An Act to annex parts of Dublin and Springfield townships, in Huntingdon county, to the county of Fulton. Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. Speaker; the bill now under consideration is one that involves more interest, and has more merit than those not directly connected with the circumstances of the case. It is a bill that has been passed by the House, and which, I believe, were more personal than general. Although it did not pass then, my constituents or those I represent upon this floor, are unwilling to abandon it, and therefore they present the same again. I am forcibly reminded at this point of the peculiar position I occupy, in comparison with that occupied by members not of our own, but of other legislative bodies. Whilst they advocate disunion, I am for Union, and whilst they advocate secession, I am for annexation. It is no unusual thing in this State to change the boundaries of counties, and even occasionally to form new ones, when, by so doing, the convenience and interests of the citizens are advanced. The alteration proposed to be made by the bill now before us is one greatly needed and zealously asked for by nearly every tax payer in that portion of Huntingdon county, which is proposed to be annexed to Fulton county. By reference to the map it will be seen that Huntingdon county is irregularly shaped. It is long and narrow, and the county seat is at the northern end of it—this places those living at the southern end at an inconvenient distance from the seat of justice, and since there are no public improved thoroughfares there, it is a matter of great labor and inconvenience for the citizens to attend this place of public business. Fulton county, it will be seen, is small, and the seat of justice in it is quite near, and the public roads of a much better quality. By reference to the annexation to Fulton county very desirable, and, in my opinion, would be sufficient to warrant the action of this body in passing the bill now before it. But there are other and stronger reasons for this proposed annexation. The distance most of these people have to travel to their present seat of justice is considerably over thirty-five miles, whilst to McCandlessburg, the county seat of Fulton, is from ten to fifteen miles. The law requires the attendance of jurors and witnesses, and whilst it is mandatory in this respect, it is not so in the case of the present county, and it is but proper that they should have a hearing ear to their cause of complaint, and remedy, if possible, that which produces this trouble and inconvenience. There has been for many years, and doubtless will be for many years to come, much litigation in Huntingdon county. Their titles to real estate seem to be in a great measure unsettled, and causes of this character have so accumulated in their Courts, many of which must necessarily be continued from term to term, until, indeed, it amounts to almost a denial of justice. Here then is a good cause of complaint, and one too, that demands a remedy; one that should not be overlooked by this body. To us they look for a remedy, to us they have presented their prayer, and that not once, but have come again and again, as if endeavoring to strengthen their petition by repetition. Their petition, too, is not that of a few persons desiring to promote their own selfish ends. It is not the act of politicians, but the act of nearly every taxpayer in the territory proposed to be annexed. There should be no hesitation in this matter when the bill is so nearly unanimously asked for by those upon whose shoulders the responsibility will rest. As we stated before, the county of Fulton is small, and business before their respective Courts is necessarily limited. The Courts never, at any term, remain in session over three days, and frequently less than that. I believe that the Courts of Common Pleas are held but twice a year, and then a three day's term is sufficient to transact their business. Here a speedy remedy will be had to all causes of complaint, and justice administered as it should be in all cases, with promptness. There will be no delay for want of time, nor will there be delay because of a long list of causes already pending. There will be no continuing of causes from term to term at the cost of him seeking his rights, or at the cost of him unwilling or unable to discharge his duty.