No Concessions to Traitors.

Our representative in Congress, Hon. JOHN W. KILLINGER, has written a lengthy and patriotic letter, in which he takes the ground that "to tamper with treason, to negotiate with traitors, is to encourage renewed threats and borrow future trouble." He says it is clear to his mind that "no terms can be made with traitors who have arms in their hands," and are in the actual commission of high crimes and misdemeanors. Hon. JAMES H. CAMPBELL, of the Schuylkill district, a member of the House Union-Saving Committee, writes home in a similar strain, and plants himself on the same platform with our representative. These gentlemen express the sentiments of the entire population of Pennsylvania, except a few dirt-eaters who are still chained fast to the pro-slavery disunion faction. Let Messrs. KILLINGER and CAMPBELL, and their fellow-members of the Pennsylvania delegation, stand fast by the Union as it is, and oppose all concessions to armed traitors, and they may rely upon their constituents to back them.

The Democracy Responsible.

For the folly that is now kicking up its rampant heels in the South, one portion of our Northern population is to a great extent responsible. So far as any cause for the secession movement can be fixed, it is found in the continual wavings of principle which the Democratic party have betrayed to the South, for power and the spoils. If the unjust demands made by the slave interest had been as firmly resisted during the last ten years as they were in the old time, the idea of secession would have been a mere myth. The desire for a separate government has been the final object of that section—for which the demands for additional advantages were to furnish a pretext. The Democracy of the North, in the hope of retaining the strength of the South in national elections, have uniformly thrown their influence and their votes in favor of these unjust demands. Increasing in enormity every year, the schemes of the revolutionists at last arrived at such a pitch of absurdity as to exceed the utmost gullibility of our people. The triumph of the Republican party was the inevitable consequence. Now that this has been the result, in spite of the cries of the opposition, prophesying the immediate destruction of the republic, in case of any success—save their own—they give themselves up to wallings, and sing premature dirges over the Union. They are obstinate in their sorrow. The poor old man, wandering like a ghost among the shadows of the White House, his eyes fountains of tears, his childish treble calling upon Heaven for the help that lies in his own hands, is but a picture of the state of that party of which he was once at the head. The voice of rebellion, fostered by their acts, has arisen; and they, afraid to stem the tide—refusing to lift an arm for the integrity of this our godly heritage—refuse also to be comforted. We believe that the secession movement will end in gas. The necessities of the South preclude the idea of its separate independence. But if this movement had been thirty years ago, it would have been quenched as that other treason was. The crowning glory in the history of the Democratic party was the action of its President in the nullification excitement. The remains of that party can save its credit by taking the same stand now. There is no danger of a test of their sincerity in the position. Let them dry their tears, and make their declining days as honorable as those of their primal strength.

DEFENSE OF WASHINGTON.

Three hundred Marines will be ordered to Washington, in addition to several companies of Flying Artillery, for the purpose of protecting property against all possible depredations. The Mayor and city authorities express the fullest confidence in being able to guarantee the peace of the city from any threatened ruffianism outside. They are abundantly prepared for all contingencies.

THE WORKING MEN OF NASHVILLE MOVING FOR THE UNION.

The working men of Nashville held a very large and respectable meeting recently, and adopted a series of energetic and patriotic resolutions. Here are two of the resolutions, and they stir the blood:— Resolved, That we have a Government, according to the full meaning of the word, strong enough to punish transgression of every kind, whether North or South; that we consider secession treason, a fire-brand cast among the people, by designing, mad politicians, calculated to deluge the Valley of the Mississippi with the blood of freemen. Resolved, That we earnestly call upon the working men, in every section of our country, to rally around the Constitution and the laws, determined to maintain them, and show only such demonstrations as will give the people a voice to be heard, and an arm to chastise madmen.

TERRIBLE TIMES.—Even the New York Herald begins to acknowledge the awful days on which the mad people of the fated city of Charleston have stumbled.

The Washington correspondent of that paper writes: We have reports from Charleston by travelers which indicate the existence of much distress.—The troops who have volunteered and presented themselves for service are camped in unhealthy locations, and, in consequence of rain, swamps, and miasma, are suffering from disease. No vessel loading, no business doing, women weeping, and men overcome by sickness and the pest in the hands of a mob, is the bulletin travelers present of the condition of things at the present time in Charleston.

A STATUE MADE TO SPEAK.—The statue of Gen. Jackson, before the President's house, was most curiously ornamented the other morning. The old anti-secessionist held in his hand the stars and stripes, while the blue cockade was tied under the tail of the horse. Great indignation was felt by the seceders, and it is rumored that they will request the Commissioners to ask for an explanation.

FORT SUMTER IS THREE AND THREE-EIGHTH MILES FROM CHARLESTON.

It can destroy Fort Moultrie in twenty-four hours, and easily shell the city. As long as Major Anderson and his gallant little force hold it, the Charlestonians have a hornet near them, whose sting, if it should be annoyed, would be anything but pleasant.

"OLD IRONSIDES."—Commodore Charles Stewart writes a letter on the present national crisis, in which he says: "My voice is, millions for the redress of just grievances, but not one cent for imaginary ones."

FROM THE FEDERAL CAPITAL.

