A SPLENDID REGIMENT.-Troops continue to pour through our city for the seat of war at Washington, and also to reinforce Gen. Patterson at Martinsburg. Last evening the De Kalb regiment, of New York city, over one thousand strong, reached here over the Lebanon Valley railroad, and proceeded directly to Washing ton. This regiment is made up exclusively of germans, and finer looking or more muscular men never sported uniforms or handled muskets. Six hundred of them are veteran and experienced soldiers, having served several years in Europe. Two companies were clad in regular Zouave equipments, and the balance were uniformed in as good style as most of our volunteers. During the passage of the train ing General. Winfield from the depot to the bridge the street was Department of War, July 8, 1861. from the depot to the bridge the street was crowded with people, who lustily cheered the gallant germans, the latter responding with great enthusiasm. The excellent band accompanying the regiment discoursed some fine music while passing through the city. We predict that the men comprising the De Kalb regiment will prove themselves worthy of the honored name they bear, when the tug of war comes. The Colonel in command, Leopold Von Gilsel, and the other officers, have been trained almost from infancy in military business, and thoroughly understand their duties. Every officer. from colonel to second lieutenant, was compelled to produce certificates not only of good moral character, but of having honorably served either in foreign or American wars.

LEITLE FROM MARTINSBURG.

Correspondence of the Luily Telegraph. CAMP PIERPONT, MARTINEBURG, VA., July 8, 1861.

MR. Horron: -- Our army is perhaps located in a stronger position than any we have occupied, and the innumerable tents that dot the surroundings of the town and cap the summit of each hill, present a speciacie novel and in-our midst, who had doubtless been prepared SPEER'S SAMBUCI WINE, teresting Never before has there been so large to send to Beauregard, through him, important a number of the men of this division encamped information concerning the alleged contemplatcamps of these 2,500 men may all be seen from a point, lying within an area of one square mile, you will conclude, justly, that the "varmints are awarmin." Xesterday being the Sabbath, of the letter from Davis brought by Taylor to divine service was held in the several churches.

This morning some Philadelphia boys, (of the 23d regiment.) who are quartered in the Market house as provost guard, obtained the town fire engine and hose carriage with which they careered down street to the railroad machine shops, to supply an engine from Cameron city, and to the 15th from (which drives the bellows for the blacksmiths) Messilla. with water. These machine shops are being appropriated by Uncle Samuel to the receiving of military stores, which are arriving in large quantities daily; so you see, that ill wind that main quiet. burned the bridges and locomotives, blew us these excellent storehouses. It is noteworthy that a concentration of some of the forces under Col. Stone and Gen. Patterson's division is now taking place. At this hour, 3 P. M., the 1st. 6th and 25th Pennsylvania regiments; the 1st New Hampshire and the 9th and 28th New York regiments have arrived, some of them having come from Harper's Ferry and others from Frederick City, Md. It is said others are rapidly coming on. These, with other indications, lead many to believe that a forward movement will take place in a day or two at farthest. The enemy is not far distant, as our pickets and their scouts exchange civilities or uncivilities every day. Capt. Gerard of the 7th being on picket guard was surprised at the sudden appearance of a body of cavalry, numbering over one hundred, who came out of a road near at hand. His position was dangerous indeed, as he had but thirteen men near him; these he ordered to fire, which they did with such precision as to return the surprise and force the cavalry to wheel into the woods, affording the Cartain time to "beat" for camp. With a small body of men Capt. Gerard made an excursion yesterday and returned with two prisoners and several horses which belonged to the enemy.

The miserable policy inaugurated by the thus deprive the snake (secession) of its venom. It is said that C. Pendleton (late of Congress) of this place has been taken prisoner at Bath, loyal to secure him protection on the soil. The weather, which has been pleasant, is to-day good health, good spirits and good behavior.
