Commutation of the Tonnage Tax.

Our readers are well aware that we are now, and always have been, opposed to the unconditional repeal of the Tonnage Tax paid by the Pennsylvania Rail Road, yet, at the same time, have always expressed our willingness to relieve the company from the tax, which seems to many unjust, since the company have actually purchased the works, which created the Tonnage tax.

The bill now before the House does not repeal the tax, but simply provides for the payment of a stipulated sum of $460,000 annually into the Treasury of the State. This amount is to be paid regularly until the principal due on the purchase money is all liquidated which will terminate in the year 1890. It is well known that the Pennsylvania Railroad company bought the public works for $8,500,000 with an express understanding that they should be released from the Tonnage Tax, but the Supreme Court ruled the sale invalid and decided that they could purchase the works for $7,600,000 and pay the tonnage tax. Some of these taxes have been paid, but the whole matter is now in court, and if they should decide the tonnage tax illegally assessed, the State would receive nothing at all. A compromise has therefore been proposed which we hope will prove beneficial to the State and the company which has benefited us immensely. We were always in favor of compelling the Pennsylvania Railroad company to pay their taxes in full whilst the State owned the public works but we are now willing to deal more liberally towards them, since they assumed the works itself which were an actual loss to the State of $6000,000 annually. The State has actually saved that amount every year since it sold the works and in addition received some $5000,000 direct from the company on the purchase and tonnage tax.

By the bill now before the Legislature, the Pennsylvania Railroad company is also compelled to relinquish an idea, which has been advanced by them heretofore, that they were free from all local taxation. They have not paid any taxes heretofore on their immense Real Estate to the counties in which it was located, but if this bill passes they will be compelled to do so and this county itself will reap more benefit from that item alone than their share of the tonnage tax would average. We think that the bill now before the Legislature is the best that can be done for all parties, but if it should be discovered that it is not stringent enough to guard the interest of the State let it be properly amended. We hold the position heretofore occupied, that is to protect the interests of Pennsylvania at all hazards, and at the same time deal honorably and justly with its citizens. We must all acknowledge that the company needs and deserves the fostering care of the citizens of this State. She has done a vast deal to develop its sources and we ought to protect her from rival foreign companies. Let therefore justice be done and her citizens will be satisfied.

PENNSYLVANIA TRAINING SCHOOL FOR FEEBLE MINDED CHILDREN.—The Board of Managers of this institution have issued their annual report. At present the number of pupils in the school is eighty-seven, of whom forty are beneficiaries of the State of Pennsylvania, twelve of New Jersey, and thirty-four are paying pupils, from sixteen different States; fifty-nine are males and twenty-eight females. Through the appropriation of $15,000 by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, and liberal subscriptions by individuals, the managers have been enabled to contract for the erection of the south wing of the build. It is now under roof and will soon be completed, as pupils are waiting for the accommodation which it will afford. The health of the children has been good, and more than one of the children have been withdrawn to be placed in academies and other schools, where they are making good proficiency. During the past year four children have left the Institution. One, a girl, was nearly speechless when she went to the school; she is now home, talking, singing, writing, &c. Another girl, who was a mute, is also home; reads well and enjoys home like other children. The receipts during the year amounted to $58,368 91, and the expenditures to $48,180 89. Rev. Alonzo Potter, D. D., was elected President, and all the other officers of last year re-elected.

The Incoming President.

The Springfield Journal, from which we quoted an excellent article yesterday, in noticing the progress of President LINCOLN towards the National Capital, indulges in some remarks which will have a tendency to increase the faith and confirm the hopes of the political friends whose confidence in his integrity has remained unshaken amid the storm that has been raging—strengthen the knees that were growing weak under the secession pressure—and encourage all true friends of the Union as it is to stand firm in their resistance to treason. The Journal says that President LINCOLN "is about to take the reins of government at a time when discord and treason are intent upon tearing the Union into dismembered fragments; in the midst of a political crisis when the stoutest hearts are beginning to despair of the Republic. No President was ever inaugurated under circumstances more trying to the patriot and the lover of his country. No one at the very outset of his Administration has ever had to meet such vast and delicate responsibility. We believe Mr. LINCOLN has the courage, the nerve and the undaunted intrepidity to do his duty and clear the oath of office he is about to take at all hazards. We believe, let who may shrink and grow faint-hearted, that he will never desert the cause of his country or give comfort to traitors, but that under all circumstances he will vindicate, so far as he is able, the majesty of that Constitution and the integrity of that Union which he has been elected to protect and defend. Nearly a quarter of a century ago, in Springfield, Mr. LINCOLN gave utterance to these memorable and prophetic words:

Many free countries have lost their liberty, and ours may lose hers; but if she shall, be it my proudest plume, not that I was last to desert, but that I never deserted her. I know that the great volcano at Washington, aroused and directed by the evil spirit that reigns there, is belching forth a lava of political corruption in a current broad and deep, which is sweeping with frightful velocity over the whole length and breadth of the land, bidding fair to leave unscathed no green spot or living thing, while on its bosom are riding like demons on the west of Hell the impa of that evil spirit and fiendishly taunting all those who resist its destroying course with the hopelessness of their efforts; and knowing this, I cannot deny that all may be swept away. Broken by it I too may be; bow to it I never will. The possibility that we may fall in the struggle ought not to deter us from the support of a cause which we believe to be just. It shall not deter me. If even I feel the soul within me elevate and expand to those dimensions not wholly unworthy of its Almighty Architect, it is when I contemplate the cause of my country, deserted by all the world beside, and I standing up boldly, alone, and hurling defiance at her victorious oppressors. Here, without contemplating consequences, before heaven, and in the face of the world, I swear eternal fidelity to the just cause, as I deem it, of the land of my life, my liberty, and my love. And who that thinks with me will not fearlessly adopt the oath that I take? Let none falter who thinks he is right, and we may succeed. But if, after all, we shall fail, be it so. We still shall have the proud consolation of saying to our consciences, and to the departed shade of our country's freedom, that the cause, approved of our judgment, and adored of our hearts, in disaster, in chains, in death, we never faltered in defending.