WASHINGTON, JANUARY 8, 1861. I never was prouder of the Republican organization, than yesterday. Proud, because it presented itself in an attitude both liberal, patriotic and just. Proud, because those who have succeeded only in making an argument against its principles when they maligned its men, were forced to display their prejudice by refusing to sustain an officer in the discharge of his sworn duty. The occasion was the offering of a series of resolutions commending Major Anderson for his bravery and military skill in defending the public property in Charleston harbor, as well as placing himself and those under his command in a position from which they could enforce the laws and thus assist in preserving the Union. The resolution excited the greatest excitement among the fire-eaters, while among the "dough-faces" there was much apparent weakness in the knees. Several Southern gentlemen pronounced it the overt act—the last drop in their cup of misery—an insult not to be brooked, and worse than treason. But a vote was demanded, and the result was the passage of the resolutions by almost two-thirds. While the vote was being taken, Mr. Rust, of Arkansas, pronounced the ejection of one fort, and the occupation of another, an act of cowardice, while Mr. Barksdale, of the State of Mississippi, openly asserted that it was in direct violation of an express understanding between the President and the South Carolina Commissioners. In fact, that it was in violation of a promise made by the President to the leaders of secession, that he would neither impede or embarrass their movements. You may be certain that this announcement created considerable sensation, as it leaves Mr. Buchanan resting under the charge of having colloquied with, and for a period abetted, the designs of the South Carolina rebels to destroy the Union. It leaves him in such a position until he can prove his innocence. All he may do to save the Union from the danger which he himself created, will not relieve him of the odium which attaches to his efforts of treason, because the good which he is now permitting to be done, has been forced from him by the threats and arguments of Gen. Scott, backed by the firmness and decision of the present Secretary of War.

The only man from Pennsylvania in the House, who voted against these resolutions approving the conduct of Maj. Anderson, was Thomas B. Florence, from the first district. Why he suffered himself to be dragged down to the feet of the men who of all others have treated him with the most contempt, his best friends cannot understand, because Tom is a very clever, courteous and kind-hearted man, of all others the most willing to vote a compliment to any man, woman or child appealing to him for such an act; but that he failed in this case to do justice to a gallant soldier, will be difficult for him to explain. The finance committee of the Senate, of which Senator Hunter of Virginia is chairman, positively refuses to report any bill making appropriations to defray the expenses of the government. Mr. Hunter declares that he intends to bring matters to a decided crisis, by destroying the credit of the government among those who

The financial advices from Paris are unfavorable, owing to the uncertainty of political affairs. The Emperor has declined to sign the bill.

Advices from China say that Lord Elgin would leave early in the year. The troops were leaving, and twelve ships of war have been ordered home. It is ascertained that Capt. Brabegon and the Abbe de Luc were both beheaded by the order of a Tartar general. Great retributions were to follow. Proclamations to that effect having been posted in Peking for the information of the people.

Advices from Gaeta state that the Spanish Ambassador had quit the palace, it being riddled by balls. Two officers were struck while standing near the ring.

The new Sardinian batteries are about ready to join in the bombardment and hostile operations from the sea side are about to commence. The gun boats of ship of War at Spezia, Genova and Ancona being ordered to Naples. The garrison at Gaeta has been much weakened by the dismissal of a portion of the royal Guards whose loyalty was doubted. The remainder are in a deplorable condition. It was reported that England and France would shortly send a joint commission to Vienna, urging the cessation of Venetia, without territorial recompense. It was reported that Austria had opened negotiations with Rome for the abolition of Concordat.

Exciting News from Charleston.

THE FIRST BLOW BY SOUTH CAROLINA. The Star of the West Fired Into.

FORT SUMTER SILENT. CHARLESTON, January 9. The steamship Star of the West, while endeavoring to enter Charleston harbor, about daylight this morning, was opened fire upon by the garrison on Morris Island and also by Fort Moultrie. The steamer put about and went to sea.

We have not been able to learn whether the steamer or any person on board of her was injured. The belief is that no injury was sustained by either the boat or those on board. Fort Sumter did not return the fire from the South Carolinians.

Our citizens were drawn in crowds to our wharves early this morning, in consequence of the frequent reports of cannon from the sea-ward. Some twelve or fifteen reports were heard. Many of them proceeded from the works on Morris Island.

VISIT OF LIEUTENANT HALL, OF FORT SUMTER, TO THE GOVERNOR, UNDER A FLAG OF TRUCE.—CHARLESTON, Jan. 9.—Lieutenant Hall, of Fort Sumter, came over to the city about 11 o'clock this morning, bearing a flag of truce. He reported to the quarters of the Governor, followed by a crowd of citizens. He was in secret communication with the Governor and Council for two hours. At 2 o'clock, P. M., he was sent in a carriage, in company with the Governor's aids, to the wharf, and returned to Fort Sumter. The object of his mission is not known. It is supposed that it relates to the firing on the Star of the West.

The people are intensely excited; but no demonstrations were made against Lieutenant Hall. There is a great curiosity to know what was the nature of Lieut. Hall's mission. Charleston, Jan. 9.—Lieutenant Hall closed his interview with the Governor and his Council about two o'clock. The facts have not transpired, but we learn from high authority that they are of a most threatening character.
