WHAT IS TREASON ?-" Treason against the United States consists only in levying war against them or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort." These are the words of the constitution of the United States. But what is levying war against the United States? "Levying war is of the same import with raising or creating war." So says Chief Justice Marshall. After this is done, says the same Judge, not only those in the troop commit treason, but all who aid in promoting it, commit treason. The commissary, who brings provisions; the recruit ng officer, who raises and forwards men to the army, commits treason. The number constituting the hostile force is not material. A few may commit treason as well as a host. There need not be fightingenlisting and marching is enough.

What is adhering to the enemies of the United States-giving them aid and comfort? Wharton says, "joining the enemy's forces," though no acts of hostility be committed by them; "raising troops for the enemy;" supplying the enemy with money, arms or intelligence, &c., though such money, arms or intelligence be intercepted and never reach the enemy. All these things constitute high treason, and are punishable with death.

These definitions of treason may be of use to many a man even in Pennsylvania, and for power to succeed. THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE has been frequently tested in bombast to describe the character and quality of southern chivalry. Southern gentlemen who boasted of lineage and whipped niggers for pastime, were represented as Cavaliers of spotless honor, with lineage that coursed quickly through the veins at any wrong action ; men of purposes, the man and the maid servants of an generous impulses, who scorned to be guilty of a meanness or petty villainy; and mythical gloom and ignorance of the darkest ages in the Lords Robert d'Artois or Sirs Robert de Coverly, always on the alert to defend the oppressed and punish the oppressor. Yet deeds like these command the admiration and applause of the southern press If Peveril of the Peak or Charles de Montmorency don't blush at such a slander on their fair fame, or groan in their coffins at such an insult to their brave deeds of gallant courage, it is a wonder. Yet these fellows sneer at the ment of a people long suffering from oppression, the rebellion is only the result of a plan long considered and a purpose longer contemruins, slavery institutions on this hemisphere.

Since the death of Senator Douglas, we are nformed that he had been engaged, for months, in preparing an expose of the conspiracy now armed and arrayed for battle, and that he had received such information from a personal intercourse with the traitors, on the floors of both Houses of Congress, and in the social intimacies of private life, that would positively prove the movement to have been under consideration for many years. Edward Everett, in a private letter recently published, has also declared this fact, and makes the assertion that for thirty years leading southern politicians have been resolved to break up the Union, and that the slavery question was but a pretext to maintain agitation and hold the south together.

The conspiracy of Burr, to revolutionize Mexico, take possession of the mouth of the Mississippi river, and erect an independent monarchy, to CINCINNATI, June 20. A special dispatch from Grafton confirms the reports of last night, that the rebels have oc cupied Piedmont, in numbers from 4000 to 5000 strong. A guard of Marylauders from Cum-berland, 40 in number, under Capt. Relly, were stationed at the bridge with one piece of artii-lery. As the rebels advanced they poured their shots into them, mowing them down like grass, and continued to fire until all the gunners were killed. The brave little Spartan band were cut entirely to pieces, two only escaping. The rebels suffered terribly. Lient Col. Thompson, of the Confederate army, was captured by scouts near Phillipi. Col.