Brave words, and most manfully spoken! Mr. LINCOLN is about to take up his residence as Chief Magistrate of the nation in the midst of this "great volcano at Washington," now more actively than ever belching forth the lava of political corruption; but the people of the American Union may rest assured that the oath of eternal fidelity he thus prophetically recorded twenty-two years ago has never been and never will be broken by him.—He calls upon every one who has yet remaining any affection for this land of "his liberty, his life and his love," now in the great emergency which threatens it, to take the same patriotic oath, and swear with him to "resist the destroying course" of traitors, and of those who are indirectly giving comfort to treason. Let the people in the majesty of their sovereign power rally around him in this hour of peril to constitutional liberty, and give him a generous and unselfish support to his Administration, and the crisis which now shrouds all patriotic hearts with foreboding will speedily pass, and returning peace and brotherhood will once more bind together with stronger ties than ever all sections of our common country."

THE FEELING IN MISSOURI.—The St. Louis Evening News learns by private letters, that the Stars and Stripes is flying above nearly every country store and hotel in the interior of that State, thus indicating the devotion of the Missourians to their country's glorious banner.

A PETITION FROM THE WOMEN.—Mrs. Willard, of Troy, arrived in Washington, on Monday evening, with a memorial petition from the women of the country to be presented to Congress asking a settlement of the national difficulties.

SOUND ADVICE.—Trust no man in this crisis, says the Raleigh (N. C.) Standard who says "there is no hope for the Union." He who does not hope for the Union, will not work to preserve it.

The Sunbury and Erie Bill.

The bill changing the name of this Company, and rendering it relief, came up in its order to day. The bill is intended to secure the completion of that valuable thoroughfare, and if that can be accomplished by making the bonds now held by the State second mortgage bonds and secure their ultimate redemption, we shall be perfectly satisfied. The section of the State through which this road runs has never received any aid from the State to complete railroads and canals, and the completion of this road will enhance the value of property in that region immensely. But whatever bill is passed, the Legislature ought to take special care that the completion of the road is accomplished. We shall use all honorable efforts to secure the completion of that road, and hope that the Legislature will pass a liberal bill for that object, but at the same time guard the interests of the State, and place her bonds in such a condition that they will be ultimately secured.

PRESIDENT ELECT AT PITTSBURG.

Enthusiastic Welcome and Handsome Military Display.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 14—Evening. The train arrived at Allegheny City at 8 o'clock this evening. The intended demonstration was prevented to some extent by the pelting rain. On leaving the train, Mr. Lincoln was hurried with as little ceremony as possible to the carriage in waiting, and his escort was drawn up on each side. He was welcomed to the city by Mayor Drum, and a loud Independent Blues, Capt. M. Keane, and the Washington Infantry, Capt. T. A. Rowley—Then came the opera, carriage containing the President and others, followed in order by the Legislative delegation and other parties of the special train, and the Councilmen of Allegheny and Pittsburg.

Along the route many spectators still held their positions, in defiance of rain and darkness. Along St. Clair, Market, Fifth and Smith streets the pavements were crowded, and the utmost enthusiasm was everywhere manifested, many of the stores and dwellings were illuminated, and in the city brilliant colored fires were burned during the passage of the procession.

At the Monongahela House an immense crowd had assembled, and the enthusiasm of the crowd displayed itself on the arrival of the cortege by a constant succession of cheers. Mr. Lincoln was immediately conducted to a private room, his attendants forcing a way through a dense mass which filled the lobby and public rooms. After a few moments repose, Mr. Lincoln appeared in the hall, and in response to a universal demand for a speech, said:

He said he would not give them a speech, as he thought it is more rare, if not more precious, for a public man to speak seldom. He expressed his gratification and surprise at seeing so great a crowd and such boundless enthusiasm, manifested in the night time and under such untoward circumstances, to greet so unworthy an individual as himself. This was undoubtedly attributable to the position to which, more by accident than by merit, he had attained. He remarked further that, if all these energetic and whole souled people whom he saw this evening before him were for the Union, he did not see how it could be in much danger.—(Cheers, and cries of "Union and no compromise.")

He had intended to say a few words to the people of Pittsburg—the greatest manufacturing city of the United States—upon such matters as he believed they desired to hear. But he had adopted the plan of holding his tongue for the most part during the last canvass and since his election, he had perhaps better now hold his tongue. [Cries of "goon."] Well, I am reminded that there is an Allegheny city as well as an Allegheny county—the former the banner town and the latter the banner county, perhaps of the world. I am glad to see both of them and the people of both. I will say a few words to you to-morrow as to the peculiar interests of Allegheny county.

As he closed, some one proposed three cheers for the Union as it is, which were given with a will. The President retired from the balcony amidst the most enthusiastic demonstrations.
