".....The immertal work of the Prince of English Lexicographers.....The wonder is, not that there are proofs of his partaking of our common imperfect and fallible humanity, but that there are so few, and that he was so far in advance of his age.....To be, I will not say 'the best,' but the only desirable Dictionary of the language."

"I can hardly express my admiration of its value. I rejoice that it is used so extensively, and abould rejoice still more if it should be introduced into all our schools and seminaries of learning, and be recognized as the STANDARD by every American writer...... No considerations of this nature can overcome the convictions of my judgment in favor of the superiority of Webster."

More than ten thousand copies of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary have been placed in as many of the Public Schools of our State by the voluntary action of their saveral School Boards. Heartily approving the general introduction of this standard authority in Definitions, Orthography, and Pronunciation, now randered yet mere valuable by the Pictorial Synonyms, 10,000 New Words and other attractive and useful features, and desirous of that uniformity of usage in these particulars, which Dr. Webster's works are so eminently fitted to secure, we cordially recommend the School Abridgements, the Primary, the Common School, High Scaool and Academic Dictionaries, to all our schools, as better fitted for their use than any others with which we are acquainted.
