Prophesy and Patriotism. The Springfield Journal, published at as long ago as December 1839, a political commencement of the exciting and memnewspaper the concluding part of Mr. now the President elect of this great na-

Mr. Lamborn refers to the late elections in the States, and from their results, confidently pre-dicts that every State in the Union will vote for Mr. Van Buren at the next Presidential election. Address that argument to cowards and to knaves with the free and the brave it will affect nothing. It may be true, if it must, let it. Many free countries have lost their liberty; and ours may lose hers; but if she shall, be it my proudest plume, not that I was the last to desert, that I never deserted her. I know that the great volcano at Washington, aroused and diected by the evil spirit that reigns there, is belching forth the lava of political corruption in a current broad and deep, which is sweeping with frightful velocity over the whole length and breadth of the land, bidding fair to leave unscathed no green spot or living thing, while on its bosom are riding like demons on the waves of Hell, the imps of that evil spirit, and fiendishly taunting all those who dare resist its destroying course, with the hopelessness of their effort; and knowing this, I cannot deny that all may be swept away. Broken by it, I too, may be; bow to it, I never will. The probability that we may fall in the struggle ought not to deter us from the support of a cause which we deem to be just; it shall not deter me. If ever I feel the soul within me elevate and expand to those dimensions not wholly unworthy of its Almighty Architect, it is when I contemplate the cause of my country, deserted by all the world besides, and I standing up boldly and slone, and hurling defiance at her victorious oppressors. Here, without contemplating con-sequences, before High Heaven, and in the face of the world, I swear eternal fidelity to the just cause, as I deem it, of the land of my life, my with me, will not fearlessly adopt the oath that I take. Let none falter, who thinks he is right, and we may succeed. But if, atter all, we shall have the weekle we have the weekle we have the weekle we have the weekle we have the weekle weekle have the weekle we have the weekle weekle we have the weekle weekle we have the weekle weekle we were the weekle weekle weekle we were we were well as well as well as we were well as we were well as we were well as we well as fall, be it so. We shall have the proud consolation of saying to our conscience, and to the departed shade of our country's freedem, that the course approved by our judgment, and adored by our hearts, in disaster, in chains, in torture, in death, we never faltered in defend-

The people who, in their might and sovereignty, have elevated Mr. LINCOLN to the high office of President. may rest assured, that "without contemplating consequences, before high Heaven and in the face of the world" he will stand up boldly in defence of the Constitution and the laws, and will never falter whatever part of the Union they may be, "who new think with him," fearlessly adopt the oath that he then took.

THE MARYLAND BAPTIST UNION AS-SOCIATION have addressed a letter to the speedy termination of sectional animosity This movement, called forth, perhaps, by the action of some churches of that persuasion in the extreme South, recommending secession, is significant, inasmuch as the gentlemen who form the committee for writing the letter, are the most prominent and influential divines in the Southern portion of the Baptist Church. The letter is written in a very mild and conciliatory spirit, and will doubtless exercise a beneficial influence among those breth-

The Duty of Republicans.

The Pittsburg Commercial Journal, in eplying to the question "how should the Republicans act under present circumstances?" holds the following language, which we adopt and endorse: "They should deport themselves precisely as if no panic existed, and no threats had been made. Whoever is turned by panic or the home of the President elect, says that threat to the right hand or to the left is a coward. 'Yield nothing to menace,' is discussion took place in that city between the dictate not more of courage than of Mr. Lincoln, then a Whig leader, and | policy. All the Republican papers of Pittsburg advocate the calling of a mass meeting in that county to take such action as will render unmistakable the pervading desire and determination that whatever measures may be proposed at Washington, the principles of the Chicago platform shall be maintained in their integrity by our Congressmen, by action, by speech if need be, and by vote. On this subject the Gazette speaks emphatically as follows:

TO THE REPUBLICANS OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY .-A bold and desperate attempt is now making to induce us to lower the Republican standard to pacify the fire eaters of the South. Already few timid men grow pale and wince under the Southern thunder; and show tremulousness in the knees and are scared at the menace of those who, because they can not rule, threaten to ruin. Let Alleghen county, with her glorious 10,000 Republican majority, now, at the fitting moment, speak out emphatically. Let us hold up the hands of our Representatives at Washington, and show them, at this crisis, that their constituents are at their backs to sustain them. The Republican platform, in all its integrity, must and shall be recognized as the true exponent of the particreed and the basis of Mr. Lincoln's adminis tration. It is fit that Allegheny county should take the iniative in the work of maintaining it

LETTER FROM MR. HUNTER.—The Richmond Examiner contains a long and forcible letter from Senator Hunter on the present crisis of our government. He is anxious to preserve the Union if it can be done with the Constitution in its full vigor. For this purpose he counsels a united South in the Union, and calls for a Baptists of the whole country, deprecating Southern convention as the means of concentration Southern convention as the means of concentration Southern convention as the means of concentration of the convention the treasonable movement at the South, and calling upon all members of their communion to exert their influence for the trating Southern opinion, and of agreeing upon any cause the measure shall fail, as he thinks and "doctored" with certain chemicals to give most probable—then he regards the immediate it the "Cognac flavor" are now exported from secession of several States as inevitable. He urges the perfect right of a State to secede, and

