Thursday Alternoon, February 21, 1861.

One of the Speeches.

The most refreshing specimen of speech, in the "spread eagle" style, we have met with for a long time, was recently delivered in the Missouri Legislature, by one Gen. Riley. As the author is evidently "a trump," we feel disposed to help immortalize him by publishing his speech in full:

After a long and heated discussion on the reference of a bill amending the charter of the city of Carondelet, to a standing committee of the House. Mr. RILLY obtained the floor, and addressed the House:

addressed the House:

Mr. SPEAKER: Everybody is a pitching into this matter like toad frogs into a willow swamp, on a lovely evening in the balmly month of June, when the mellow light of the full moon fills with a delicious flood the thin, etherial atmospheric air. [Applause.] Sir, I want to put in a word, or perhaps a word and a half.

There seems to be a disposition to fight. I say, if there is any fighting to be done, come on with your corn-cobs and lightning-bugs!— [Applause.] In the language of the ancient

"Come one, come all, this rock shall fly From its firm base, in a pig's eye."

Now, there has been a great deal of bombast here to day. I call it hombast from "Alpha" to "Omega." (I don't understand the meaning of the words though.) Sir, the question to refer, is a great and magnificent question. It is the all absorbing question—like a sponge, sir -a large unmeasurable sponge' of globe shape, in a small tumbler of water—it sucks up everything. Sir, I stand here with the weapons I have designated, to defend the rights of St. and his grandmother knows what other kind of buncombe. [Laughter.]

Why, sir, just give some of 'em a little Southern soap and a little Northern water, and quicker than a hound pup can lick a skillet they will make enough buncome-leather to wash the golden flock that roams abroad the azure meads of heaven. [Cheers and laughter.]] allude to the starry firmament.

The STRAKER. The gentlemen is out of or der. He must confine himself to the question Mr. Reily. Just retain your linen if you please. I'll stick to the text as close as a pitch pleaser to a pine plank, or a lean pig to a hot jam rock. [Cries of "go on;" "you'll do."] I want to say to these carboneriferous gentlemen, these ignenous individuls, these detonating demonstrators, these pereginous volca come on with your combustibles! If] don't-well I'll suck the gulf of Mexico through a goose quill. [Laughter and applause.] Perhaps you think I am diminitive tubers and sparse in the mundane elevation. You may discover, gentlemen, you are laboring under as great a misapprehension as though you had incinerated your inner veetment. In the lan-guage of the noble bard,

"I was not born in a thicket To be scared by a cricket."

[Applause Sir, we have lost our proper position. Our proper position is to the zenith and nadir—our with the curruscations of innumerable constel lations, and proud as a speckled stud horse on

And what is the cause? Echo answers "bunningboned, hamstrung, wind-galled swyn-eyed, splithoofed, distempered, polevilled, pot-bel-lied politicions have had their noses in the [Cheers and laughter.]

Sir, these hungry brats keep tugging at the public pap. They say, "let down your milk. Suck, or you'll have a split bag." Do they think they can stuff such buncombe down our craw? No, sir; you might as well try to stuff butter in a wild cat with a hot awl. [Continned laughter.] The thing can't be did

The public grindstone is a great institution, Bir; yes, sir, a great institution. One of the greatest, perhaps, that ever rose, reigned or fell. But, sir, there is too much private cutlery ground. The thing won't pay. Occasionally a big big axe is brought in to be fixed up, ostable for the burners. tensibly for the purpose of hewing down the gnarled trunks of error and clearing out the brush-wood of ignorance and folly that obstruct the public highway of progress. The machine whirls; the axe is applied. The lookers-on are enchanted with the brilliant sparks elicited.— The tool is polished; keenly edged; and, while the public stare in gaping expectancy of seeing the road cleared, the implement is slyly taken off to improve the private acres of some "faith-The obstructions remain unmoved. I am mighty afraid the machine Applause.] I am mighty afraid the machine is a going to stop. The grease is giving out thundering fast. It is beginning to creak on its axis. Gentlemen, it is my private opinion, confidentially expressed, that all the "grit" is pretty near worn off. [Applause.]

Mr. Speaker, you must excuse me for my latitudinosity and circumlocutoriness. My old blunderbuss scatters amazingly, but if anybody gets peppered, it ain't my fault if they are in the way.

Sir, these dandadical, supersquirtical, mahogany-faced gentry—what do they know about the blessings of freedom? About as much, sir, as a toad frog does of high glory. Do they think they can escape me? I'll follow them through pandemonium and high water. [Cheers and Tariff Bill Passed.

The Senate of the United States has at last passed the Tariff bill. Thanks to Gen. CAMERON, he has been its main ad vocate in that body, and it is but a few days since that he intimated he would not return home until that bill was passed. We sincerely congratulate him on his success. It will do more to relieve Pennsylvania than any measure that could have been adopted.

A Reminiscence of Nullification.

