Herald, of yesterday, in a lengthy article relative to the coming election, honestly concedes the State to Lincoln, and his election to the Presidency, and advises all parties to shape their course to that event. The Republicans claim the State by from fifty to seventy thousand majority. We quote from the Herald as follows:— It is universally conceded that, unless the vote of New York can be turned against him, Lincoln's election is inevitable. Common justice to all concerned demands that the idea that "something may turn up" to redeem New York should be abandoned. New York will vote for Lincoln, and by a larger majority, we dare say, than any other State. Lincoln will be elected. There is no use in mincing the matter any longer. We are called upon to look this thing full in the face. The best that our Union forces can now do is to save all the odds and ends of the election within their reach, such as Congressmen, Assemblymen and county officers. Lincoln will be elected, and all parties concerned may as well just now shape their course to that event as to wait till the day after the election.

THE LADIES of the Washington National Monument Society are now engaged in sending out circulars in the way of appeal to the judges of elections, to editors, and the whole people of the United States, to aid them in the collection of the funds to complete the monument, the contributions to be made at the polls on the day of the Presidential election. This is an excellent suggestion, and we have no doubt that a large amount can be raised by the plan proposed. How many men are there in Pennsylvania who could not deposit a gold dollar in some box appropriate for its reception while he deposits his vote in the ballot box. The gold dollar would be a small tribute to him who secured to us all the glorious privileges, more valuable than all the gold in the country, of exercising the franchise. We recommend this plan to our friends throughout the State of Pennsylvania, and as the time is short, we suggest that measures be at once taken to have boxes placed at every election window in Dauphin county. Surely we can interest ourselves sufficient in this matter to assist the efforts of the ladies who are untiring and unceasing in their labors to prosecute the erection of the Washington Monument to successful completion. We urge this matter, too, on the young men of the State, as being peculiarly a work devolving on them.