VERMONT PERSONAL LIBERTY LAW.—We learn from the newspapers that the final action of the Vermont Legislature before its adjournment on the 27th ultimo was to refer this whole subject to the commissioners on the revision of the laws of the State, with instructions to report whether the present law upon the rendition of fugitive slaves is in conflict with the Constituren who have unfortunately permitted the tion of the United States. WASHINGTON, Dec. 5, 1860. The machinery of legislation, although started, is not fairly in motion. Yesterday, the reading of the Message in both branches of Congress, was listened to with more marked attention than a similar document has heretofore for many years elicited. In the House it was read by the Clerk, John W. Forney, with a peculiar emphasis, particularly that portion relating to the vexed issue of slavery. On this question, your readers will have observed that the President throws the responsibility of a settlement entirely on Congress, making it the policy of his Administration to complain at the existence of an evil, without offering any remedy for its suppression, or suggesting any means of escape for the country from the impending difficulties and dangers. The burden of the Executive complaint in this particular is against those Commonwealths that have passed laws nullifying the compromises of the Constitution. Of course every man in the country, and every sensible man in the States where such legislalation is made, is opposed to the policy of annulling any law Constitutionally passed and approved. But does it not seem strange that the President of the United States thould have reserved his disapproval of such legislation until now, when his party and himself are about to pass from power? It certainly does, and it is equally strange that the people of the South should just wake up to the dangers of Northern aggression, when they, in a subordinate and individual sense are about to lose places of profit and position. But rather than disappoint the President and his friends, it would be well to repeal all such nullifying laws, particularly if their repeal will restore peace to the country and confidence to business.

The speech of Col. Curtin, Governor elect of Pennsylvania, in the city of Philadelphia, it is said had the effect of changing some parts of the message. The frankness of Col. Curtin in declaring his intention to use his influence in expunging from the statutue books of the Keystone State any law conflicting with the Federal Constitution, deprived Mr. Buchanan of an opportunity to express his indignation on the late Presidential election, which will leave him possessed of more gawl and bitterness than he himself had hoped to retain until the present. The declaration of Col. Curtin, that Pennsylvania was bound to maintain the conpacts and compromises of the Constitution, places the Republicans of Pennsylvania in a position of more political grandeur than that of any other State in the Union. It proves that the Republican party of the North, and particularly of Pennsylvania, are true to the Union and the Constitution, and it has also had the effect of assuring the extreme men of all sections in this city, that Pennsylvania is indeed the Keystone of the federal arch.

THE CONGERSSMEN FROM OREGON .- A Lesson for Young Men to Study.—Mr. Nesmith, one of the new Senators from Oregon, is a native of Maine, forty years of age, served his time as a carpenter's apprentice boy until twenty-one years of age, when he emigrated to the West and finding himself one day out of money, and being unable to get employment at his trade, enlisted in the army. He served five years on the frontier, in Dodge's Regiment of Dra-goons. At the expiration of his term of service he started overland for Oregon, with the emigration of 1843, and arrived in Oregon City in the fall of that year. When the provincial government was organized in 1844 Nesmith was elected one of the territorial judges. He went to California in the summer of 1848, with many other Oregonians, worked for some months as removed.

The Hon. Lansing E. Stout, Congressman elect from Oregon, is a native of Central New York, and a few years ago drove a stage between Utica and Newport, Herkimer county, N. Y. He went to California; studied law some time; emigrated to Oregon; ran for Congress; stumped a district equal in size to New York; and comes East to take his place among the law-givers of the nation.

COAL BRANDY .- There is a tradition that COAL BEANDY.—There is a tradition that Brandy was at one time manufactured from the vine; but the grapes of France having of late years followed the example of the potato, taken to moulding and rotting, many of the French brandy makers have adopted bituminous coal as a substitute. They distil a potent spirit from this substance, which is thus made available for the predetice of the bird of for for the production of two kinds of fire—one for the comfort of man, and the other for the destruction of his health, his senses, and his soul.

Another Florence Nightingale.-A foreign correspondent of the New York Times says : Madame Mario, not the wife of the tenor, but formerly the fair lecturer, Miss Jessie Meriton White, is really acting nobly and usefully at Naples, as head nurse and hospital superintendent. Remembering, as I do, her delicate face, blonde hair, and fragile looking form, I read of her ministering to the sick and wounded in the cause of liberty with great interest. Her husband, a very good looking young Italian, has fought bravely, and was one of the small band who first cast themselves on the main shore from Sicily, and took the mountains of Calabria. The Marchioness Della Torae, who fights like a man, and of whom half the Garibaldian officers are said to be enamored, is a heroine of a different style and mould. WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.

The Putnam Phalanx, under a military es cort, visited the White House this morning.-The President was addressed by Judge Advo-cate Stark, and cordially responded to the Union sentiments enunciated. He said it was the first time he had had the gratification of seeing so full a corps in the Continental uniform, though during the period of the Revolution many of the soldiers were but poorly clad and without this distinctive costume. A large crowd, including the Executive officers, and many ladies, were present.
