Inauguration of President Lincoln.

Many of the friends of Mr. Lincoln apprehend difficulty with regard to his inauguration on the 4th of March next, and | to their place in the Union, there would consequently a large force from the North | be no fear of a violent severance of the will be at Washington for the purpose of | bonds which bind the Confederacy toseeing that the Southern secessionists do gether, nor of an embargo upon the open not assassinate him. For our own part, channels of trade and commerce. we have never felt any danger. Such an attempt would at once annihilate every man engaged in it. Mr. Lincoln will have plenty of friends to protect him from bodily harm, and we can assure those who may feel a little doubtful of Mr. Lincoln not being willing to risk his life to assume the Presidential Chair, that the Rail Splitter knows no danger. He has passed through many a fearful battle, and he will be on hand, on the 4th of March next, to take charge of the reigns of government. The Constitution prescribes no particular day or hour, and no form or ceremony for the inauguration of a President, except the oath of office. "Before he enters on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation." Art. II., sec. 1, par. 7. No time or manner is prescribed. The oath may be administered on any day, or in any place. It is very impressive and becoming that it should be administered by a high judicial officer, publicly, in the face of an immense multitude, and in connection with appropriate civic and military pomp. It would be a matter for regret—it might seem mortifying to the President electto enter on his duties without these circumstances. But any Judge, Commissioner, Notary or Magistrate, authorized by the laws of the United States to administer oaths, has it in his power to "inaugurate" the President, in any city dollars," and gives the following list of or town in the Union, and from the mo- them, as held in trust, by the Secretary ment that the oath is taken he is vested of the Interior for the with authority to exercise the powers of his high office immediately upon the close of his predecessor's term. Resisting his inauguration by violence is as hopeful a business as fighting his shadow. There is only one force that can prevent his entrance upon his office. If the two Houses of Congress should resolve themselves into a mob, to prevent the counting and declaration of the electoral votes, there might be a difficulty in executing the people's will. But we shall not believe that this

LET US HEAR FROM THE GOVERNORS During the first two weeks of January ensuing, the Legislatures of the Free States of Maine, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota, assemble to transact the business of their several peoples. The Executives of these mighty commonwealths of the Union-loving North will each be required to communicate with the Legislatures thereof at an early day after their assemblage. We have faith in all these Governors. We have faith that they are

The Cause of Panics.

Panics ordinarily, not always, result from a want of confidence. The present Panic has this paternity. But it is not never so abundant—but from a want of confidence in the patriotism and stamina of the Administration. The people have no faith in Buchanan or his advisers .-They deem him wholly inadequate to the exigencies of the hour, not only because of his imbecility, but because of his criminal sympathy and affiliation with those who, by moving for the dissolution of the Union, disturb the commercial equanimity of the country. With an "Old Hickory" in the Executive Chair, there would with Thee, that Thou mayest be feared. be no Panic; because, with such a man to hold traitors to their allegiance, and States

Position of South Carolina.

If there is any one person in the North so great a fool as to be frightened because South Carolina declared herself out of the Union on the 20th of December, 1860, the Boston Traveler begs leave to remind him that, on the 17th of December, 1832, South Carolina enacted an ordinance to nullify a law of the United States, provided that law should be unrepealed on the 1st of February, 1833, and that South Carolina neither nullified it nor left the Union. Because a State says she is out of the Union, it does not follow that she is out of it. The act is the Union. The Union exists to-day exactly the same as it existed when South Carolina, the other day, passed the ordivote to the contrary has no more dissolved the Union, than it was dissolved in 1780, by the British conquest of that State. The country got South Carolina back then in spite of herself and her conquerors, and the grandsons of the Americans become degenerate.

THERE is good foundation for the opinion that the Administration, and many connected with it, prefer the destruction of the Government to an exposure which a new Administration will give to the country. Upon taking the Speaker's chair, Mr. DAVIS addressed his fellow members as follows :

REPRESENTATIVES OF PENNSYLVANIA: my thanks for the high horor done me in the election as your Speaker. Since I came among you one year ago, my highest ambition has been to discharge my duty in such a man-ner as not only to receive, but deserve and merit, your respect and confidence. That I have succeeded even beyond my proudest hopes, this day's proceedings amply prove; and I can only say now, that I will endeavor so to discharge the duties of the position in which your kind ness has placed me, that our proceedings may be as orderly and decorous as our organization has been hopeful and encouraging.

Since the adjournment of the Legislature death has been among us. Our able and beloved Speaker has been stricken down in the days of his strength and his usefulness. The best eulogy that I can pronounce on the character of WM. C. A. LAWRENCE, is to point with pride to his youth, to the position which he occupied in this House, and to his memory enshrined in the hearts of his fellow-members The amiable and accomplished J. W. COULTER too. has fallen by the hand of death. And within a few days of our coming together Hen-RY K. STRONG, one of Pennsylvania's noblest sons, whose good qualities of head and heart are known to all, has been called away. They need no eulogy from me. May God comfort their bereaved friends.

I need only say that I deeply feel the re sponsibilities of the position to which I have been chosen. But I will endeaver to discharge its duties uninfluenced by any other considera-tion than my deliberate convictions of right.— I ask your indulgence and forbearance, your co-operation and support. I know too well the character of the members of this House to apprehend much difficulty Our position is one of no ordinary importance. Pennsylvania, in the vastness of her resources, the amount of her wealth, and the number, intelligence, industry and integrity of her citizens, has few equals as a State. Her interests are committed that business would probably be interfered with, should that day be assigned for the appointment of this committee. I have the centle-to our charge.

The eyes of her three millions of people are The eyes of her three millions of people are upon us, and our actions will be closely watched and severely scrutioized. Let us act not only as the Representatives of a free people, but as MEN who appreciate the konor and feel the responsibilities of our positions. While reckers madness rules the councils of some of our sister States, and treason raises its bloody as MEN who appreciate the honor and feel the responsibilities of our positions. [Applause.] If there is any law upon her statue books which can be in any way tortured into an excuse for treason, I would advise its immediate repeal; [applause] and that she should then deny, in her sovereign capacity, ment I have made is correct. should then deny, in her sovereign capacity, the right of any State to secode from this gov-

She has sought her redress through the ballot box, in a Constitutional manner. She has set her seal of condemnation on a wicked and imrequires it, with the blessing of God, with my

I again thank you for the honor you have conferred upon me, and I promise you that all the abilities I possess will be faithfully exer-cised in the discharge of duty.

The list of members was then called and they severally took the oath of office.
