THE UNION—THE CONSTITUTION—AND THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAW.

HARRISBURG, PA.

Monday Afternoon, June 24, 1861.

DAVID B. RANDALL is an independent candidate for Congress in the Twelfth Congressional District. He is an able man, and would, if elected, make a reliable representative.

This case of John Merryman, now confined at Fort McHenry, will soon come up before the U.S. District Court, as we see by a paragraph afford him the necessary supplies of men and in the Towsontown, (Md.,) Advocate, that the Deputy U. S. Marshal has been summoning witnesses in the county to appear before the grand jury.

Among those who have lately passed through this city, en route for the federal capital, was Irvin W. Potter. formerly of Centre county, Pennsylvania, but now of Ashkosh, Wis. Mr. Potter is the orderly sergeant of Company E, second regiment Wisconsin volunteers, that left this morning for Washington. His friends in Centre county will be pleased to hear that he is well, and is enlisted with all his enthusiasm and energy in the war. Sergeant Potter is a lineal descendof the gallent General Potter, of revolutionary renown, and has the metal in him to make a

They will be found to exceed, in power and potency, all the oaths of allegiance that could be administered in a month.

THE PROPER OF PENESYLVANIA never had a public servant, nor never commissioned any one of her citizens for service in any position, for whom they entertained a higher regard or expressed greater respect than for Simon Cameron, the Secretary of War. These expressions its proceedings. If our representatives attempt find publicity in the columns of the organs of to barter our will and purpose in a foolish atthe Republican party, as well as those of the tempt to compromise our difficulties, they are newspapers of all parties, manfully paying their. tribute to a man who, when in position, does not represent mere party, but becomes the representative of the state or nation, as his position may demand. We transfer these kindly expressions for the Secretary of War to our columns that the record may become complete for the preservation of our thousands of force and authority in a hollow truce or a readers, and that the exchange of sentiment shameless compromise, we will become at once thus freely expressed in the hour of danger, may the craven slaves which it is the boast of the become the determination in the hour of peace, of claiming for our distinguished fellow citi- states. sen, higher honors and a field of more extended usefuiness.

The Greensburg Herald, one of the ablest of our Republican hebdomidal exchanges in the state, adds its voice thus gracefully to the general commendation of Gen. Cameron by the press of the Union:

In THE RIGHT PLACE. - The unprecedented efficiency which marks every plan, order and movement of that vast machine, the War Decannon, which is furnished with a metal door, partment of the nation, the springs of which which acts as a barrier, protecting the artillenow centre in Gen. Simon Cameron, who pre-sides over it, is now the subject of remark and rist against the enemy's rifiemen. A peculiar, praise by men of all parties whose attention has and it would seem valuable, feature in this been attracted that way by their intelligence cannon is that the harval consists are for and interest in passing events. We are told that he whose rank and age in the army, entitles his opinion to respect above all others, does not hesitate to say that never before in the history of our government could we boast of having at the head of the War Department bars, of course, will give the same direction to a gentleman with administrative ability, superior to General Cameron. Take the Cabinet as air passes freely through, and therefore the whole—President and Secretaries—there has the barrel cannot get heated. By surrounding not been a time sinc the days of Washington, when the distinctive traits of a Republican Government were so well represented in its head, as they are now, by the intellectual power, as they are now, by the intellectual power, practical skill, combined with genuine simplicity, found aggregated in the Heads of Departments at Washington. Surrounded thus by men who deny, the authority defy its officers, the government is instructed by a Constitution which defines its rights to act, which controls its impulses of hasty attack, and fixes the bounds of its operations so as to avoid all possible chance of doing injustice to the humblest citizen in the land. In view of such influences and provisions to control the Executive in his operations against the rebels, Congress should do nothing more than money, and then trust to the ability of the government to sustain itself. If we have created a power for self-defence, and lodged it in an Executive officer, now is the time to test its ability for the discharge of the purpose for ers. In those terms obedience to the constituted authority, is the first and most essential concession, while for the preservation of that authority, and the extension of its influence, those who violently refuse to render such obedience make themselves amenable to justice, and if justice is to be preserved inviolate, they must be punished. If we attempt any other mode of settlement, we recognize a principle in our government which will forever render it uncertain. If we commence to legislate for the evils that have their remedy in our system of government, we make precedents for the recognition of every riot as revolution, to be said to have had tables set, covered with the calmly treated with, instead of indignantly choicest meats and vegetables, on Saturday crushed out.
