A COLOBED SCENE ON THE ROAD TO WASHING-TON.—While the New York Seventy-first were at the Junction, between Annapolis and Washington, a very dilapidated darkey, whose garments were of all imaginable hues and a perfect labyrinth of rags, had come into camp to sell a few eggs; while he was there another ebony hued individual came in, vastly important in his demeanor, attired in clean, checked shirt, blue jacket and jean pants, with cowhide shoes and felt hat, and in every respect a perfect Turveydrop in deportment.

unconditional emancipation, within three months, of all such slaves as should accept the boon of freedom, would not extirpate slavery from our soil either more utterly or more speedily than the guing of Kentucky into the Southern Confederacy would produce that result. Many even of our secessionists feel this great truth in spite of themselves. We know of scores, we have heard of hundreds, of ardent secessionists in Kentucky, who, in expectation of her secession, have sent off or are making arrangements to send or take off their slaves into the Cotton States, as the only hope f not losing them."

Thus in Kentucky, as in disrupted Virginia. slavery is wounded in the house of its friends, and receives its death-blow from the hands of nen who would murder Liberty in its defence. SOLDIERS' CLOTHING.—The clothing for the United States army and the navy is all inspected by competent persons. No cloth can passe that is not of the required fabric and strength. Pants or coats made of army or navy cloth wear like iron. A gentleman informs us that he wore a pair of pants made of it an entire year in traveling through California, and did not wear them out. Soldiers in the Mexican war wore single suits all through the war, and ore single suits all through the war, and wore single suits an tanonga and mar, and brought them out whole. It requires a severe rain to wet through one of the army overceats. And it is economy for two reasons—its durable and a production of the severe rain. And it is acoust to make it cheap in the end; and it protects the soldiers in the worst of weather,
