STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS. THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF HIS DEATH.

The telegraph to-day announces the death of Stephen Arnold Douglas, which took place at 9 o'clock this morning, in the city of Chicago.

The biography of Stephen A. Douglas, when it is fairly written, will be interesting and instructive. He commenced his career in a cabinet-maker's shop, from which he entered several academies of learning, and having removed to the State of Illinois when very young, where, a year after he was admitted to the bar, when not yet twenty-two years of age, he was elected by the legislature attorney general of that State.

It has been popular, heretofore, to talk and write of the friendly relations existing between the United States and England. We were constantly boasting of the presumed fact, that one religious purpose actuated the people of both countries—that their institutions socially were the same—that the governments of both countries had one object in view—that they were connected, by the common ties of humanity and consanguinity, to achieve the religious, the social and the moral elevation of the people of the world.

It is not our purpose to allude to the political trouble and contentions into which Mr. Douglas was forced since 1856, any further than to declare that he bore himself bravely and nobly in all his encounters. He may have committed wrongs—but they sprang more from his zeal than from any purpose to injure his country, or impair the principles of good government.

Of Stephen A. Douglas personally, it would be unjust to omit writing that he was a man capable of strong friendships—a bold and defiant enemy—a statesman of the largest mental powers, and, in all respects, one of the most remarkable men that the age has produced.

THE DEATH OF BEAUREGARD CONFIRMED.

The mysterious disappearance, as well as the singular appearance of Gen. Beauregard in several localities widely separated, has caused much conjecture and confounded many good people since the attack of the rebels on Fort Sumter.

There is no good reason why this should not be true—nor can we doubt the statement, coming from a source so responsible and respectable as that from which it is derived.

THE THREE MILLION STATE LOAN. The Harrisburg Bank has made arrangements to receive subscriptions to the three millions loan authorized by the legislature for the purpose of defraying the expenses of organizing the militia of the State of Pennsylvania, and fully placing her military resources on a war footing.

Those of our citizens who desire to take shares in this loan, have now the opportunity of doing so through the agency of one of our most popular and reliable banking institutions. The loan itself is commended to their encouragement and recognition by every argument of patriotism and self-preservation; and a similar opportunity for safe investment may not again be offered in many years.

It has been popular, heretofore, to talk and write of the friendly relations existing between the United States and England. We were constantly boasting of the presumed fact, that one religious purpose actuated the people of both countries—that their institutions socially were the same—that the governments of both countries had one object in view—that they were connected, by the common ties of humanity and consanguinity, to achieve the religious, the social and the moral elevation of the people of the world.

By the law of nations when a body of rebels in any nation, resist the foreign authority with such force as to compel it to make war upon them in the usual way, such a state of things is called a civil war.

THE BALLOON IN WARFARE.—John La Moun, the aeronaut, has offered his services to the general government in the capacity of a scout. He proposes to inflate his balloon, and, accompanied by an engineer, to ascend to any desirable elevation, taking notes of the country.

ENGLAND AND MEXICO.—The British government instructed Sir Charles Wyke to rigidly enforce in Mexico the customs convention, by which a certain portion of the duties are hypothecated for the payment of debts due to the government to English subjects.

It would be utterly impossible either to follow or attempt to refute the slanders and misrepresentations of the Sunday press of Philadelphia, in relation to the organization of the military force of this State, the disbursement of money, and the official conduct of individual officers. The labor would be thrown away, and the time misapplied in such an effort—but we cannot refrain from alluding to the willful and malicious misrepresentations, mutilations, and aspersions in which the Sunday Dispatch of yesterday indulges.

THE BLOCKADE, on the tenth of this month will be completed along the entire southern coast, from the Chesapeake bay to the Rio Grande. Up to this time the captures by our men-of-war amount to thirty. Some of these seizures have been released on application to the Treasury Department, as it is not the desire of the government to enforce more strictly than is absolutely necessary, the terms of the blockade.

WE WERE SHOWN a dark drab overcoat, today, a sample of seven hundred and fifty furnished on contract to the Quartermaster's department by John I. Duncan. The coat is made in the most substantial manner, with a large cape, and we have every reason to believe, from our knowledge of the integrity and responsibility of the contractor, that the sample is nothing more than a fair specimen of what the entire stock consists of, and that the contract will not fail to pass inspection.

JUDGE CASEY.—The appointment of Joseph Casey, Esq., of Harrisburg, says the Washington City Sunday Morning Chronicle, by the President to the high position of judge of the court of claims, is conceded to be an excellent one. Eminent as a lawyer, a citizen of unquestioned integrity and high moral worth, his appointment cannot fail to give very general satisfaction.

BELLIGERENT AND NATIONAL RIGHTS.

By the law of nations when a body of rebels in any nation, resist the foreign authority with such force as to compel it to make war upon them in the usual way, such a state of things is called a civil war.

But it is important not to confound rights which arise from nationality with the rights which springs from belligerency. A nation in a state of war may demand many things of neutral states to which a mere belligerent without nationality is not entitled.

THE BALLOON IN WARFARE.—John La Moun, the aeronaut, has offered his services to the general government in the capacity of a scout. He proposes to inflate his balloon, and, accompanied by an engineer, to ascend to any desirable elevation, taking notes of the country.

FROM THE FEDERAL CAPITAL.

HEAD QUARTERS LOCHIEL GREYS, West 42 street, at Washington, May 28, 1861.

MESSRS. EDITORS.—The "Greys" are still quartered near the extreme end of 42 street, in a commodious building fronting the United States Arsenal, and pleasantly located on the eastern bank of the Potomac; and the mechanical skill of many of our members have served to render it very comfortable for the residence of many convenient improvements.

To-day, in company with our gallant Lieutenant Jennings, I made a tour through that portion of Virginia lying between the chain bridge, three miles above Georgetown and Alexandria city, about eight miles below Washington.

THE ATTENTION OF GENTLEMEN is solicited to our very large assortment of the best quality of these buttons, made by the celebrated G. W. P. GUSTIS, and more lately occupied by Colonel Lee of the Confederate army, and now in charge of the Eighth New York regiment, and found much to interest us.