—These facts being known to the petitioners, are they not prompted by the highest motive to seek an annexation to Fulton county. The territory proposed by this bill for annexation is composed of part of Dublin township, with a very small portion of Springfield township. That portion of the latter which is embraced in the boundaries is not inhabited, but is mountainous. It is included in order to make the line straight and give the county a better shape. The boundaries are so arranged as to embrace a school district, thus preventing any trouble to the citizens in this respect. Careful attention has been paid to the boundaries so as not to interfere with any district or locality whatever. With these views of the propriety of this proposed annexation, I shall proceed to show that these petitioners are under no obligations to the remaining people of Huntingdon county for public favors. They have received no favors at their hands; although often requested, they have never yet received so much as a bridge, much less a road, and by a reasonable taxation will yet require years before every district can be favored. There are no public buildings within the precincts wishing annexation; no improvements whatever of a public character that have been made at the expense of Huntingdon county. They stand, as it were, isolated, away from the notice of the other part of the county. Their wants are not relieved, yet their taxes are promptly demanded. They are not passed by when money is to be collected, yet when a proportionate share is asked for, there is none to spare. Within a few years a new Court House has been erected, several expensive bridges constructed in other parts of the county, a large and valuable farm purchased, and suitable improvements thereon erected for the benefit of the poor. In all this they have furnished a helping hand, they have paid their share of the expense, and it has not been trifling. All these improvements within a few years would increase taxation to almost a burdensome extent. Yet they have borne it, and now willingly give up their claim to these benefits, in order to be annexed to Fulton county. They have other grievances which by this step would be obviated, which will amply compensate for what they will lose in the public improvements of Huntingdon county. The bill is now before the House for consideration. It is one in which the petitioners feel a deep interest.—They now suffer great inconvenience, trouble and expense. And they feel assured that, by this annexation, as it is very evident, they will be greatly relieved. I have been induced to state these facts, Mr. Speaker, at some length, because they are strongly in favor of the cause of annexation to Fulton county. They are the cause of complaint, and a complete remedy of the grievances of these petitioners. This bill should be passed, for these people will petition again, and again, until they are heard, and their prayer granted. They have not gone into this matter without a careful investigation. They are not acting unwisely in the matter, but with a clear consciousness, and firm resolve to improve their situation in many respects, do they seek this change. They have not the sinister motive of attaching themselves to a richer county, and in this event being greatly benefited, for such is not the case. Fulton county is poor, even much more so than Huntingdon. They therefore cannot expect to be favored in this respect, by this annexation. But their great desire is to be as accessible as possible to a Court of Justice; and one too in which that justice will be dispensed promptly. This is the reason they ask for this annexation; and it is one that should reach the ear of every dispassionate member of this House. I then ask a consideration of these facts, and that such consideration will lead to the remedy they ask in the bill now before us. Mr. BLAIR moved to amend as follows: Strike out all after the enacting clause in the first section, and insert as follows: That part of Metal township, Franklin county, lying west of the great road leading from Loudon to its intersection with the Three Mountain roads at or near the public house of Jacob Kegrice, together with the said Three Mountain road to the corner of Huntingdon and Fulton county line on the summit of the Tuscarora mountain. Also, strike out the word "Huntingdon" wherever it occurs and insert "Franklin," also the words "Dublin and Springfield" and insert "Metal." Mr. BLAIR. My object in offering this amendment was, that if the gentleman desires to be magnanimous, he may be so with regard to something with which he has a right to be magnanimous. This part of Franklin county lies more conveniently with regard to Fulton county than that section which is proposed in the bill to annex. I desire that the gentleman shall not be one jot of giving away that which is right belongs to him. Mr. BREWSTER. I presume that the members of this House will at once perceive the absurdity of this amendment. Whenever the people of Franklin county petition, as the people in Huntingdon county have done, to be annexed to Fulton, I shall make no objection. But the people of Franklin county are not asking for such an annexation, while the people in Huntingdon county are. It is the difference. Mr. BLAIR. I would inform this House that there has not been a citizen of Huntingdon county who has traveled one mile for the purpose of procuring signatures to a petition to be presented to this House. It is a matter of external influence altogether. As I expect to be able to show