FROM THE FEDERAL CAPITAL

Correspondence of the Telegraph.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20, 1861.

Mr. Staunton's proposition in the House, to arm the militia of the country, and hold them in readiness to resist revolution, has excited the anger and animosity of timid men from all sections. The bill comes up to-day for discussion, and a glorious contest is anticipated by those who are anxious to recognize the supremency of the law. If there is any sovereignty After a session of nearly ten hours, a abiding in the government, it is time now that final vote was taken, with the following it were displayed. If it is vested in the people, and by them transferred to the government, the people have a right to invoke its Louis county, the rights of any other county—even the county of Cedar itself. [Laughter and applanse.] Sir, the debate has assumed a latitudinosity. We have had a little black-jack buncombe, a little twolit buncombe, bombast buncombe, bung hole buncombe, and the devil buncombe, and the devil buncombe, bung hole buncombe, and the devil buncombe when the county of Cedar itself. [Laughter ham, Cameron, Chandler, Clark, Doolittle, Durkee, Fessenden, Foot, Foster, Grimes, Hale, Harlan, King, Morrill, Seward, Simmons, Summer, Ten Eyck, Trumbull, Wade, Wilkin-buncombe, bung hole buncombe, and the devil buncombe, bung hole buncombe, and the devil buncombe will be a right to invoke its manifestation, or, if that invocation is in vain, the geople have a right to invoke its manifestation, or, if that invocation is in vain, the government absolutely and in fact becomes a failure. The idea of arming the militia for defensive purposes, is denounced by Southern with the provided in the county of Cedar itself. [Laughter ham, Cameron, Chandler, Clark, Doolittle, Durkee, Fessenden, Foot, Foster, Grimes, Hale, Harlan, King, Morrill, Seward, Simmons, Summer, Ten Eyck, Trumbull, Wade, Wilkin-summer, Ten Eyck, Trumbull, Wade, W men as the coercion they can hever recognize; while Northern dough-faces pronounce the proposition a measure of force which must ultimately produce the most disastrous results. They admit the existence of a revolution.— They know that the public treasure has been carried off by millions, and the public property seized and appropriated to local uses. They know that the seceding States are arming themselves, and that Jefferson Davis has declared his intention to found the policy of his reign on the keenness of Southern steel and the power of Southern gunpowder. But the govrnment must not and dare not provide for its own protection. According to the theory and argument of the friends of the Administration, the government has no power to invoke the force placed at its disposal by the Constitution for its own protection. All these fine drawn arguments are fast losing their effect, and the movement at the South begins to be regarded in its past. There has been a large increase in the remiternor opened the subject mildly, and and only light by every reasonable man. As Jackson only answered by telling Letcher long as it is dignified with the title of a reto read a certain instrument of writing on volution prosecuted to vindicate a right, its leaders will, of course, be able to command the respect and attention of honest and unsuspecting men. But let this Government take vigorous measures for the suppression of this rebeldear General, you don't intend to carry lion—let a proclamation be issued pronouncing county court day. [Cheers.]

"But how have the mighty fallen," in the language of the poet Silversmith. We have lost our proper position. We have assumed a per?" "Yes, General, it is." "Very Offer money for Jefferson Davis a traitor, and all who sympathize with and abet his accessories in crime, and the rebellion will assume a different shape. well, Governor; it is very seldom that I Offer money for Jefferson Davis' head and the people of the South themselves will cover the combe," sir, "buncombe." The people have sign papers merely for effect. The market opened force and power of parliamentary tactics.-When it does become a law, and Gen. Scott is from that hour. Gen. Jackson said on relieved of the embarrassments imposed on trade at Manchester, caused a decline of d. his death bed that he had only one thing him by the present administration, order will to regret, and that was that he had not be more promptly enforced, or the rebellion will prove a great success, and the prondest and grandest government in the world sink into utter insignificance, and become the taunt and prev of all its aspiring neighbors.

As Mr. Lincoln approaches Washington, public expectation is increased, and all who can con-"required" and the addition of the words | jecture, are given to making arrangements as "the number of days," in the resolution to who should compose his cabinet. All this read by Mr. Lawrence on the subject of is much easier said, than it is to discover who will be members of that cabinet. So far as public opinion is concerned, the indications are that the cabinet should be composed of tried Republicans and practical statesmen. Mr. Lincoln's administration must be a success. If he fails for the lack of a proper counsel, then indeed will free government utterly and forever cease to exist. But if he gathers around him men identified with labor, men who understand and appreciate the struggles of induspersonal interests for the welfare of the entire country—if Mr. Lincoln gathers such PRESENTATION OF A PICTURE OF THE a cabinet around him, his administration country reduced to its lowest ebb. He cannot afford, therefore, to seek his admini stration on a basis of abstraction. He cannot yield his obligation to carry out the law and into wee the provisions of the Constitution, merely to gratthe Government must be restored. Before score
