The duties of the Board, as fixed by law, are to "ascertain and determine the fair and just value of the property in the city of Philadelphia, and the veral counties of this Commonwealth, made taxable of taw." Fit will be observed by the proceedings, page 42, that instead of making a "fair and just valuation" as their basis of action; they re-solved that the necessities of the Commonwealth did not require an increase of valuation above that of 1857. Shifting their action from made tazadie, "to that of "the walks of the real sury," they have fixed the valuation, according to their own language, "at from fifty to sixty cents on the dollar—probably less." With our mountains of coal and iron, our rich agricultural lands added to the wealth of real and > ture, has provided that real and personal estate should pay a certain amount on the dollar; corporation stock another amount; dividenda still another rate, and so with all the interests taxable; varying the rate because some objects of taxation could bear more and others less. To make this tax just, however, it was necessary that all the property intended thus to be taxed should be reached. To accomplish this, the law provides, in the case of corporations, that returns should be made under oath, stating the amount of capital invested and dividends declared. Other objects of taxation are referred to the proper department in the same revenus received were three hundred and fortyseven thousand and ninety-two dollars and eighty-three cents less than in the previous year. This deficiency occurs, principally, in the items of corporation tax, (other than banks, and interest due from the Sunbury and Eric railroad company.

With ordinary receipts, and economical ap man ordinary receipts, and coolomical ap-priations, three quarters of a million of the State debt can be paid annually. The balance in the Treasury at the close of the fiscal year has been considerably increased by the surplus of receipts over expenditures in the month of December, and will, from known sources, be made sufficiently large to pay the interest due on the first proximo. From the hitherto, liberal policy of the banks toward the Commonwealth, I have no doubt that arrangements can be made with them, by which the whole amount of interest can be paid in coin. I regard this as a matter of so much importance, that, should amicable negotiation with the banks fail, the Legislature will be duly notified, that provision may be made, by law, to maintain the credit of the State.

that nothing is upon them which, even by sem-blance, tarnishes her political reputation, she should be equally solicitous to wipe out everything that can, in the least degree, affect her financial honor. Perhaps no one thing has done more to impair the standing of Pennsyl-vaina securities abroad, than the tax upon her own loans. This I have always regarded as of questionable propriety. In view of the inviola-bility of the State's obligation, it is difficult to conceive how such tax was ever justified. The State promises, in terms too plain to admit of any doubt, that for the use of money lent her, she will pay five per cent per annum. With this understanding the loans were negotiated and the bonds of the State given. But without the consent of the parties with whom she had thus contracted, a law was passed reducing the rates of interest to four and three-fourths per cent.

The tice has been done her by not admitting her into the Union long ago. But now, when only two months are to intervene before the incoming of a Republican President, self respect and the interests of the party surely dictate that we should hesitate in bestowing upon the slave power the patronage of the new State, as a reward for their past oppression .---

Enough wrong has already been inflicted upon Kansas, without fastening upon her a Judge of the Drad Scott type for life, immovable by President Lincoln, whose court will be a refuge for the slaveholder and the kidnapper, and where the doctrines of the veto messages of Gov. Black and Gov. Medary will be held and enforced. The country is not so well supplied with Judges who hold to the old and venerated constructions of the Constitution maintained by Jefferson and Marshall and their compeers, that we can afford to be throwing judicial stations into the hands of our enemies.

No one doubts that President Lincoln will call a special session soon after the 4th of March, and that will be time enough to act; or in default of that it will be time enough in December next.

GRAND LARCENIES .- The following is ۰۳., a list of the principal grand larcenies committed during the Buchanan Adminis. tration. The telegraph informs that the impeachment of Secretary Floyd is strongly urged in Washington :

This is bad enough, but when affairs are ripped up after the 4th of March, we interest which may be charged, are but little shall exclaim with the Queen of Sheba-"The half has not been told."

the public. business, whilst not a few of them, feeling un-restrained by the law regulating the paying out of foreign depreciated currency, or the rate of

way. Such are the checks held by the law over all objects of taxation accounting directly to the State Departments, that few, if any of them, escape taxation on their fullevalue. To "ascertain the fair and just value of other property made taxable," the Board referred to was appointed. By reporting, as at their last meeting, but fifty cents on the dollar, it is evident that the class of property submitted to them for valuation, bears but half the tax which the Legislature, in its distribution of burdens, intended it should assume. Of this great inequality other interests have a right to complain. One-sixth of the tax on real and personal property, as originally imposed, already been removed. I would not, with the present under-valuation, recommend any further reduction of the two and a half mill tax This tax, compared with that borne by some

As an illustration, the banking capital of this State is some twenty-five and a half millions of expenses of collection, and of this small sum the counties would receive back, for school and judiciary purposes, some twenty-seven per cent. By a late decision of the Supreme Court, counties are held liable for a default on the part of their treausurer, to pay over the amount imposed by the Revenue Board. It would greatly simplify the accounts in this Department, if the amount of State taxes assessed was charged di-rectly to the county, less the commissions. As the law now stands, we have in some counties as many as ten accounts open ; nine of them be-ing with defaulting treasurers, covering a period of eighteen years, and still separate and addi-tional accounts with many of the counties, directly, for a deficiency in their assessments.

By the present law, the assessments are charged to the county treasurer. What he fails to collect, is credited to him at the end of his term and charged to his successor. In some fiscal year ending November 30th, 1860, were counties, this outstanding tax has been accu-three hundred and thirty-eight thousand six mulating for years, handed down from treasurer to treasurer, until it is now more than a whole year's assessment. Thus, some of the counties are constantly from one to two years in default. All this could be avoided, by keepseventy-three dollars and eighty-two cents, ($9,673 82.) Whilst the latter assume to themselves all the rights and privileges of in-requiring the same promptness from them in the movement of their dues which is now enforce from taxation, and are subject to none of the restrictions which the law throws around in-corporated institutions, for the protection of ment allowed for payment is much more efficient in producing promptness, than an abalement al-Almost every county in the State has one or lowed for payment. Under the former sytems, more private banking establishments, many of less than one thousaud dollars remained due them doing a large and legitimate banking from banks at the close of the fiscal year Under the latter, more than half a million due from counties, remains unpaid.

I would suggest the repeal of the abatement law, passed 29th April, 1844, and that counties, better than shaving shops. The establishment for non-payment, be made subject to the same of these private banks all over the Common-penalties now imposed on corporations for simiof these private banks all over the Common-penalties now imposed on corporations for simi-wealth, has the effect of greatly lessening the lar default.
