THE DUTY OF UNION MEN AT THE

dependent and patriotic paper in the Monumental City, prints the following bold and eloquent address to the Union men of the South: While war alarms are sounding in every direction, and the people North, South, East and West are rushing to arms, there is not one true patriot in any part of our widely extended country who does not earnestly desire a peaceful settlement of our unhappy domestic diffi-culties. Reckless political gamesters in either section may be willing to invite the wager of battle and the bloody arbitration of a war, of which none can see the end but the people—the masses of our countrymen still cherish a avoided, and that peace may be restored and the integrity of the Union maintained without tain the supremacy of the law. Now is the lingering hope that this last resort may be the shock of armies and the deadly encounters of fratricidal war.

There is nothing to be expected in this res pect from the rash and reckless advocates of disunion. They are mad. They are drunk with frenzy. They have insauely taken service under leaders whose desperate fortunes demand that they should provoke civil war as the last resort to save their necks from the penalty of the laws they have outraged. These secession leaders cannot afford to make peace without securing an amnesty for their treason They have passed the Rubicon, and for them there is no retreat. A reconstruction of the Union without a free pardon to them would only deliver them over to sure and well deserved punishment for their heinous crime. It is for this reason that they endeavor by mob violence and force and arms to repress the exhibition of any Union sentiment in the Southern States, and by bold mitrepresentation and arrant incendiarism to "fire the Southern heart" and force a collision with the Federal Government. They themselves can now have no hope of success in the contest they invoke, but they expect to secure the promise of amnesty for their offences, and they urge on a hopeless war for the simple purpose of saving their own necks from the gallows that the laws by mob violence and by armed force, but in the seceded States, as well as in the border States that have refused to be drawn into this disunion vortex, there are hundreds and thousands and hundreds of thousands of Union men, whose voices, if they were allowed to speak would be raised against the build. Upor these men a duty devolved. They have it in their power to do more towards a restoration of peace and a reconstruction of the Union, than all the armies that may be raised. It is for them, by the exercise of firmness and courage in the performance of their duty, to win a the world the excelling beauty of our institu tions, and the power and permanency and self sustaining sufficiency of a popular govern

The United States Government is not mak ing war upon the seceded States. It does not, and cannot, and will not recognize secession The States that have, by unlawful mobs, been declared out of the Union, still reckoned as integral parts of the Confederacy. As such they are entitled to representation in the Federal Congress. It is the ity of the War Department.

Together with several other new military books, all of which will be sold at the lowest cash prices at BERGNER'S BOOK STORE.

Dentation in the Federal Congress. It is the intention of the Government, as far as practicable, to protect the loyal cttizens of these States in the exercise of their constitutional rights, and to emancipate them from the township. up over them a military despotism. If the Union men in these Southern States will choose and vote for representatives in the Congress of the United States, they will be recognized, and will be able to do more towards arriving at a peaceful solution of pending difficulities than all the national conventions that will ever be

In Kentucky the Union men will have it all their own way. The recent overwhelming Union majority given there has driven the secessionists from the field, and the leaders advise an avoidance of a contest that will only betray their weakness. In Missouri the Union men will prevail over all opposition. They are arming themselves to resist the attempted extension of an armed despotism over their state, and they will unquestionably be successful. In Maryland, we can without doubt elect a full Union representation in Congress, if the true Union men of the city of Baltimore will act prudently and firmly, and insist that the fate of the whole Union party and the result in the State shall not be sacrificed to the vaulting ambition and personal advantage of any individual. This is a struggle for our country and our country's good, and the individual who, for the gratification of his ambition or for his personal advantage, is willing to cast even a hair's breadth of difficulty in the way of WALLOWER'S LINE.

even there, Union candidates for the Congres of the United States. Let the Union men of all the Southern States, in which this infamous mob despotism has been set up, at once prepare to follow the example of the Union men of Virginia. In each Congressional district let them select and vote for some brave, firm, tried, loyal and able man as their representative in the Congress of the United States. If they cannot have poll books opened for this purpose by authority and in accordance with the legal forms, hey should do whatever they can. They may open polls among themselves and send House of Representatives at Washington, and let their representatives, thus elected, appear and take their seats in the national councils and take their seats in the national councils and exercise their rights as representatives of the loyal people. Rebels have no right to a sepresentation there. They must first purge themselves by passing through the courts or by repentance of their crime and acknowledgement of their allegiance.

loving patriots in that body, as representatives of the Union men of the South, will have a salutary effect, and will go far towards bringing about a peaceful solution of our domestic distractions. It will be an evidence to the leaders of the disunion conspiracy that while all parties in the North are united in one great Union party, the South itself is divided and their conspiracy must be a failure. It will a freight has not been given in the memory of serve to temper the counsels of Northern men, and show them how they may best foster and protect the Union sentiment at the South and enable it to assert its power and gain the as-

The exhibition of power on the part of th Government is for the preservation of the Union and the suppression of an unholy conspiracy. It is not intended to wage war upon Southern institutions or the Southern people, time for brave and loyal Union men in the Southern States to take their position and firmly to maintain it, as the Union men of Tennessee and Virginia are determined to do, by opposing force to force, if necessary, and meeting their oppressors with arms if it should be required.