before the final vote of this bill, it has originated with a few property-holders in the village of Burr's Cabins—very near relatives of my friend from Franklin, (Mr. Brewster)—which accounts for the extraordinary zeal he has manifested from the time when this bill was introduced. Every member on this floor recollects that in the early part of the session that gentleman rose in his place and without any petition having been presented, he introduced this bill. It is not this circumstance that has excited the attention of the House, but the fact that there is "something rotten in Denmark." I have no fault to find with the position which the gentleman occupies on that Committee. But it will be observed that he is Chairman of that Committee. I have no objection to his being in that position, but it looks as though he had put himself in that position. The SPEAKER pro tem. (Mr. PATTERSON.) The gentleman from Huntingdon must not be personal in his remarks. Mr. BLAIR. This amendment is, I think, altogether proper. The gentleman from Franklin undertakes to legislate for Franklin and Fulton and my own people. I am sent here to represent the interests of the people of Huntingdon county. The people residing in this part proposed to be annexed can reach the county seat of Huntingdon easier than the county seat of Fulton (although the distance is somewhat greater) because the traveling facilities are much better. I reside in this township of Dublin, which it is proposed to annex to Fulton county. God forbid that this House should agree to annex that township to Fulton county. Mr. Speaker, I need not ask whether you have ever been there. It is a portion of country unknown to fame, although the humble way-faring traveler may find it. It is proposed to annex to another county a portion of a township which is the garden spot of this county. It is no wonder that these illiberal desires to come in there by the passage of a law like this. At the proper time, I will introduce evidence which will convince members that this measure is not in accordance with the wishes of a majority of the citizens of that township. There have been frauds perpetrated; this bill was conceived in fraud.

The Speaker pro tem. called Mr. BLAIR to order. Mr. AUSTIN. I am really surprised at my friend from Huntingdon. If I understand him properly, he has insinuated here that Fulton county cannot be found, that it is so small and of so little importance, that it ought not to be taken into consideration. Now, Mr. Speaker, I will admit that Fulton county is a young county, only created in 1850 out of a part of Bedford county, and that it is very small, and that it is a large county; and that is the very reason we are asking a very small portion of the very large and prosperous county of Huntingdon. This annexation will not do any injury to Huntingdon county, while it will be of great advantage to Fulton county; and it will accommodate the citizens of that part of Huntingdon county which we propose to annex. I do not think it will affect injuriously the gentleman from Huntingdon and his constituents. With reference to this amendment, striking out the provision for annexing a portion of Huntingdon county and inserting a provision for annexing part of Franklin county, I take it for granted that the House will, as a matter of course, promptly vote down that amendment, from the fact that there is no person in Franklin county petitioning that a portion of that county shall be annexed to Fulton. The annexation proposed by the amendment would divide a fine valley in Franklin county, split it right in the centre, giving a portion to Fulton, while a portion remained with Franklin. I think that the House will not entertain this amendment for a moment, and therefore I do not consider it worth while to consume time in discussing it. On the amendment of Mr. BLAIR, I take it The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BLAIR and Mr. BISEL, and were as follows, viz: YEAS—Messrs. Bisel, Bixler, Blair, Boyer, Bressler, Butler, (Carbon), Caldwell, Dunlap, Gaakill, Gibboney, Hill, Huhn, Lowther, M'Donough, Manifold, Morrison, Mullin, Myers, Poire, Rhoads, Shafer, Smith, (Philadelphia), Stehman, Wilder and Williams—25. So the question was determined in the negative. Mr. BLAIR moved to postpone the further consideration of the bill for the present. On the motion, The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BLAIR and Mr. BISEL, and were as follows, viz: YEAS—Messrs. Alexander, Armstrong, Bisel, Bixler, Brodhead, Bliss, Boyer, Drossler, Brodhead, Butler, (Carbon), Caldwell, Clark, Cope, Cowan, Dismant, Divins, Dunley, Dunlap, Duncan, Dunlap, Ellinger, Gaakill, Gibboney, Gordon, Hill, Huhn, Lawrence, Leisinger, Lichtenwallner, Lowther, M'Donough, Manifold, Moore, Morrison, Mullin, Myers, Ober, Peire, Preston, Reiff, Rhoads, Robinson, Roller, Shafer, Smith, (Berks), Smith, (Philadelphia), Stoneback, Tracy, Walker, White, and Williams—52.
