CONCENTRATED LEAVEN,
FOR MAKING
Bread, Tea-Cakes, all kinds of Pastry, &c.
MANUFACTURED BY
EDW. CHAMBERLIN & CO.,
Proprietors of Shawmut Chemical Works.
No. 33 INDIA STREET, Boston.

CONCENTRATED LEAVEN is the result of careful chemical research. All its ingredients are prepared in the highest state of purity, and compounded with a view to produce bread of a far better quality, and in much less time, than by any other process; and by the manufacturers submit it, with entire confidence, to the judgment of discriminating housekeepers, bakers, &c.

Bread of all kinds made by using Concentrated Leaven is lighter, more digestible and nutritious; has an agreeable, natural taste; is less liable to sour; will retain its moisture longer than by any other process, and the whole preparation for the oven need not exceed ten minutes.

It is valuable because it is not perishable, and may be rendered available in places and at times when yeast is not within reach, as at sea. In all climates and under all circumstances, it may be adopted, thus obviating all difficulty of procuring yeast or other ferment, which is frequently, of an inferior quality, rendering the bread more or less unwholesome.

It is also valuable as regards economy, as it has been ascertained that a saving is effected in the flour of not less than 16 per cent. In the common process much of the saccharine of the flour is lost by being converted into carbonic acid gas, or spirit, and the waste is incurred solely for the purpose of generating gas to raise the dough. By using Concentrated Leaven this waste is avoided, and the gas obtained in a manner equally efficacious. Fermentation, as has been stated, destroys a part of the flour or meal, and, in consequence, a barrel of flour weighing 196 lbs, which, by the common method, ordinarily makes about 250 lbs of bread, gives by this process 290 lbs, thus effecting the very important saving of 16 per cent. in the quantity of flour. By conformity to the directions on each package, any person capable of ordinary attention may conduct the process, and the result will invariably be highly satisfactory.

CERTIFICATE FROM DR. HAYES,
Assayer to the State of Massachusetts.

"I have analysed the Concentrated Leaven, manufactured by Messrs. Edw Chamberlin & Co., with reference to its purity and efficiency of action in producing the effect of yeast in distending dough, and thereby rendering it fit for making bread. This article is skillfully compounded, from perfectly pure material. It raises the dough without consuming the sugar or any other principle in the flour, perfectly; and the same weight of flour will produce more sweet, palatable bread than can be obtained through yeast; while for cakes and pastry it is invaluable, as it saves all risk, and much time of the pastry cook.

"The experiments made by me confirm the statements made by the manufacturers, and proves this compound worthy of public approval and extended use.

"Respectfully,
"A. A. HAYES, M. D., State Assayer,
"16 Boylston street, Boston, September 25, 1860."

DIRECTIONS.

BREAKFAST AND TEA ROLLS.—Two or three teaspoonsful of Leaven, (according to the quality of the flour,) to one quart of flour; mix thoroughly by passing two or three times through a sieve; rub in a piece of butter half the size of an egg, and make the paste with cold milk or water, (milk is preferable,) barely stiff enough to permit rolling out. TO STRANGERS.

The many thousands cured at this Institution within the last twelve years, and the numerous important Surgical Operations performed by Dr. J., witnessed by the reporters of the papers, and many other persons, notices of which have appeared again and again before the public, besides his standing as a gentleman of character and responsibility, is a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted

DISEASE OF IMPRUDENCE.—When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance, affecting the head, throat, nose, skin, &c., progressing on with frightful rapidity, till death puts a period to his dreadful sufferings by sending him to "that bourne from whence no traveller returns." It is a melancholy fact that thousands fall victims to this terrible disease, owing to the unskilfulness of ignorant pretenders, who, by the use of that deadly poison, mercury ruin the constitution and make the residue of life miserable

John C. Calhoun's Vision.

The following most remarkable and singular story was furnished for the Philadelphia Quaker City, in the winter of 1849-'50, by its Washington correspondent, and was, at that time, quite generally copied into the leading papers of the day. A renewal of the exciting issues of that time render the supernatural lesson particularly appropriate for to-day. Read it, all you who would sever with unhallowed hands the sacred bonds that unite in peace and prosperity all the God-given blessings that have descended to us from former generations. Read it, all you who would raise an unhallowed hand to pluck a single star from our national escutcheon, or erase a single stripe from the banner of the free. Read it, all ye who deliberately and unblushingly lay plans for the dismemberment of all that the true American holds dear, and the true patriot cherishes as his blood bought birthright, and remember that though that hand may not be praised in this life, yet the mark of the traitor shall rest upon it in the world to come:

MR. CALHOUN'S DREAM.

MR. EDITOR: The other morning, at the breakfast table, our friend, the Hon. J. C. Calhoun, seemed very much troubled and out of spirits. You know he is altogether a venerable man, with a hard, stern, Scotch-Irish face, softened in its expression around the mouth by a sort of sad smile, which wins the eye of all who converse with him. His hair is snowy white. He is thin, tall and angular. He reminds you very much of Old Hickory. That he is honest, no one doubts; he has sacrificed to his fatalism his brightest hopes of political advancement—has offered up on the shrine of that necessity which he worships, all that can excite ambition—even the Presidency of the United States.

But to my story: The other morning at the breakfast table, where I, an unobserved spectator, happened to be present, Calhoun was observed to gaze at his right hand, and brush it with his left in a hurried and nervous manner. He did this so often that it excited attention. At length one of the persons composing the breakfast party, (Toombs, a member of Congress from Georgia,) took it upon himself to ask the occasion of Mr. Calhoun's disquietude.

"Does your hand pain you?" he asked.

To this Mr. Calhoun replied in rather a flurried manner, "Pshaw! It is nothing! Only a dream which I had last night, and that makes me see perpetually a black spot—like an ink blotch—upon the back of my right hand; optical delusion, I suppose."

Of course these words excited the curiosity of the whole party, but no one begged the details of this singular dream, until Toombs asked, quietly:

"What was your dream like? I am not very superstitious about dreams, but sometimes they have a good deal of truth in them."

"But this was such a peculiarly absurd dream," said Mr. Calhoun, again brushing the back of his right hand; "however, if it does not to much intrude upon the time of our friends, I will relate it to you."

Of course the company were profuse in their expressions of anxiety to know all about the dream. In his singular sweet voice, Mr. Calhoun related it:

"At a late hour last night, as I was sitting in my room engaged in writing, I was astonished by the entrance of a visitor, who, without a word, took a seat opposite me at my
