THE inventor and manufacturer of "Judson's Mountain Herb Fills," has spent the greater part of his life in travelling, having visited nearly every country in the world. He spent over six years amon the Rocky Mountains and of Mexico, and it was thus that the "Hountain Herb Fills," were discovered. A yery interesting account of his advontures there, you will ind in our Almanac and Pamphlet.

It is an established fact, that all diseases arise from IMPUKE BLOOD:

The blood is the life I and when any foreign or unhealthy matter gets mixed with it, it is once distributed to severy organ of the body. Every nerve feels the polson, and all the vital organs quickly complain. The stomach will not digest the food perfectly. The liver ceases to secrete a sufficiency of bile. The action of the heart is weakened, and so the circulation is feeble. The lurge be come clogged with the poisonous matter; hence a sough—and all from a slight impurity of the fountain-head of life—the Blood! As if you had thrown some earth, for instance, in a pure spring, from which ran a tiny rivulein a few minutes the whole course of the stream be, comes disturbed and discolored. As quickly does impure blood fly to every part, and leave its sting behind. All the passages become obstructed, and unless the obstruction is removed, the lamp of life soon dies out.

These pills not only purify the blood, but regenerate all the secretions of the body, they are, therefore, unrivalled

TRODDEN FLOWERS.

BY ALFIED TENNYSON.

There are some hearts that, like the loving vine, Cling to unkindly rocks and rained towers; Spirits that suffer and donot repine, Patient and swe it as lowly trodden flowers. That from the passer's heel arise, And give back odorous breath instead of sighs. But there are other hearts that will not feel

The lowly love that haunts their eyes and ears; That wound fond faith with anger worse than stee!, And out of pity's spring draw idle tears. O, Nature! shall it ever be thy will In things with good to mingle good and ill?

Why should the heavy foot of sorrow press
The willing heart of uncomplaining love—
Meek charity that shrinks my trom distress,
Gentleness does her tyrants so reprove—
Though virtue weep love er and tament,
Will one hard beart turn to her and relent?

-Why should the reed to broken that will bend, and they that dry the tears in other's eyes feel their own anguish swelling without end, Their summer darkened with the smoke of slina? Sure, Love to some fair Eden of his own Will fleet at last and leave us here alone.

Love weepeth always; weepeth for the past,
For wees that are for wees that may bettide
Why should not hard ambition weep at last,
Envy and hatred, avarice and pride?
Fate whispers for row ever is your lot,
They would be rebels—love rebelleth not.

For sale at formed and application made to the French Government for permission to lay mains in the city of Paris to convey air to all houses where it was desired either for power or for ventilation. We have heard nothing more about this company, but the subject is still mooted in mechanical circles, and the details of the work are gradually being elaborated. The last of which we have heard is a machine for the compression of air, the invention of Mr. Vonwiller, which the editor of Cosmos has seen in operation in a workshop in Paris. It operates on the in a workshop in Paris. It operates on the same principle as the bucket water-wheel, exsame principle as the buckets water-will of covere that instead of using the tendency of water to fall through air, the tendency of air to rise through water is used, the wheel revolving in water, and the compressed air being let down under and into the buckets, which it raises by its ascensive force. A reversal of the machine, using force to turn the which will of covere using force to turn the wheel, will of course compress the air, the inverted buckets taking it from the atmosphere at its natural tension it from the atmosphere at its natural tension and carrying it down into the water. It becomes compressed as it descends, and is finally set free at a certain depth, the degree of compression depending upon the depth to which it is submerged. A tube with a funnel-shaped mouth, placed immediately over the point where it is discharged by the buckets, receives it in its compressed state, and it may then be carried to a distance and used for ventilation power of a water-fall may be utilized at a distance without great loss of power.

M. Mendt has invented a very simple contri-vance for the decomposition of water and the combustion of the hydrogen thus gained. The apparatus consists of a small copper boiler provided with a safety valve and pipe which passes into a tubular bottle with two necks placed near the boiler. From the second neck another tube passes under the boiler. Half a gallon of water is poured into the boiler, and a pint of week tar water into the bottle. A spirit-lamp applied to the boiler and the steam thus generated goes into the bottle, whence it yields its oxygen to the tar, and the hydrogen accumulating in the bottle passes through the second tube to the bottom of the beiler, where it meets the flame of the spirit lamp. As soon as the hydrogen begins to burn the spirit-lamp may be taken away, and the process continues until all the water is burned.

At the last meeting of the New York Eth-

The committee saw an illustrated book on the quarrying and smelting of copper, one of a series of industrial hand-books with which they were very much struck. They say it conveys the knowledge it treats of in fewer words than are used in our prefaces or intro-ductions, and that the illustrations are so full and plain that the ordinary English readers and plain that the ordinary English readers can be at no loss as to any particular. Fourteen pages are occupied by outline pictures, slightly shaded and colored, representing all the details and operations from quarrying to marking and packing the copper. THE ROMANCE OF MARRIAGE -"By the time the husband has seen his wife eat heartily of pork and beans, and with her hair frizzled, and her oldest dress on, full of the enterprise of overhauling things, he sees that she belongs to the same race as himself. And she, when her husband gets up cross in the morning, and undertakes to shave himself with cold water and dertakes to shave himself with cold water and a dull razzr, while his suspenders drapple at his heels, begins to see that the man is a very prosaic animal." It seems then, that if wives would cease eating pork, and husbands cease shaving, two very unnecessry acts, the honeymoon would never pale.
